SENATE—Tuesday, July 31, 2007

The Senate met at 10 a.m. and was called to order by the Honorable JON TESTER, a Senator from the State of Montana.

PRAYER

Let us pray.

Almighty God, the true light of life, whose power no earthly force can challenge and whose reign no alien god can shake, open our hearts to what You have done for us, what You are doing even now, and what You promise for us in the future. May the gifts of each sunrise and sunset remind us of Your goodness and make us more determined to please You with our words and deeds.

Draw near to our lawmakers as they work. Let the consciousness of Your presence fill their minds with peace. Use them today to defend those who are helpless and have lost all hope. Quicken their memories to recall the many times You have intervened to keep our Nation safe. Let the warmth of Your divine solace scatter the shadows of perplexity and doubt, as You encircle them with the wonder of Your love.

We pray in Your great Name. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The Honorable JON TESTER led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

> I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

APPOINTMENT OF ACTING PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will please read a communication to the Senate from the President pro tempore (Mr. BYRD).

U.S. SENATE,
PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE,
Washington, DC, July 31, 2007.

To the Senate:

Under the provisions of rule I, paragraph 3, of the Standing Rules of the Senate, I hereby appoint the Honorable JON TESTER, a Senator from the State of Montana, to perform the duties of the Chair.

ROBERT C. BYRD,
President pro tempore.

Mr. TESTER thereupon assumed the chair as Acting President pro tempore.

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER

SCHEDULE

Mr. REID. Mr. President, this morning the Senate will be in a period of morning business for 1 hour, with the time divided equally between the majority and the minority. The minority will control the first half of the time and the majority will control the second half.

Following morning business, the Senate will proceed to the consideration of H.R. 976, and I expect the majority manager, Senator BAUCUS, to call up his amendment at the desk, which will be the text of the SCHIP legislation reported overwhelmingly by the Senate Finance Committee last week.

Today the Senate will recess at 12:30 for its respective policy work periods.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT REQUEST—S. 849

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the majority leader, following consultation with the Republican leader, may at any time proceed to the consideration of Calendar No. 127, S. 849, the Openness Promotes Effectiveness of Our National Government Act of 2007, sponsored by Senators LEAHY and CORNYN, and that the bill be considered under the following limitations: that there be a time limit of 2 hours of general debate on the bill, with the time equally divided and controlled between the chair and ranking member of the Judiciary Committee or their designees; that the only amendment in order be a Leahy-Cornyn technical amendment, which is at the desk; that upon the use or yielding back of the time, the amendment be agreed to, the bill, as amended, be read the third time, and the Senate vote on passage of the bill, with the above occurring without further intervening action or debate.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, and I will object, I believe it will be possible, with the sponsors of the bill, to reach an agreement that will obviate the necessity for a great deal of floor time or amendments on the floor. I have met with the sponsors of the bill and have presented ideas about ameliorating some of the deficiencies the Department of Justice brought out about the legislation. Last week, I had a long conversation with Senator CORNYN, who is here. I believe if we can continue those discussions, in a very brief period of time—perhaps by the end of this week—it would not be necessary to devote a great deal of time to the consideration of the bill. Because of that, at this time, I will object to that particular procedure, but I hope we can report back to the majority leader that we have reached an agreement on the bill in the near future.

Mr. REID. I would be satisfied if the junior Senator from Arizona could work on this. I hope there can be an agreement reached that we can take this bill up maybe when we get back, with a limited amount of time and amendments. It is very popular legislation—the Freedom of Information Act—which our friends in the press love, and other organizations around the country. It is very important. I hope we can move forward on this bipartisan piece of legislation.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Objection is heard.

Mr. REID. I thank the Chair.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, leadership time is reserved.

● This "bullet" symbol identifies statements or insertions which are not spoken by a member of the Senate on the floor.

MORNING BUSINESS

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, there will now be a period of morning business, with Senators permitted to speak therein for up to 10 minutes, with the time equally controlled between the two leaders, and Republicans controlling the first half of the time, and the majority controlling the second half of the time.

The Senator from Texas is recognized.

ORDER OF PROCEDURE

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak during our allocation of morning business for up to 20 minutes, with the Senator from New Hampshire, Senator GREGG, being reserved the last 10 minutes of that time.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

INFORMED CONSENT

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, before I talk about the topic that brings me to the floor, I express my gratitude to the majority leader, Senator REID, for bringing up the freedom of information reform bill that Senator LEAHY, the Senator from Vermont, and I have been working on for a number of years. When I was attorney general of Texas, it was my responsibility to enforce our open Government laws, and I became a big advocate of greater transparency, more openness in Government, because I believe that only a public that is truly informed can give their consent. It has to be informed consent. That is, after all, the very fundamental basis for the legitimacy of all of our laws.

When I came to the Senate, I was pleased to see that Senator LEAHY, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, had been very active in this area. We joined efforts in a bipartisan way to work on these reforms. I know Senator KYL has some concerns. He expressed those this morning. He has been good about working with us to try to work our way through that. I share his hope and aspiration that we can work through the differences and perhaps complete our work on those Freedom of Information Act reforms this week before we break for August. I think that would be a very positive development and one that is certainly worthy of the Senate.

QUALITY HEALTH CARE

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, I want to turn to the topic that will engage us for perhaps most of the remainder of the week, and that is ensuring that quality health care is available to the next generation. This is, and should be, a top public policy priority for the Congress. Certainly, it is one of mine.

I think there will be a lot of attention paid to the reauthorization of the State Children's Health Insurance Program that will be on the floor shortly. It is noteworthy that SCHIP, so called, was created by Congress in 1997 to fill a gap in our health insurance system. It was targeted at working poor families who had too much income to qualify for Medicaid but could not afford regular health insurance. This program has been enormously successful nationwide, lowering the uninsured rate by nearly 25 percent, and especially in my State of Texas, where we have about 25 percent of our total population currently uninsured. So this has gone a long way to make sure people got access to quality health care. Interacting with Medicaid, insurance coverage has been extended under this program to more than 1 million Texas children who would have otherwise not been covered. So SCHIP deserves reauthorization and renewal.

Unfortunately, the Senate Finance bill that will come to the floor seems to take us on a path toward a major step that failed in 1994, and that is a federally funded takeover of national health care. The Senate Finance Committee is proposing a near quadrupling—that is four times—of SCHIP funding that would increase taxes, weaken private insurance coverage, and create a new de facto entitlement program for middle-class families, all courtesy of the beleaguered American taxpayer. A close analysis demonstrates that, if enacted, the Senate bill would actually have the unintended impact of degrading health care for many children and will not be as nearly beneficial to Texas as a more modest alternative, which I intend to support.

The original SCHIP program—again, it is worth spelling out the acronym—State Children's Health Insurance Program—was limited to those families at up to 200 percent of the official poverty level or $40,000 for a family of four. But some States have found a way to expand coverage from first children, then to parents, then to childless adults, and then to families with much higher incomes. Some States, such as New Jersey, now use SCHIP funds to cover families with income of up to 400 percent of the poverty level—up to $82,600 a year for a four-person family. So that is what I mean when I say that SCHIP is now being transmogrified, transformed into a middle-class entitlement, if this finance bill were to pass.

Minnesota, instead of using the State Children's Health Insurance Program to target relatively low-income children, as Congress intended, spends 61 percent of SCHIP funding on adults; and Wisconsin spends 75 percent of their SCHIP funding on adults. If this were the U.S. military, we would call this "mission creep." The Senate bill would encourage these distortions further. Nearly a third of the newly covered, some 2 million children, already have private insurance.

So let me be clear. What this bill, if enacted, would do would take some people who currently have private insurance and substitute taxpayer-paid-for insurance under this program because, of course, why would anybody pay for something that the Government starts giving away for free? They will drop their private insurance and many of the parents will decide to drop theirs as well, transferring these expenses to the American taxpayer.

But many SCHIP programs pay physicians at Medicaid rates; that is, the reimbursement for physicians—a reimbursement rate that is so low that many doctors simply cannot afford to take patients based on those Medicaid rates and, thus, they are refusing new patients. Ironically, the switch to Government-paid SCHIP could mean reduced health care for those recipients who decide to give up private insurance to get free insurance. But where reimbursement is at the Medicaid rate, where there are so few doctors who can afford to treat patients at those rates, children will end up with actually less care in some instances and not more.

Many supporters are happy because funding for this expanded program will be paid by tobacco users, through a 61-cent per pack cigarette tax increase. But the accounting is fundamentally flawed. To make it balance, the Senate bill pretends spending on this accelerating program will go from $8.4 billion in 2012 to only $400 million in 2013.

As our Republican leader notes, "Does anyone seriously think Congress will decide to cut SCHIP by $8 billion in one year, so that millions who rely on it will lose their health insurance?" Of course not. This is phony accounting. No business in America could run its operations this way, and the Federal Government should not try.

Supporters of the finance bill claim a badge of fiscal responsibility because this bill only uses $35 billion of the $50 billion budget authority it was given during this year's budget reconciliation. But the finance bill gets that additional $15 billion in budget authority by setting aside billions of dollars for a so-called incentive fund. The SCHIP program was designed as one huge incentive already for the States. The creation of this program says to the States: Go cover children; Congress will give you more money for doing that than we will for covering anyone else.

So why are we creating an incentive on top of another incentive? And these incentive payments, of course, will be used to go beyond covering children, which is, of course, Congress's original stated intent.

This goes from what I would call mission creep to another incremental step toward a federally controlled, Washington-dictated health care system, paid for by huge tax increases on the American taxpayer. Perhaps the answer is that this fund exists to provide expanded coverage for nontargeted populations; that is, populations Congress did not intend—adults, for example. After all, States, under the Finance Committee bill that is coming to the floor, will have relative freedom to use these funds as they see fit. Where, I ask, is the accountability? Where is the responsibility?

The finance bill also puts aside at least $2 billion in a so-called contingency fund. First an incentive fund, then a contingency fund—both slush funds. But this contingency fund will only be drawn down by $400 million total over 5 years. This represents less than 1 percent of overall spending. I think this blatantly shows the level at which this bill is overfunded. So while the bill is only claiming to spend part of the budgetary authority it is given, it is still creating two budgetary slush funds. I think it is there for another purpose. I think this is another attempt, as I said, to incrementally federalize health care.

There will be some of us who will join together, with our leader and Senator LOTT, Senator KYL, and others, to offer a scaled-down alternative called Kids First, which refocuses SCHIP on its intended purpose. It concentrates on outreach—locating and enrolling eligible children. Some 75 percent of uninsured children already qualify for either Medicaid or SCHIP. Kids First aims to sign them up. It also subsidizes eligible families to keep their private coverage and doesn't provide an incentive for them to drop their private coverage to get free coverage courtesy of the American taxpayer.

The Senate bill increases spending by $35 billion over 5 years—I should say so far because I know there are amendments that will be offered, and I think I have read Senator KERRY and others will offer amendments to bump that figure to $50 billion, and we have seen even larger figures suggested on the House side. So no telling what a conference committee will ultimately come back with. But Kids First, the alternative which will be offered by this side of the aisle, will cost only $10 billion more than the current SCHIP program.

Ironically, under Kids First, the children in my State, Texas, would come out far ahead over the Senate Finance Committee version. SCHIP, as we know, is a joint Federal-State effort involving matching Federal funds. After cutbacks for budget reasons a few years ago, Texas is now ramping up its SCHIP program, enrolling additional eligible children. However, the Senate Finance Committee bill would confiscate about $660 million that Texas has so far left unspent from prior years because we have been responsible, because we haven't used the money that was designated for children to cover adults, as 14 other States have. Under Kids First, we would keep access to all unspent funds for 2 more years so we can locate and recruit and sign up more children—the designated target for this Children's Health Insurance Program.

But here is the bottom line: Texas would have $1.6 billion in SCHIP Federal matching funds available next year under Kids First and only $1.06 billion under the Senate bill. In other words, we would be better off under the alternative rather than the Senate Finance Committee bill, and so would the children, who would be the beneficiaries of those funds. Additionally, any matching funds left unspent after that would go back to the U.S. Treasury, and that would not be used to subsidize other States that game the system and distort the program beyond Congress's original intent.

One alternative provides the prospect of better health care for Texas children, plus lower taxes, a fiscally responsible government, and more money and more control for my State. For this and other reasons I have stated, I will vote for the Kids First Act, the alternative we will offer, and not the Senate Finance Committee bill.

Mr. President, I yield the floor and reserve the remainder of our time for the Senator from New Hampshire.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, how much time remains?

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Sixteen minutes and twenty seconds.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I wanted to rise to carry on the discussion which the Senator from Texas has so eloquently begun relative to the proposal that is coming forward to the Senate today called SCHIP. Under the cloak of trying to address the issue of health care for children, we are seeing an explosion in cost, the purpose of which is not necessarily to cover children who need coverage because many of the children who are going to be covered here are already covered under private plans, but the purpose is actually to dramatically expand the role of government in the area of limited health care in this country, and it is openly acknowledged as being an effort to move down the road toward universal health care.

Independent of the substantive policy of how we approach insuring and making sure children get health insurance in this country, there is the ancillary policy of fiscal discipline. This Congress, so far, under its Democratic leadership has abandoned the concept of fiscal discipline. They are spending money on all sorts of initiatives around here that go well beyond even the extraordinarily high numbers which were put in the budget under this Democratic Congress. We have returned, without question, to the days of tax and spend. In fact, it was interesting today that there was an article in the Wall Street Journal, an editorial that listed I think it was ten different areas where there have been proposals to dramatically increase the tax burden on the American people, to gather up funds by the Democratic Party so they can then be spent on other initiatives.

This proposal, this SCHIP proposal as it comes forward to us under the auspices of the liberal leadership of the Senate, is a classic example of spending which can't be afforded and spending which uses gimmicks in order to mask its real costs.

This chart reflects the fact that the spending in this proposal jumps $35 billion—$35 billion—over a 5-year period, taking a program that could be fully funded today for about a third of that but adding an additional two-thirds on top of that in order to take care of initiatives which basically fund two things: No. 1, they fund adults under a children's health insurance program, and No. 2, they fund bringing children off of private insurance and putting them on the public insurance system so that taxpayers generally have to pay for something which is now being paid for in the private sector.

So the cost of this program jumps radically over the next 5 years, and then, in the ultimate act of fiscal cynicism and fraud, they claim the program will drop back down to being a $3.5 billion program after it has reached a peak of $16 billion in 2012. Are they going to abolish the program in 2013? Of course not. But in order to avoid their own rules of how you have to pay for things around here or are supposed to pay for things around here when you put a new program on the books, in an act, as I said, of fraud and cynicism, the liberal leadership of this Senate has decided to claim that this program, which we will be spending $16 billion on in 2012, we will suddenly only spend $3.5 billion in 2013. Ironically, that number, $3.5 billion, is even less than what the program costs today, which is about $5 billion.

So this whole area in here, this white area, is totally unfunded, unless you assume this program now being put on the books is going to suddenly end 5 years from now—which is, of course, absurd. We don't end programs in the Federal Government. We certainly don't end a program that is focused on trying to fund health care for children. So what happens is that $40 billion over the next 5 years which will be spent on this program, no doubt about it—in fact, a lot more than that if the House bill passes—is treated as if it is a virtual number, as if it doesn't exist, as if it is some sort of nonspending event by an accounting mechanism which claims that actually we are not going to spend that $40 billion, we are just going to spend this $3.5 billion on that program on an annual basis.

The disingenuousness of this reaches a new level of misrepresentation to the American taxpayer as to what the burden is that is going to be put on them as a result of this proposal. Now, why do they do this? Why do they deny there is $40 billion of spending, which they know is going to occur, which my colleagues on the other side of the aisle absolutely know is going to occur? Why do they deny it is going to happen? Why do they use this gimmick where they claim we are going back to a cost of a program which is less than it is today after we put a cost on the books that is three times what it is today? Because they want to avoid something called pay-go—pay-go—which is their representation of how they discipline the Federal budget.

Every time you listen to a colleague from the other side of the aisle talk about disciplining the Federal budget, you will hear those words: I am for pay-go; I am for pay-go. We hear it from the budget chairman incessantly. We hear it from other members of the other side of the aisle. Pay-go is the way we will discipline the Federal budget.

Well, let's see what they have done to pay-go since they have been in charge of the Congress. There is no more pay-go. It should be fraud-go. It is actually Swiss cheese-go since this Congress has been dominated by the Democratic Party.

I will bet you that everybody who ran for election from the Democratic side of the aisle to this Congress said they were going to discipline the Federal deficit using pay-go. Since they have been in office, since they have been running this Congress, they have either waived or gotten around pay-go on about 12 different occasions, representing billions of dollars of cost to the American taxpayer, of which this $40 billion item we are doing today is one of the biggest. With minimum wage, they went around pay-go; with the Water Resources Development Act, they went around pay-go; with PDUFA, they went around pay-go; with immigration reform, they went around pay-go; with the Energy bill, they went around pay-go; with the MILC bill, they went around pay-go; with the county payments or payments in lieu of taxes, at $4 billion, they went around pay-go; with the new mandatory Pell grants, $6 billion, they went around pay-go; and now here, with SCHIP, they are going around pay-go to the tune of $40 billion. Almost $90 billion has been proposed to be spent by the other side of the aisle since they took control of this Congress which should have been subject to pay-go but where they have either waived, ignored, or gimmicked pay-go out of existence. So where is the fiscal discipline? It doesn't exist. It doesn't exist.

The only thing they intend to use pay-go for is to force taxes to go up on American workers. They will use it for that, there is no question about that. When we get to the point where some of these tax issues are raised by expiring, they will say pay-go applies to that and we have to pay for that, so taxes will go up on the American workers and on the American economy. But when it comes to spending money, there is no discipline of pay-go from the other side of the aisle.

Anyone who stands on the other side of the aisle and claims that pay-go is a viable vehicle for disciplining the Federal deficit, well, the next thing they are going to tell you is they have a bridge to sell you in Brooklyn or that the check is in the mail.

The simple fact is, it is a fraud on the American taxpayer when that statement is made. This bill pretty much completes the thought that there is no more pay-go.

Then, on top of that—they are not comfortable enough in this bill to spend $40 billion and claim they are not spending it, which is exactly what they do in the second 5 years—that is not enough for the other side of the aisle. In the House, they put in language repealing one of the most important enforcement mechanisms to discipline the cost of Medicare, which is, if for 2 years the payment for the cost of Medicare from the general fund exceeds 45 percent of the overall cost of Medicare—as we all know Medicare is supposed to be an insurance program that is paid for by the HI insurance, but it also gets support by the general fund—if that cost exceeds 45 percent for 2 years in a row, then we, as a Congress, are supposed to take another look and say that is not the way Medicare is supposed to be funded. It is supposed to be funded through the HI insurance. We go back to look at disciplining Medicare spending and making it more affordable.

No. Not any longer. The House of Representatives not only spends $40 billion they claim they are not spending and don't pay for, they also, in their bill, repeal the 45-percent rule, one of the few disciplines around here which allows this body to stand up and say we are profligate. Let's get this under control.

I think the American consumer needs to know that they get what they pay for. In the last election they got a Congress which has a philosophical viewpoint which has not changed a whole lot in the last 50 years. I was here the last time Congress was dominated by the Democratic Party. I was here when Tip O'Neil ran the House of Representatives. Wow, did we spend money back then. Let me tell you, we are back to that style of governance. Only this time it is being done with the representation that there is discipline because we are using pay-go. Unfortunately, however, pay-go doesn't exist when it comes to spending. It is "fraud-go," it is "Swiss cheese-go," and the American people get stuck with the bill.

Our children and our children's children get stuck with the bill because, in order to address certain political constituencies, the other side of the aisle believes it needs to spend the money, and it does not have the courage to stand up for its own rules, the rules they put forward.

I have always said pay-go was a fraud, but the other side of the aisle marches behind that banner in budget after budget, claiming that pay-go gives us fiscal discipline. Here is $90 billion of spending in just 6 months. They have only been in charge for 6 months—$90 billion. That is a lot of money in 6 months that should have been subject to pay-go, which has been gamed, ignored, or claimed an emergency so that pay-go would not apply.

As a practical matter, let's have no more talk of pay-go in this body. Let's talk about what we are really doing on this SCHIP bill. We are going to spend $40 billion, and we do not pay for it. That is just in the next 5 years. If you extrapolated this, it actually works out to be somewhere in the $2 trillion to $3 trillion range over the life expectancy of the program, the 75-year life expectancy, which is the way we calculate things around here that deal with entitlements.

This is not fiscally responsible, and it is clear, if we continue down this path, we are going to set up a train wreck for those who come after us and have to pay the costs of this type of profligate spending which has no discipline attached to it.

I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

ORDER OF PROCEDURE

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, how much time is remaining on the Republican side?

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. About 1 minute.

Mr. DURBIN. I ask unanimous consent to preserve that minute, and if one of the Republican Senators wishes, they be given that time.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DURBIN. I speak now in the 30 minutes I understand is reserved for the majority in morning business.

GENOCIDE

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, today is a day which can be historic. Important items will be discussed on the floor of the Senate, including health insurance for literally millions of American kids. At the same time, there is a debate that has been started in New York at the United Nations Security Council. It is a debate about a genocide.

It is, thank goodness, rare that we have to address the issue of genocide in this world, but today we must. We are talking of a genocide today, in New York, at the Security Council, that has caused untold human misery, mass murder, dislocation, torture, rape, and the torching of entire villages. For 4 years the world has watched this tragedy. That's right, for 4 years.

Haven't we learned our lesson when it comes to letting genocide continue without taking action?

There is a great Senate story involving former Wisconsin Senator Bill Proxmire. In 1967, Senator Proxmire began a streak in the Senate that has never been broken. Mr. President, 18 years earlier, in 1949, President Truman had sent the United Nations Genocide Convention to the Senate for advice and consent. In 1967, it was still languishing, held up by a small band of Senators who opposed it. Many Senators just shook their head because of this opposition. Bill Proxmire rose to his feet.

Starting in 1967, Senator Proxmire made a speech every day the Senate was in session, for 19 years, imploring the Senate to adopt the Genocide Convention. All together, he gave 3,211 speeches—each one of them different. In 1986 the Senate gave its consent to the treaty.

Why did Senator Proxmire continue to give all those speeches, day after day, year after year? It wasn't just stubbornness. It was a moral obligation, and because he understood genocide was happening again. At that time it was happening in Cambodia.

Between 1975 and 1979 the Khmer Rouge murdered 2 million people. The United States wisely and bravely led the international effort to hold the Nazi co-conspirators to account at Nuremberg. We and the rest of the world failed to act while Cambodia was being turned into killing fields.

In 1994 we failed to act again when between 800,000 and 1 million people were murdered in Rwanda in 1 month.

Sadly, we have failed to take the necessary action to stop the genocide in Darfur. More than 2½ years have passed since the U.N. commission of inquiry concluded that:

> Crimes against humanity and war crimes have been committed in Darfur and may be no less serious and heinous than genocide.

Earlier this year, President Bush declared:

> For too long, the people of Darfur have suffered at the hands of a government that is complicit in the bombing, murder and rape of innocent civilians. My administration has called these actions by their rightful name: genocide. The world has a responsibility to put an end to it.

Yesterday, the new British Prime Minister, Gordon Brown, said in a joint press conference with President Bush that:

Yet it is not simply enough to acknowledge genocide. We need to follow Senator Proxmire's example in having the courage, in real time, to act against it.

The crisis in Darfur has been repeated over and over. Paul Salopek, a Chicago Tribune reporter, was captured and jailed by the Khartoum government for 34 days last year. He wrote a haunting description of what one sees when you fly over the villages of Darfur. This is what he wrote:

> Their torched huts seen from the air, look like cigarette burns on a torture victim's skin.

Most recently, Refugees International released a report documenting that:

> Rape on a mass scale is one of the hallmarks of the conflict in the Darfur region of Sudan. An estimated 300,000 people in Darfur have been killed during this genocide; 300,000 people in a country of 40 million. In the United States that would be the equivalent of over 2 million people killed.

Incredibly, the Sudanese Government claims the atrocities are part of their war on terror. At a press conference in Washington earlier this summer, Sudan's Ambassador to the United States compared the slaughter to a family quarrel, and he said:

> Just you and your cousin fighting with you.

Just this last week, Sudanese President Bashir visited Darfur and said:

People there are "living normal lives."

These are lies. This is genocide. It is calculated. It is happening on our watch, in our time.

This week, the global community has a chance to finally make a difference. I am going to join today with Senators FEINGOLD and MENENDEZ in calling for a decisive vote at the United Nations on an expanded peacekeeping force and renewed diplomatic effort in Darfur. The U.N. Security Council will vote this week, maybe even today, on a new United Nations-African Union peacekeeping force that can make a dramatic difference in stemming the violence in Darfur. It also provides an equally important opportunity for peace negotiations.

After years of duplicity in the genocide, Sudanese President Bashir agreed last month to the significant expanded joint United Nations-African Union peacekeeping force. Yet a series of his recent comments contradict that commitment, and a history of involvement in violence makes immediate action all the more important.

The need is simple—rapid deployment of the new peacekeeping force and a renewed diplomatic effort at a long-term political settlement.

I have tried in some small way to urge the members of the United Nations Security Council to act swiftly. I discussed urgency of these matters with U.N. Secretary General Ban Ki-Moon and the Ambassadors of China, Ghana, Republic of Congo, Russia, and South Africa. All were current or permanent members of the Security Council. It is the first time I have ever picked up the phone to call Ambassadors from other countries about a vote in the United Nations Security Council, but I think it is that important. It is my hope that our U.N. Ambassador, Zalmay Khalilzad, will work closely with these nations and Secretary General Ban to make these steps a reality.

I stressed to the Secretary General and to the Ambassadors that the Security Council should be firm in its mandate. We need a force with sufficient resources and numbers; a strong mandate to protect civilians, peacekeepers, and humanitarian workers; a clear U.N. command and control structure, and benchmarks with the threat of sanctions that hold the Sudanese Government accountable; no room for further stalling or delay by the Sudanese Government; a renewed diplomatic effort to bring about a long-term political settlement, including naming a Special Representative of the Secretary General to monitor implementation of a comprehensive peace agreement; and the force must be deployed as quickly as possible.

Congress, the administration, and the private sector—we all need to take action to end the genocide in Darfur. In Congress we have passed the Genocide Accountability Act, which allows the prosecution of genocide committed by anyone currently in the United States, regardless of where the genocide occurred. We have passed language in the Iraq supplemental bill that requires the Treasury Department to submit to Congress a report that lists the companies operating in the Sudanese natural resources industry, and requires the General Services Administration to report to Congress on whether the U.S. Government has an active contract with any of those companies.

Later today the House is expected to pass a bill that would support State and local divestment efforts, require companies to disclose Sudanese-related business activities, investigate whether the Federal Retirement Thrift Investment Board has invested funds in any of these companies operated in Sudan, and bar the U.S. Government from operating with any companies operating to benefit the Sudanese regime.

A few weeks ago, the Senate passed the International Emergency Economic Powers Enhancement Act, which increases civil and criminal penalties associated with violating American economic sanctions such as those against Sudan. I encourage our House counterparts to pass this bill as well.

I have introduced legislation similar to the bill the House is expected to pass today that would support State governments that decide to encourage public funds to divest from Sudan-related investments. That bill has strong bipartisan support, nearly a third of the Senate.

We tried to pass it, but someone in the Senate has put a hold on that bill. They have decided we should not move quickly to try to divest and discourage genocide. I urge whatever Republican colleague on that side has put a hold on this bill to seriously stop and consider the impact of this political move. We need to make sure the House and the Senate are on record on a bipartisan basis, clearly, unequivocally.

I have also included in the Senate Financial Services and General Government Appropriations Act language requiring the administration to report on the effectiveness of the current sanctions regime and recommended steps Congress can take.

Personally, some of us have decided to divest from Sudan-related investments in our own portfolios as a gesture of solidarity. The administration has taken some important steps. In April of this year, at the Holocaust Museum, President Bush declared rightly that the United States has a moral obligation to stop the genocide in Darfur. Recently the President took the first step toward meeting that obligation by ordering the U.S. sanctions against Sudan be tightened.

The Treasury Department is adding 30 companies that are owned or controlled by the Government of Sudan to a list of firms that are barred from U.S. financial assistance. The Office of Foreign Assets Control within the Treasury Department, working with other agencies, has worked hard to tighten economic and political sanctions.

Although these are important steps, I wish the U.S. Government, the Congress, and the President, had taken these steps sooner. Ultimately, we and the private sector must do all we can to ensure the genocide in Darfur once and for all is brought to an end.

I am going to end today with a quote from Nobel laureate and Holocaust survivor Eli Weisel:

> Take sides. Neutrality helps the oppressor, never the victim. Silence encourages the tormentor, never the tormented.

I see on the floor my colleagues from Wisconsin and New Jersey who join me today in this floor effort, this message to the United Nations. I wish to thank Senator MENENDEZ for his continuing interest in this Darfur genocide. He has carried on in the Senate a tradition started when I first came here by his predecessor, Senator Corzine.

I also wish to thank Senator FEINGOLD, who is chairman of the African Subcommittee of Foreign Relations. He has a special interest in that continent and a special dedication to ending the genocide in Darfur.

I yield the floor.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from New Jersey.

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. President, I wish to thank my distinguished colleague, Senator DURBIN, for bringing us together today to talk about the ongoing genocide in Darfur and, more specifically, the upcoming U.N. Security Council resolution and for his continuing efforts in the Senate.

I am also honored and pleased to be with Senator FEINGOLD, who has been such an incredibly powerful voice on this issue, both in his position as the chairman of the African Subcommittee on Foreign Relations and in his principle position itself. I am honored to join with them in this effort.

Today, as we speak on the Senate floor, the U.N. Security Council is negotiating a new Darfur resolution. So today we are on the Senate floor to send a loud and clear message to the United Nations. The people of Darfur need a strong and meaningful resolution that puts into action the end of the genocide and ensures that a United Nations-African Union troop force gets into Darfur.

Today, we are here to add our voices to those who call for a U.N. resolution with strong authority, for a robust hybrid United Nations-African Union force, and a full mandate and speedy deployment. It has long been clear that the overstretched and underfunded African Union troops cannot end the genocide. If this new force is not allowed in, the carnage and the destruction we have witnessed now for over 4 years will continue.

We have known that a U.N. force is the key to ending the violence in Darfur, and we have tried in the past to put it into place. Over a year ago, when I first came to the Senate, I got the Senate to pass an amendment for $60 million to fund the U.N. peacekeeping force in Darfur. I was joined by my colleagues in that effort.

Almost 1 year ago, the U.N. Security Council passed Resolution 1706, which called for 22,500 U.N. troops and police officers to support the African Union force in Sudan. Yet we still see no hybrid force on the ground. We still hear of attacks on humanitarian workers, we still learn of atrocities against civilians.

The lives of these millions of displaced persons now hang in a delicate balance between life and death. If we were in the refugee camps being attacked, who among us would be content with the counsels of: patience, patience, and delay. Who?

Let's be frank; it has been the Government of Sudan that has kept this force from entering. Now they recently have agreed to allow a force in. Yet we have heard these words before. Words mean little without real action. That is why I am pleased this new U.N. Security Council will likely include the transfer of authority to a hybrid United Nations-African Union mission that will allow the use of force to ensure the security and movement of the mission's personnel and humanitarian workers.

But to be meaningful, this force must be deployed, and it must be deployed as quickly as humanly possible. I am disappointed, however, that after rounds of negotiations, the resolution was ultimately watered down. From what I understand, there will be no reference to sanctions, there will be no right to seize and dispose of illegal arms, there will be no reference to the jingaweit, the brutal pro-Khartoum militia force responsible for many of the atrocities.

While I understand the need to negotiate a resolution that will pass, ultimately, we cannot let this manipulation continue. We cannot let Sudan's Ambassador have veto power over these lives. We cannot let nations with permanent seats and veto power on the Council continue to act irresponsibly. That is where I wish to close.

China says they generally approve, generally approve of the new resolution. They have been working, however, behind the scenes to weaken it. They reportedly helped remove references to sanctions. They reportedly objected to its "controversial tone" about genocide. Simply put, they continue to act in their own economic interest. We have seen them take some positive steps in the past, and it is positive that they are reportedly not going to block this resolution and that they may even support it.

But such a small step when China is under public international pressure is simply not enough. That is why I am pleased my resolution on China and Darfur passed the Senate last night. This resolution, which my colleagues on the floor supported, calls on China to use its unique influence and economic leverage to stop the genocide and violence in Darfur.

China has longstanding economic and military ties with Sudan, and they must use their economic leverage to do more than fill their wallet. As China prepares to host the 2008 Olympic Summer Games, we must hold the Chinese Government accountable to act consistently with the Olympic standard of preserving human dignity around the world, including in Darfur.

Once again, the international community finds itself with another opportunity to bring about real change in Darfur. The resolution being passed by the U.N. Security Council will only be meaningful if measures with teeth are included.

As John Prendergast, senior adviser to the International Crisis Group, said recently in testimony before Congress:

> Barking without biting is the diplomatic equivalent of giving comfort to the enemy.

Time has run out for negotiations. Time has run out for the Khartoum Government to balk. Time has run out for watered down U.N. Security Council resolutions. We must get that hybrid force on the ground. We must end the genocide.

If "never again" is to have real meaning, if those words we use are to have real meaning, it has to have strong action to stop the genocide, strong action that history will judge as among the righteous, anything less will lend to our collective condemnation, and to the ever-nagging conscience that will not rest as others die.

That is the choice before the U.N. Security Council. I am glad those of us here are making our voices felt so, hopefully, the Council will act and we can have meaningful action to "never again."

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I am pleased to join my colleagues on the floor today to raise the critical and timely issue of the U.N. Security Council's authorization of an expanded peacekeeping mission for the Darfur region of Sudan. Senator DURBIN has been a stalwart advocate for the people of Darfur for years and I admire and appreciate his dedication to keeping their plight at the top of Congress's agenda and to making sure we finally take strong action to help the more than 2 million displaced Darfuris who are languishing in squalid camps and punish those who continue to be responsible for their plight.

The United Nations Security Council is currently considering a resolution expected to authorize a robust peacekeeping mission to protect the innocent people of Darfur. This is of course a welcome, and overdue, effort. By now, there is little disagreement anywhere in the world that the current force of just over 7,000 courageous but underequipped and beleaguered African Union peacekeepers is not adequately protecting civilians or aid workers from attacks by rebels and government-sponsored militias, nor are they able to sufficiently safeguard humanitarian access to the tens of thousands whose survival now depends upon outside assistance. The AU force in Darfur has repeatedly been deprived of adequate resources and equipment, and yet despite this inconsistent support they have remained committed to the job. Support from the United Nations has been in theory forthcoming, for quite some time. In principle, the roadblocks have been many and the unfortunate result of this hobbled mission transition has been more violence, more displacement, and more death throughout Darfur.

The recent acceptance to expedite the transition of this mission to a more robust U.N.-AU mission is a step in the right direction, but we must bear in mind the number of agreements that have long since been overlooked, ignored, or flat-out rejected by the Sudanese Government.

And while a draft resolution being circulated indicates that the international community is actively moving forward to deploy this hybrid force, I am very disappointed that the resolution's cosponsors have succumbed to pressure from the Sudanese and deleted language which condemned the government for violations of past U.N. resolutions and peace agreements and removed the threat of sanctions in the event of continued noncompliance. The United States Ambassador to the United Nations, Mr. Zalmay Khalilzad suggests that the United States has been "flexible" and "open minded in terms of non-core issues" when negotiating this resolution, and I can only hope the administration will not show flexibility when firmness is required. I certainly understand the necessity of diplomatic compromise; however, I feel strongly that the draft resolution being circulated in New York has been unacceptably weakened.

The amended resolution begins by "Recalling all its previous resolutions and presidential statements concerning the situation in Sudan." In fact, however, this new proposal steps back from nearly a dozen Security Council resolutions, dating back to July 2004. Those resolutions were not just addressing the "situation in Sudan"—they were expressing concern over the rising violence in Darfur and the role of the Sudanese Government in perpetuating the conflict. The distinction here is an important one and should not be overlooked.

The preamble goes on to detail the development and endorsement of the so-called Addis Ababa Agreement, which laid out the three-phased approach to an unprecedented joint United Nations-African Union "hybrid" peacekeeping mission. At that time—8 months ago—then-Secretary-General Kofi Annan seemed confident that troops would be mobilizing soon, and the U.S. administration promptly welcomed what it called "the successful outcome of this historic meeting."

What appears to have been forgotten in November, and again in the current U.N. debate, is that in August of 2006—just about a year ago—the Security Council passed Resolution 1706, which authorized up to 22,500 U.N. troops and police officers for a robust United Nations peacekeeping force with the power to use all necessary means to protect humanitarian aid workers and civilian populations, as well as to seize and dispose of illegal weapons. The new resolution currently being considered in New York does not reference Resolution 1706 or the Sudanese Government's defiant refusal to comply with its provisions. Nor does it draw the appropriate lessons from the failed attempt to deploy U.N. peacekeepers in Darfur almost a year ago.

Rather than include stronger monitoring and enforcement mechanisms to ensure that the Sudanese Government and other parties to the conflict abide by existing agreements and cooperate with the new peacekeeping mission, the resolution's cosponsors appear to have backed down to Sudanese pressure. Their weakened resolution omits a condemnation of Sudan for failing to ensure humanitarian aid reaches those in need, deletes reference to evidence of violations of the UNSC-mandated arms embargo—which many outside experts have noted has been repeatedly violated with little consequence—drops a request that the Secretary General immediately report any breach of this or previous resolutions and agreements, and removes a threat that the U.N. would take "further measures"—in other words, sanctions—in the event of noncompliance. How can we believe that individuals will be held accountable for their actions when we have seen such entrenched impunity?

In terms of the peacekeeping mission envisioned for Darfur,this new resolution is much less ambitious than Resolution 1706. The new "UNAMID" mission is referred to as an "operation," rather than a "force," and rather than giving peacekeepers the authority to "use all necessary means" to protect civilians and aid workers, the new resolution allows them only to "take all necessary action." These semantic distinctions reveal a worrisome retreat from the robust, capable mission authorized in Resolution 1706. And yet, the Sudanese Government has criticized even this diluted resolution. As I said before, diplomatic compromise is important, but not as important as making sure we finally have the tools to punish and put a stop to atrocities.

Sudan's obstruction of this most recent international effort to end the genocide in Darfur should not surprise anyone. After all, this is the same regime we saw attack its own citizens in indiscriminate bombing raids and obstruct humanitarian access during 2 decades of bloody civil war with southern Sudan. These same tactics are being used today in Darfur.

Last week, in its first overall review of Sudan's record for more than a decade, the U.N.'s independent Human Rights Committee said that "widespread and systematic serious human rights violations—including murder, rape, forced displacement and attacks against the civil population—have been and continue to be committed with total impunity throughout Sudan and particularly in Darfur." The only thing more disturbing than the Sudanese Government's practice of organized atrocities as a method of governance is the inability of the international community so far to put a stop to these crimes and secure justice for the victims.

How many more families must be displaced? How many more innocent lives lost? How many more U.N. resolutions, presidential statements, political speeches, and public rallies will be needed? How much evidence of calculated persecution will it take before the international community stands up to the Sudanese Government and the rebels, brings them to the negotiating table, and deploys an expanded peacekeeping mission to protect civilians and ultimately, help secure the peace, in a region that for too long has received much attention but little action?

Although the revised resolution omits the original reference to Chad and the Central African Republic, it does express "concern that the ongoing violence in Darfur might further negatively affect the rest of Sudan as well as the region." The short- and long-term impacts of the crisis in Darfur are real, far-reaching, and very troubling. The humanitarian consequences will require massive logical coordination and rehabilitation assistance. Economically, the rebuilding of infrastructure and livelihoods will demand additional resources and technical support. And this will be required not just for Darfur but for the whole of Sudan, as well as the broader region.

If this U.N. resolution is passed as it currently stands, we can expect the Sudanese Government to try to evade its requirements and agreements without a single consequence. Should that happen, the toll of the genocide in Darfur will continue to mount—in lives lost, in persons displaced, and in fundamental human values that the international community has failed to uphold.

AMENDMENT NO. 2530

Mr. BAUCUS. I call up my amendment at the desk.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will report.

The Senator from Montana [Mr. BAUCUS], for himself, Mr. GRASSLEY, Mr. ROCKEFELLER, and Mr. HATCH, proposes an amendment numbered 2530.

Mr. BAUCUS. I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(The amendment is printed in today's RECORD under "Text of Amendments.")

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, the Senate now has before it the reauthorization of the Children's Health Insurance Program, otherwise known as CHIP. Pending is a substitute amendment that reflects the bill reported by the Finance Committee by a vote of 17 to 4, a strong bipartisan vote.

The bipartisan package Finance Committee colleagues and I crafted will give millions more American children the healthy start they need to lead a long, productive life.

Behind me is a photo of Abigale. Who is Abigale? Abigale is from Missoula, MT. At the time the photo was taken she was 4 years old. Abigale has two siblings, and they live with their mother and father. All three of the children participate in the Montana Children's Health Insurance Program. When Abigale was 2½ years old, she fell down, split her head open and had to have nine stitches. Her medical care was covered by the Children's Health Insurance Program. That same year her 6-year-old brother broke his arm twice and CHIP paid for the surgery, the hospital stay, and all of the medical care he received.

Fawn, Abigale's mother, is thankful to have CHIP not only for the emergency care it provides but also it helps immunize children against childhood diseases and allows them to get the checkups they need for school each year.

Not having health insurance clearly affects a child's life. Uninsured kids do not go to the doctor. They do not have checkups. They remain undiagnosed for serious childhood conditions such as asthma and diabetes. They do not have vaccinations, and they put themselves and their schoolmates at risk for serious illnesses. Kids without health insurance do not have eye exams and are less likely to get glasses, and often cannot see the chalkboard at school. They are not diagnosed with learning disabilities, and they struggle through their classes. Kids who do not have insurance do not see the dentist. They do not get their cavities filled. They do not get braces, and they risk serious illness due to poor dental health. Adequate health care creates a critical foundation for a healthy life.

No one wants innocent children to suffer. Investing in children's health is the compassionate choice, but it is more than that. Insuring our children is a smart economic investment in our Nation's future. Why? Because it is the only choice, if we wish to imbue future generations with strong minds and healthy bodies. It is quite simple. Health insurance has a direct effect on a child's performance at school. Healthy children are more likely to go to school, and they are more likely to do well in school. Then they are more likely to become productive members of the workforce.

Children with health insurance are less likely to receive expensive emergency room care. Parents of children with health insurance are less likely to miss days at work to care for their sick children. When America insures our children, we are all better off, we all benefit.

Health insurance is especially important to the success of minority populations. African-American, Hispanic, and Native American children are all less likely to have health insurance. They are more likely to be poor. Providing affordable coverage is one of the best ways to reduce the gap for these kids.

CHIP has already helped to narrow racial and ethnic disparities in access to care among low-income children. But we can do better. We can continue to narrow that gap.

Health insurance is also a key ingredient to alleviating child poverty. Low-income families without insurance often get stuck in a bitter cycle of medical debt. Parents struggling to make ends meet should not have to choose between buying asthma inhalers for their children and putting dinner on the table.

So I hope my fellow Senators will make the right choice, the only choice. I hope they will join me in making our children's future, and America's future, a brighter one.

I yield the floor.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Vermont.

Mr. SANDERS. Mr. President, this debate is not just about extending health care to our children. It is about our national priorities. It is about who we are as a nation. It is about which side we are on.

For the last 6 years, we have had a President who has insisted, as one of his major priorities, on more and more tax breaks for the very wealthiest people in our country. People who are worth millions of dollars and people who are worth billions of dollars have, collectively, received hundreds and hundreds of billions of dollars in tax breaks. But when it comes to those people most in need, those people who are most vulnerable, including the children of our country—the kids who are 2 or 3 years of age—who have health care needs, this President, tragically and embarrassingly, has not been there. If you are wealthy and powerful, he is there. If you are a child and vulnerable, AWOL—he is not listening. In fact, he has been in opposition.

It is no secret to the American people that our current health care system is disintegrating. Today, 46 million Americans, including over 9 million children, have no health insurance whatsoever, and tens of millions more are underinsured, with high premiums and copayments. Costs are soaring every single year, and small businesses in my State of Vermont and throughout this country are no longer, in many cases, able to offer any health insurance. Throughout the country today workers are being asked to pay a higher and higher percentage of the cost of their health insurance, and many of them cannot afford to do that because health insurance premiums have been rising four times faster than workers' earnings since the year 2000.

In the midst of all of that—more and more uninsured, costs soaring—we end up spending twice as much per capita on health care as any other country and remain—we remain—the only Nation in the industrialized world that does not guarantee health care to all our people as a right of citizenship. Today, we are debating about whether we should expand the SCHIP program to 3 million more children. But all over the industrialized world, every child in those countries has health care as a right of citizenship.

Despite the over $2 trillion—$2 trillion—we now spend on health care—money which, to a significant degree, goes to enrich the insurance companies and the drug companies—our health status measures, including infant mortality and life expectancy, rank among the lowest of developed countries. We spend twice as much as other countries per person on health care—with over 9 million children who have no health insurance—and yet health status measures are lower than many of our allies around the world.

There is no question but that in the face of rising costs and a broken health care system, we need to make fundamental changes in the way we do health care in this country. We need to develop a cost-effective national health care program which guarantees health care to all our people, and study after study suggests we can do that without spending any more than we currently spend on our wasteful and bureaucratic nonsystem. That is what we have to do, and that is what I will fight for as long as I am in the Senate.

Today, we are discussing, despite what some may say, what is, in fact, a modest proposal—a modest proposal. We are discussing an expansion of the SCHIP program, which would expand health care to some 3 million more children. Over 9 million American children today are uninsured, and all we are doing today is saying: Let's expand health insurance to one-third of those children. If this bill were passed in 5 minutes, two-thirds of the uninsured children would remain uninsured, and in the United States of America we can do a lot better than that.

As Chairman BAUCUS has said, as Senator OLYMPIA SNOWE said last night, investing in the health insurance of our children is a good investment. It is cost effective. Today throughout this country there are children who are unseen by medical professionals. They are developing illnesses which are undetected. Those illnesses become worse as they get older. They end up in the hospital. It costs significant sums of money to treat these young people, as they age, in hospitals, when we could have eased their suffering and saved money by getting to their illnesses when they were young, if they had the opportunity to see a doctor.

As Chairman BAUCUS also mentioned, there is the issue of dental care in this country. In my own State of Vermont and throughout this country, there are millions and millions of young people who simply cannot gain access to a dentist who have teeth rotting in their mouths in the United States of America, in the year 2007. That is not acceptable to me, and I hope it is not acceptable to my colleagues in the Senate.

Given this sorry state of affairs regarding health care in this country in general, and the needs of our kids in particular, I find it ironic we are having any debate about increasing health insurance coverage for children under the SCHIP program.

Let me be very clear, in terms of providing health insurance to our kids, I would go—and will go—a lot further than this legislation. I have, in fact, recently introduced S. 1564, the All Healthy Children Act of 2007, which would provide health insurance to every child in America. That is where I think we should be going.

Some people, including the President of the United States, are saying: My goodness, this bill will cost $35 billion over a 5-year period; we can't afford that.

But I find it ironic that many of those same people, including the President of the United States, believe, among other things—among many other things—that we can afford to repeal entirely the estate tax, which would benefit only the top three-tenths of 1 percent of the American people. The very richest people in this country would, if the President had his way, receive $1 trillion in tax breaks over 20 years. That is $1 trillion in tax breaks over 20 years going to the wealthiest three-tenths of 1 percent of the American people. That we can afford. But when it comes to spending $35 billion over a 5-year period for the children of our country, we do not have the money.

I find it ironic, if we repealed the inheritance tax, one family, the Walton family who owns Wal-Mart, would receive $32 billion in tax breaks. Yet we are trying to insure 3 million children today for $35 billion. So $32 billion for one family; $35 billion for 3 million children.

To my mind, what this debate is about is getting our priorities right as a nation. I am getting a little bit tired of hearing many of my colleagues, and hearing this President, talk about family values, when we have almost 10 million children in this country uninsured. If you are interested in family values, you are interested in the future of this country, you are interested in the children of this country.

This is a modest proposal. It is a first-step proposal, and it should be passed and passed immediately.

Thank you very much.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Montana.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I might ask how much time the Senator from New Jersey would like to consume. I very much appreciate and admire him and thank the Senator from New Jersey for speaking on this amendment. It would be helpful to know how long he would be speaking. He can have whatever time he wishes.

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. President, I would say between 15 and 20 minutes.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senator from New Jersey be recognized to speak for 20 minutes.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BAUCUS. I thank the Chair.

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. President, I thank my colleague, the distinguished chairman of the Finance Committee, not only for making the time available but, more importantly, for his leadership on this critical issue of insuring the Nation's children. There is no stronger voice in the Senate on this issue. I am incredibly proud to have worked with Senator BAUCUS, someone who is keenly interested in this program. I appreciate what he has done in bringing a solid bill to the floor.

I rise today on behalf of our Nation's children and working families. I am reminded every day when I come to the Senate that it is my privilege—privilege—to represent these individuals in the Senate, and with every vote I cast in this great Chamber, I try to always ensure I am protecting and serving our hard-working families.

This week, we are considering a bill to reauthorize our children's health program—a program that affects millions of families across the country. This week, every vote—every vote—we cast will have a direct impact on the health and well-being of our Nation's children and their families.

I cannot overstate how important and how successful this program has been. It currently provides health care to 6.6 million children. Sometimes I think it is important to remember exactly what it means to provide health care for children. It is the immunization shot before school begins. It is a well-child doctor visit that catches early signs of cancer. It is the emergency care coverage after a car accident. It is the new eyeglass prescription to finally see the blackboard. It is an x ray for a broken ankle and a prescription medication for a strep throat. It is about ensuring the well-being of that child so they can fulfill their God-given potential.

Proper coverage can be the difference between life and death, between health and sickness, and between compassion and heartlessness.

In the next few days, we have choices to make, and I hope each of my colleagues ask themselves one question before they cast their vote: Is this good for our Nation's children? Because that should be the only question and the only goal.

I am proud of my home State of New Jersey for always keeping this goal in its mind. Our program, New Jersey FamilyCare, currently covers over 126,000 children and 80,000 parents. These are working families who don't qualify for Medicaid but can't afford private coverage, and they don't get health care at their job. They work at some of the toughest jobs our State has to offer. They get up every day, 5 days a week—sometimes more—to try to make ends meet for their families, but they don't have health insurance. These are families who, without the children's health program, would yet be another American family cast into the ocean of the uninsured. This program saves them from that fate.

Let me take a moment to humanize what we are talking about, because we talk about these programs in the abstract. They are about lives; they are about people. Elizabeth Geronikos relied on the children's health program for her necessary allergy and asthma medication when her father suddenly lost his job. Jonathan Hale, who discovered a cyst in his brain, was able to get medical attention that his family would not otherwise have been able to afford because of the children's health insurance program. The Cannon family no longer has to worry about their son Jason, who now has a constant supply of asthma medication and has suffered no serious asthma attacks since being on the Children's Health Insurance Program. This is truly a life-changing, if not a lifesaving, program.

But there are also stories of children who were not so lucky. Devante Johnson, who depended on Medicaid for his cancer treatment, died, not for failed chemotherapy, but because his paperwork was never processed. He was 14 years old. Deamonte Driver died because he did not receive treatment for an abscessed tooth—something that, if treated early, would clearly not have been fatal. He was 12 years old. These stories are heartbreaking not only because a child's life was lost but also because it could have been prevented.

We must ensure that no more children go without treatment they need and that no more lives are lost. Our job as Senators is to protect these children. What greater honor and responsibility do we have but protecting our children? As a father, I can't imagine the anguish I would feel if I could not provide health care for my son and daughter. Thus, as a Senator, I feel it is our obligation to provide health care for every single child. I strongly believe we have a responsibility to ensure that no child in America goes to bed at night without proper health care and treatment, and that is why this reauthorization is so crucial.

Under this bill, over the next 5 years we would be able to continue covering the 6.6 million children currently enrolled, and we would be able to reach out and cover an additional 3.2 million children. So the answer to the question, Is this good for the Nation's children, is clearly yes, especially for those 3.2 million children waiting to receive care. That answer is a resounding "yes." There are even more whom we must work to cover.

I want to ask my colleagues who say they may not support this bill, Where are the values we talk about in this institution? Where are the family values voices that so often are heard in this Chamber? Now is not the time to be silent. Now is when families need you most. Now is the time to stand by your values and stand up to protect our future generation.

To these colleagues, I wish to take a moment to answer some questions about New Jersey's effort to reach out and enroll more children. Over the past few weeks, New Jersey has received a lot of attention for covering children up to 350 percent of the Federal poverty level. In our regard, we think we are doing the right thing, and the statistics prove we are right. I can understand that some might think these families have enough money to afford private insurance, but for New Jersey families, that is simply not the case. New Jersey families face higher living costs, and they get less return on their Federal dollar, so we cannot set a policy that suggests that one size fits all.

I did some of the math which I want to share with my colleagues. At the top end, a working New Jersey family, their family budget, shows they have about $4,428 in income. Housing in New Jersey is incredibly expensive, about $1,500 a month. Food for that family is $547; transportation to get to work, or if they happen to have a car to pay for their commutes back and forth, with the high gas prices, $820; child care, if they are not in school, and health insurance. I looked up under the Bureau of Banking and Insurance what is the average health insurance coverage for a family a month—a month. The statistic on the Web site is $2,065. So that puts this family, if they have to be forced to purchase health insurance, in the negative $1,200 a month. That means they can't make ends meet. This doesn't take into account any unforeseen circumstance on the family budget. So it doesn't end up adding up. That is why this program is so important.

That is why, when New Jersey enrolls children up to 350 percent of the Federal poverty level, they do it because without this coverage, we would have thousands more children more without health insurance. Purchasing a private plan, no matter what tax incentives you give—I hear some of our colleagues talk about giving a $5,000 maximum credit per family. Well, that is great. That buys us 2½ months of insurance. What do we do for the rest of the year for that family? Do we roll the dice on their health care? I don't think so—not when we as an institution have some of the best health care in the Nation.

I am grateful to the Finance Committee for recognizing what we already knew on a bipartisan basis: The one-size-fits-all approach doesn't work. Remember, our objective is to cover more children, not less. I can't believe I even need to mention what I am about to say, but in light of some of the comments I have heard over the past few weeks about the President saying: Well, let them go to the emergency room, I think it might be necessary to look at what happens to children without health insurance and how they suffer serious consequences.

Research has shown that uninsured children not only miss regular checkups and visits to the doctors for less serious conditions that ultimately become far more serious in their personal health and far more consequential and far more expensive, but they also receive less than lower quality care. In fact, uninsured children admitted to a hospital due to injuries were twice—twice—as likely to die while in the hospital as their insured counterparts, and that is simply unacceptable.

There is no morality if upon hearing this, every Member of this Chamber does not do everything in his or her power to cover more children. It is, I believe, a moral obligation. I often hear about the value of life and I cherish it as well. Now is the time to honor the value of the lives of these children.

Another way New Jersey has been successful in covering more children is because we also cover low-income and working parents. In New Jersey, we have found a strong correlation between enrollment of parents and enrollment of children. After the State implemented its parent expansion in 2000, not only did it experience rapid enrollment of parents, but it also saw a significant increase in the enrollment of children, which is our goal. In 2002, the State stopped enrolling parents, and what happened? As parent enrollment began to fall, children's enrollment began to level off. Once the State began reenrolling parents in 2005, children's coverage began to rise again. There is clear evidence that by allowing those States that choose to do so to cover parents, you increase the number of children who have health coverage, achieving our ultimate goal of covering more children and, by the way, we end up covering more Americans.

To further prove this point, former Congressional Budget Office Director Peter Orszag recently stated that:

> Restricting eligibility to parents does have an effect on take up among children, in part because when you pick up the parent you are more likely to pick up the child.

Thus, if we stop covering parents under the Children's Health Insurance Program, as some in the Congress and the White House want to do, you end up covering fewer children.

In fact, Peter Orszag said:

> For every 3 of 4 parents you lose, you lose 1 or 2 kids.

Based on this, in New Jersey, if we were forced to disenroll all of our parents, over 40,000 children would lose their coverage. This doesn't help us achieve our goal of covering more children.

So again, we have to ask: Is covering parents of eligible children good for our Nation's children? The answer is clearly yes.

As I said at the beginning of my statement, I fully support the legislation we are considering today. Senator BAUCUS has done an excellent job. I appreciate the bipartisan vote of the committee. I am proud of the reauthorization bill because of what it prioritizes, but also because I know how hard it was to reach this compromise. This is a bipartisan bill that Members of both sides of the aisle support. I know it has taken long nights and serious conversation and many difficult decisions to reach where we are today. I appreciate again Senator BAUCUS's incredible efforts, the members of the committee, as well as Majority Leader REID, for their efforts on behalf of the program.

That being said, I simply want to say that if I had my druthers, I would have sought to achieve a greater height. I understand that so would many of the Members who actually created the compromise. I would have liked to have seen, as I did as a member of the Senate Budget Committee, $50 billion provided. I worked hard to make sure we had that in the budget resolution. I know that is the funding that will be necessary to reach out to the 6 million eligible but uninsured children in America, and it is the funding these children deserve.

Another area of major concern is the lack of language to provide health care for legal immigrant children and pregnant women in the Children's Health Insurance Program. I am a proud cosponsor of the bipartisan Legal Immigrant Children's Health Improvement Act, also known as ICHIA, which would have repealed the morally objectionable law that prohibits new legal immigrants from accessing Medicaid and CHIP until they have lived in the United States for 5 years. I think we should have the flexibility for States to make that decision.

I am proud that in my home State of New Jersey, they have taken it upon themselves to use 100 percent of State funds to cover over 8,000 legal immigrant pregnant women and children at a cost of over $22 million. The State has temporarily fixed the problem, but I had hoped Congress would do the same. How can you tell a 7-year-old child with an ear infection he has to wait 5 years to see the doctor? How can you tell a child who may have the incipiency of some incredibly terrible disease you have to wait 5 years to go see the doctor? It seems to me we can't bar these families from accessing our health care supply simply because they haven't lived here long enough. During the immigration debate, our colleagues emphasized the difference between those who are here legally and those who are not. So it is appalling to me that a legal immigrant child—one whose family waited their time to come to this country, came here legally, obeyed the law, are working, paying taxes—is still subject to the lash of those people who, even for a child who is here legally, seem to punish. It seems to me that is simply wrong.

Let me close by addressing the President's veto threat. He is basically opposed to this bill because he says it covers too many children and families. I don't know how more outrageous and unacceptable a statement can be. I find it embarrassing that some in Washington—those who have the best health care coverage in the world—would propose to cut America's neediest families—neediest families who work hard every day, because if you are poor, you are on Medicaid. These are families who get up and work hard, don't have enough to pay insurance, don't have coverage through work, and can't afford it. Yet the President of the United States, who has the best coverage in the world, and the Vice President of the United States, whom we saw recently in the hospital—happy that everything went well for him—have no worries. They have no worries every night—and for them to say these children are less worthy than them. If the President had his way, over 110,000 New Jerseyans would lose their coverage, and tens of thousands more across the Nation would lose their coverage. I find that morally reprehensible.

I find it ironic that the President doesn't want to cover parents with this program, considering the fact that since 2001, it was his administration that granted 24 waivers for adult coverage in 15 States, including my home State of New Jersey. In fact, when a waiver was issued in 2003 to New Jersey, the administrator of CMS, the Federal agency that supervises the program, said:

Tom Scully, Administrator of CMS, the Federal agency overseeing this program, said we are setting an example.

In 2004, President Bush made a promise to insure all of the Nation's children, but his latest proposal would only serve to cut children and increase the number of uninsured. Rather than adding to the ranks of the uninsured, we should be working together to expand access to even more children and families. Mr. President, it is time to make good on your word.

It is time to make good on your promise. It is time to cover all children. At the end of the day, this bill is about low-income and working families getting much needed care. This is about our Nation's children having access to a doctor for preventive care and receiving treatments for more serious conditions. This is about the health and safety of current and future generations.

There is only one question left to be asked: Is this good for our Nation's children? The answer is yes.

Let me close with a great Republican I admire, Abraham Lincoln. He said:

> A child is a person who is going to carry on what you have started. He [and I add she] is going to sit where you are sitting, and when you are gone, attend to those things which you think are important. You may adopt all the policies you please, but how they are carried out depends on him. He will assume control of your cities, states, and nations. All your books are going to be judged, praised, or condemned by him. The fate of humanity is in his hands. So it might be well to pay him some attention.

I ask my colleagues to now pay attention to our children and support this important bill. It is important our children. It is for our families. It is in pursuit of our values, and it is for the well-being of our country.

I yield the floor and yield back the remainder of my time.

(Ms. KLOBUCHAR assumed the Chair.)

Mr. BAUCUS. Madam President, I highly compliment the Senator from New Jersey. He is a tireless advocate to make this legislation even better than it was, especially on behalf of parents. There are other groups in his State that are very deserving. I thank him publicly. He has talked to me many times very earnestly, with a real desire to make sure the people in his State are adequately taken care of. I thank the Senator for his tireless advocacy.

I inquire of the Senator from Arkansas, roughly how much time does she wish to consume?

Mrs. LINCOLN. I hope I can have somewhere between 15 and 20 minutes.

Mr. BAUCUS. I ask unanimous consent that the Senator from Arkansas be recognized to speak for 20 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Arkansas is recognized.

Mrs. LINCOLN. Madam President, I thank Chairman BAUCUS for his tireless effort here in really portraying what I think is a tremendous priority for so many of us in the Senate and certainly in the Finance Committee.

As a mother of twin boys—and I know our Presiding Officer is a mother of a daughter who is a year older than my boys—I know all too well of the importance of reliable health insurance coverage for children. My husband and I have experienced the sleepless nights looking after a sick child. But we also have the comfort of knowing that when dawn comes, we have the opportunity, through health insurance, to seek out health care through a pediatrician or, if it should be worse, to be able to go to the emergency room and know we are covered, to know we can seek that health care for our children when they need it the most, with the confidence that with that health insurance we can continue to care for their needs.

In situations such as these, health insurance coverage is critical not only to the lifelong health of a child but also to a family's peace of mind. I think that is what we are about here today—our ability as Senators to be able to step outside the box of being a Senator and really think about what it means to be a hard-working American, to be a parent, and to not just think of what it means to us and our families as Federal employees and what we have access to in health care but translating that to the needs of all hard-working Americans and to understand how important it is to them and to their children too.

We have to, in this debate, step outside and put ourselves in the shoes of the hard-working Americans who need health insurance for their children. That peace of mind should not only belong to those families who can afford private health insurance; it should also belong to working families who are struggling to make ends meet in today's world, who are the strength of the fabric of this Nation, those hard-working families who are going to jobs day in and day out—and sometimes more than one job—to keep the needs of their families, as was listed by the Senator from New Jersey, to make sure their families stay whole.

Coming to the bottom of that list and recognizing how expensive health care costs are for their children, we need to make sure the fabric of this Nation stays strong. We do so by not only supporting those working families and their children but by establishing priorities in this country. That is why I rise to speak on behalf of the State Children's Health Insurance Program, or SCHIP, a Federal-State partnership which today provides much needed health care coverage for more than 6 million children across this great country.

In conjunction with Medicaid, CHIP has been tremendously successful in reducing the number of uninsured children in my State and across our country. Since the program's inception 10 years ago, the number of children without health care coverage has dropped by one-third. That is something we can be proud of and that we can build on.

During that time, I am proud that Arkansas has become a national leader in reducing its number of uninsured children from over 20 percent in 1997 to 10 percent today. Now, nearly 65,000 of Arkansas' children currently receive coverage through CHIP or, as we know it in Arkansas, ARKids First.

Despite this success, an estimated 9 million children remain uninsured, nearly two-thirds of whom are already eligible for CHIP or for Medicaid nationwide—9 million children, Madam President. Those children belong to parents just like us. Their parents care for them just as we try to care for our children—yet not having the comfort of knowing their health care needs could be and should be covered.

I am certainly proud that the Senate Finance Committee has recently taken steps to reach more of these children, and I do wish to commend Chairman BAUCUS and Senators GRASSLEY, ROCKEFELLER, and HATCH, as well as their staffs, for their incredible dedication, the vision and leadership they have shown on this issue, their tireless energy in sticking with coming together to bring about a compromise—a much needed compromise—and the extraordinary effort they have put forth particularly over the past few months, which has made renewal of CHIP much more of a reality for America's families.

The CHIP reauthorization package that was overwhelmingly approved in our Finance Committee—by a vote of 17 to 4—applies the lessons of the past 10 years and builds upon the success of the program by giving States more of the tools they need while preserving their flexibility to strengthen their program and ultimately cover more children. In doing so, it would provide an additional $35 billion over 5 years that will allow States to preserve coverage for the children who are currently enrolled, while reaching an additional 3.2 million uninsured low-income children.

This proposal would also provide much needed funding to States for outreach and enrollment efforts to reach many of those who are currently uninsured and yet eligible. It also takes steps to ensure that they get a healthy start by providing care for pregnant women and establishing pediatric quality measures to improve the level and efficiency of the care they do receive. How important that is as we have begun in this country to look at the quality measures of health care, particularly for our elderly. Why is it not equally important to look at the quality measures for the pediatric care that goes to our children?

I have long supported improving access to health care coverage for pregnant women, not only because it is vital to the health of mothers and infants, but it also often reduces future health care costs. What an incredible return on our money—to see expectant mothers going full-term to deliver a child that has a much greater opportunity to perform, to be healthy, and to be less costly later in life due to health care needs. In fact, it was reported in 2005 that the socioeconomic costs—medical, educational, and lost productivity—associated with preterm birth in the United States was at least $26.2 billion. Every year, more than 500,000 infants are born prematurely, an increasing number that now affects nearly one out of every eight babies.

This is of particular concern to me because, in recent reports, more than 13 percent of births in our State of Arkansas were premature, ranking it among the States with the highest incidence of preterm babies. So many of us have been faced with those choices. I know when I served in the House of Representatives and my husband and I were so excited to receive the news that we were expecting twins, I also received the news that at my age, and certainly the work environment I was in and all of the pressures, I was also at risk for a premature delivery. I had the wonderful opportunity to make a decision that I would not run for reelection and that I could minimize my job in order to do everything within my power to bring those children into this world in a safe manner.

I look across this great country, and not all working mothers have that opportunity. They don't have those choices to be able to step aside and do everything they possibly can with the health care they receive to bring their babies into this world in the healthiest fashion. One thing we can do is to provide them the prenatal care they need and the advice and consultation to be able to do what they can to ensure those babies are delivered after a full term.

By taking needed steps to improve access to care for pregnant women, I am confident we can make strides to improve health outcomes for them and for their children. If, in fact, we don't want to do it for the sake of bringing healthy babies into this world, who are going to be future leaders of this country, we should do it as an investment. The long-term investment of a healthier child being born makes so much more sense than the long-term cost of a premature delivery and the health care needs that child would have for the rest of his or her life.

The Finance Committee proposal would also provide the Federal authority and resources to invest in the development and testing of quality measures for children's health care. Of the 146 medical schools in this country, every one of them has a department in pediatrics. We can make an incredible investment in quality measures that would give us not only the outcome we want but also the cost savings in overall health care we so much desire.

This provision would help ensure that States and other payers, providers, and consumers have the clinical quality measures they need to assess and improve the quality and performance of children's health care services.

Additionally, the bill would allow some States to use income-eligibility information from other Federal programs, such as school lunch programs, to speed up the enrollment of eligible children into CHIP or Medicaid. The Senator from New Mexico has done so much hard work on making good common sense out of the mounds and mounds of paperwork people already have to fill out, using the knowledge we already have and those mounds of paperwork to get those children enrolled in the program for which they already qualify. It would simplify the administrative process for States and certainly reduce the paperwork burdens on our families.

The bill would also provide greater access to much needed dental care for lower income children and would ensure that children enrolled in CHIP would have access to mental health care that is on par with the level of medical and surgical care they are currently provided.

As we look at our children and their growth, understanding the unbelievable essentials in dental care, not only so our children can get the nutrition they need but they can pay attention in school, they can get the education they need, which allows them to grow and be a part of this incredible Nation in a productive way, the success of CHIP over the past 10 years is itself a great example of the things we can accomplish when we reach out across the aisle, when we work in a bipartisan way, when we come together on our priorities and put aside the partisan differences.

This bipartisan proposal we are considering today is another. We should all agree that providing health care for our children is certainly one area where partisan politics should be placed aside. There is no room for partisan politics as we address our children. After all, it is a moral issue, an investment in our Nation's most precious resource—our children; an investment in a future of our country, its leadership, and its productivity. Who can disagree with that?

As we move forward together to reauthorize this successful program, I am hopeful we can do so in the same bipartisan spirit that was demonstrated in the creation of this program, the 10-year implementation of this program, and in the recent reauthorization of this program in the Finance Committee.

It is unfortunate the President and the Secretary of Health and Human Services feel differently. In fact, their proposal to increase the CHIP funding by only $5 billion over the next 5 years falls so short of the funding needed to simply maintain coverage of those currently enrolled in the program. To justify their proposal, the administration actually claimed the number of uninsured children in our Nation was only 20 percent of the estimates calculated by the nonpartisan CBO.

Instead of forcing over a million children—a million children—to be dropped from their current health insurance provider, shouldn't we all agree that at the very least absolutely no child should lose coverage as a result of reauthorization?

The President has been adamant about leaving no child behind when it comes to their education, but shouldn't we apply this to their health care as well? Shouldn't we recognize the reason, or a part of the reason, our No Child Left Behind in education has been less productive is because we failed to provide the resources—the much needed resources—to implement good policies, basic policies? It is fine to talk about these things, but if we don't put our money where our mouth is, the health care doesn't get to the children who need it.

Moreover, shouldn't we all move forward in covering as many of the 9 million uninsured children we possibly can; finding the middle ground, as we have done in the Finance Committee? I wholeheartedly believe so, and that is why I rise in strong support of this legislation.

Some of my colleagues have raised concerns about our efforts to expand this successful program. They have argued the $35 billion compromise that was reached in the Finance Committee is too much money. You know what. It is going to cost us something to cover more children. Let us take a step back and get some perspective on how much money we are actually talking about.

Our current proposal to reauthorize CHIP provides a total of $60 billion over 5 years—$25 billion in the baseline, with an increase of $35 billion. In contrast, our operations in Iraq are now estimated to cost taxpayers $10 billion per month. So for the amount of money, nonbudgeted money, we now spend in Iraq every 6 months, we can cover an estimated 10 million lower-income children with much needed health care for 5 years—5 years. We are talking about money that is completely offset—a program that is completely paid for.

How you spend your money—and this goes for families and for Government—tends to reflect your values and your priorities. We all have to look at where our priorities are in our own family, and we as Senators and stewards of this land and this great country and its resources have to set priorities as well, and they should reflect our values—our values and our priorities. So I ask my colleagues today: What could be a bigger priority than the well-being of our Nation's most precious resource, our children?

Look at our families, the families who are the fabric of this country. One of the things they need the most is time—time to be a family, to sit down to dinner with their children, to be able to go to a PTA meeting or a parent-teacher conference, to take a small vacation, to care for an aging parent. They need time to do that. It is not easy to find that time. If you are a single parent, perhaps a single mom, but even if you are a working family, a lower income working family, working two or three jobs to be able to hit that budget the Senator from New Jersey talks about, to make sure you can hit all those issues you have to deal with, whether it is rent or groceries or certainly any type of health care you could access, it takes time—time away from our families, the time needed to build strong families, to keep their children whole and focused on the good values we want our children to have.

Minimum wage was a great example. Minimum wage was much needed, with over 10 years of not having seen that increase. What an important role it plays in providing our families greater time to be a family. At a time when more and more Americans are struggling to find affordable health care, CHIP has allowed us to make coverage more accessible for millions of children, coverage that is critical to the lifelong health of a child and to a family's peace of mind. I urge each and every one of my colleagues to explore your own conscience, not just thinking about your family but thinking about the millions of American families out there today who want nothing less for their children than what we want for ours.

Let's set aside partisan influences and support this critical effort to invest in the health care of our children, not only for the future of our Nation but for the well-being of millions of American children in working-class, lower income families. They are depending on us, the stewards of this body, the stewards of this country, and it is time we fulfill our commitment to them. I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting legislation to expand health care coverage for children.

I have been proud to work with Chairman BAUCUS and Senator GRASSLEY and others in this effort, and I certainly commend them for their leadership and good work. I look to this body to stand up and to show who it is we are and what it is we are made of on behalf of America's children.

I yield the floor.

Mr. WYDEN. Madam President, before she leaves the floor, let me thank my seatmate on the Senate Finance Committee for a passionate and eloquent address on behalf of this country's children. I commend her for it.

Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the time between now and 12:30 be divided equally between the Senator from New Mexico, Mr. BINGAMAN, and the Senator from New Jersey, Mr. LAUTENBERG.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from New Mexico is recognized.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Madam President, would the Chair please advise me when half the time allotted to me has been used?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Yes.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Madam President, I wish to congratulate the majority leader for taking this time to bring the reauthorization of the Children's Health Insurance Program to the Senate floor. Since this program was created, through a bipartisan effort in 1997, the number of uninsured Americans has grown by millions. At the same time, the percentage of low-income children in the United States without health care coverage has fallen by a third. So this is a remarkable achievement, and this program is a large share of the reason for that achievement.

The program is critically important to my home State of New Mexico. It currently permits the State to cover over 14,000 low-income New Mexicans and will play a critical role in ensuring that all low-income New Mexicans have access to meaningful health care coverage. I strongly support the reauthorization we have reported from the Finance Committee. Of the many issues before the Senate, I believe reauthorizing this legislation needs to be at the top of our list.

Unfortunately, there seems to be a huge gap between what the administration would like to see done on this subject and what in fact is needed. The President has proposed such a small sum of new funding over the next 5 years, $1 billion per year of additional funding, that if we were to accept that proposal, we would have a significant reduction in the size of the program and the number of children covered by the program.

Instead of reaching a larger percentage of the 9 million uninsured children in our Nation, the President's proposal would not add to the number of children covered. In fact, it would result in hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of low-income children losing their coverage.

I also wish to commend Senator BAUCUS, Senator GRASSLEY, Senator ROCKEFELLER, and Senator HATCH, all four of these individuals, who worked in a selfless and bipartisan way to come up with a proposal they could embrace and they could bring to the full Senate. The Congressional Budget Office estimates the $35 billion over 5 years authorized in this legislation will fill in the shortfalls in funding that have plagued the program for many years. It will allow us to expand coverage to nearly 4 million additional low-income children.

Although I strongly support this bipartisan compromise, there are several aspects of the legislation I hope we can still strengthen as we move forward. First, of course, I would like to see greater funding than the $35 billion over the next 5 years that is called for in this legislation. If we could go to the full $50 billion we provided for in the budget resolution, and that I believe the House is trying to enact, we could expand coverage to an additional 5 million children who would remain uninsured at the bill's current funding levels. So there are ways we can improve this bill.

I am also disappointed in changes that were made to coverage for adult populations in this program. I will not oppose the compromises that were reached on the issue, but I firmly believe the reauthorization program should not result in the narrowing of the flexibility States have had through this program to cover uninsured populations, including adults. In particular, let me discuss a little of the rhetoric that has circulated around this subject.

Coverage of adults is very important to the efforts of my State and other States in our efforts to cover low-income parents and childless adults, but in fact, this program is overwhelmingly a program that is focused on providing coverage to children. Less than 10 percent of the coverage under the SCHIP program currently goes to adults. I believe that has been somewhat taken out of context by many who have discussed the issue.

We should also note States are relying on waivers in covering the adults who are covered under the program. States are relying on waivers, most of which were approved and authorized in this Bush administration, to cover these populations. These are not Democratic-proposed waivers, these are waivers a Republican administration has approved. Tommy Thompson, our former Secretary of Health and Human Services under President Bush, in his first term stated in 2005, upon approving New Mexico's ability to cover adult populations:

> This approval means health coverage for tens of thousands of uninsured New Mexico residents—including many uninsured parents whose children are already covered. By giving States like New Mexico greater flexibility in the way they provide health care to low-income citizens, we are helping millions of people across the country to gain access to quality health care.

Madam President, how much time remains for my half?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has 5 minutes remaining.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Madam President, let me also go to one other issue which I think is important to deal with, another shortfall in this legislation, and that is the failure of the program to provide dental coverage.

According to the Children's Dental Health Project, of the 4 million children born each year in the United States, more than a quarter of them will have cavities by the time they are toddlers, and more than half will have cavities by the time they reach second grade. This is concentrated in low-income rural children who suffer disproportionately from these problems.

I believe strongly the Children's Health Insurance Program should be expanded to cover dental care for children across this country, low-income children. This is something we are not able to do as part of this legislation, but I hope we can revisit this issue before final action is taken.

A final issue I wanted to discuss relates to important improvements in legislation I hope we can make for legal immigrant children and legal pregnant women. Under current law, these individuals are prohibited from receiving most CHIP or Medicaid coverage for the first 5 years they are resident in the United States on a legal basis. Very often these children and these legal pregnant women, U.S. citizen children I point out, will become eligible for CHIP and Medicaid. It is counterproductive to prevent these legal immigrants from accessing services at the time they become legal residents of our country.

Today there is a 5-year bar in place to them receiving Medicaid and CHIP coverage. It exists even though the vast majority of these immigrants are working or are in families with working parents and are therefore paying Federal and State taxes. They contribute significantly to the system, but they are barred from receiving the services they are subsidizing. I highlight that legislation to remove this 5-year bar. I want to highlight that this proposal to remove the 5-year bar has bipartisan support. It has passed the Senate as part of the 2003 Medicare Modernization Act. I hope very much that before we complete action and send the bill to the President, we can deal with this issue here.

I urge each Member of the Senate to focus on what is the important work that we can accomplish in the Senate, how we can help the lives of children growing up in this country, and how we can make them more productive citizens in the future. Expanding this health care coverage to cover more children is obviously the first and best thing we can do. I hope very much we can pass this bill, go to conference with the House, and come up with a bill the President can be persuaded to sign.

Again, I congratulate the Finance Committee for the good work they have done bringing the legislation to the full Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Jersey is recognized.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Madam President, I also extend my commendations and thanks to Senators BAUCUS and GRASSLEY for producing this bill. This bill is a long step forward. Although I think it is quite apparent that we need even more than this generous attempt to meet our needs, the fact is, it is a very good bill. But it is surprising to me that we even have to debate this bill.

As we stand here, there are 9 million kids in the United States without health insurance; 250,000 of them live in my State of New Jersey. Every day that we wait to reauthorize and expand the Children's Health Insurance Program we risk more children's illnesses and even permit them to die because they have no health care.

In 2010 there are going to be more than 83 million children, from newborns to 19-year-olds, growing up in America. We have an obligation to make sure those boys and girls have health insurance so they can see their doctor, get a prescription, or visit the hospital if they need to. That is exactly what the CHIP, Children's Health Insurance Program, helps them do. It will ensure that kids have insurance to get regular checkups, to pay for emergencies, or to fight illnesses such as diabetes and other illnesses that afflict children terribly in their lives.

Children without insurance are twice as likely to die from injuries while they stay in the hospital than children who have insurance, and 12 percent of children either delay getting care or do not get any care at all because their families cannot pay for it. It is simply not right. It is those children who need this program the most, but this vital children's health program is set to expire on September 30, just 2 months from now.

The Children's Health Insurance Program is the only way that 6 million of America's children can afford health insurance. Their parents are typically hard-working people, but they simply cannot afford expensive private insurance, and they make too much money to qualify for Medicaid.

For example, in New Jersey, our State program helps to keep 126,000 low-income children in good health. Considering how many kids the program is keeping healthy in New Jersey and across the Nation, we would expect that President Bush would keep this program healthy, but he has not, and the long-term health of this program hangs in the balance. The President's proposed budget for fiscal year 2008 is $10 billion short of what we need to keep our children healthy. Without more money, we cannot cover the young people who currently get children's health insurance, and we cannot add any new children, no matter how much they need it, to the ranks of the insured.

By 2009, States will be facing more financial shortfalls. They will be forced to cut coverage for our kids. It is unacceptable, so the Senate is offering a better bipartisan plan. I am proud to support the Children's Health Insurance Program Reauthorization Act, which Senators BAUCUS and GRASSLEY introduced and the Finance Committee approved. This bipartisan bill will provide $35 billion in new funding. Most of us would have preferred even higher levels of funding—$50 billion—and I plan to support amendments to increase the funding amount. But there cannot be any doubt that this bipartisan compromise that we have before us is a crucial step forward in improving children's health. It would maintain insurance for the 67 million children who are currently covered, and it would insure more than 3 million new kids who do not have any health insurance at all now.

It would also continue giving States flexibility in covering these youngsters. We know the cost of living and the cost of health care varies from State to State, and that must be a consideration in coverage.

President Bush ran on a campaign pledge to get millions more kids on health insurance. Instead of pledging to sign the bipartisan Senate bill—it is incredible but true—President Bush is threatening to veto it. A veto means putting millions of children at risk for illness and disease. It means going back on the President's pledge, and it shows, by his action more than his words, that the President's priorities are not the same as America's.

President Bush's lopsided tax cuts are projected to cost $252 billion in 2008 alone. We spend $3 billion a week on this war, and we have supplementals in between there. We have already spent more than a half trillion dollars on this war. When you think about it, this bill asks for only $35 billion over 5 years, $7 billion a year, to provide for children's health. It is roughly 2 months of keeping this war going.

In those 5 years we could keep millions of kids healthy and help them become productive members of our American society.

Martin Luther King said:

> Of all forms of injustice, inequality in health care is the most shocking and inhumane.

To let millions of children go without health insurance is an absolute injustice. To stand by while they get sick and cannot afford care is both shocking and inhumane. We are the wealthiest country in the world. We also should be the healthiest country in the world. But we do not seem to be able to tie in these domestic needs with the opportunity that faces us, despite the shortage of revenues because we have become so generous with people who are billionaires, in terms of their taxes. Those who make $1 million a year get tax cuts that are substantial, so it does cut into our revenues. So, as I mentioned before, does the war.

I hope all my colleagues will support this bipartisan Baucus-Grassley bill.

Last, we plead with the President to keep his promise, not to veto it but sign it, to do the best we can for our children and our country.

I yield the remainder of my time. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent the quorum call be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. I ask unanimous consent now we recess for the caucuses.

RECESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate stands in recess until 2:15 p.m.

Thereupon, the Senate, at 12:27 p.m., recessed until 2:15 p.m. and reassembled when called to order by the Presiding Officer (Mr. CARPER).

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I think we are awaiting the arrival of Senator GRASSLEY. While he is getting ready, I could not be more pleased to have a better partner than Senator GRASSLEY. He and I worked very closely together.

and he and I and Senators HATCH and ROCKEFELLER worked very hard to put this current legislation together. I thank the Senator from Iowa for his dedication and public service. He does a good job.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa.

Mr. GRASSLEY. I appreciate those kind remarks. I obviously have commented many times on this floor in the last 6 years about the close working relationship I have had with him and his efforts, because most everything that came out of our committee in the last 6 or 7 years has been bipartisan.

As we all know, nothing gets through the Senate that is not bipartisan, and so you might as well start at the committee level if you are going to get anything done. I think we have gotten a lot done. I thank the Senator for his kind comments.

Obviously everybody knows we are just beginning, yesterday and today and probably this week, and hopefully completing work this week, on the State Children's Health Insurance Program. So we are going to continually refer to the acronym known as SCHIP.

This, as I said yesterday, is a product back from 1997, now sunsetting 10 years later, by a Republican-led Congress. It is a very targeted program, because too often some people giving speeches on the floor of this body want to leave the impression, or maybe they think it actually is, an entitlement program. This is not an entitlement program. An entitlement program is when a program goes on forever, and if you qualify, there is automatic access to the program, and withdrawal from the Federal Treasury. This program is not an entitlement program because it is based upon a specific amount of money appropriated for the program. That money has got to be divided up among all of the States and among all of the participants. So it is not an entitlement.

I think you are going to hear a lot of debate this week that people want you to think this is an entitlement. This program, targeted as it is, is designed to provide affordable health coverage for low-income children in working families. These families make too much to qualify for Medicaid, which is one of those entitlement programs—and legitimately an entitlement program—but these are families who earn too much to qualify for Medicaid but struggle to afford private insurance.

It is important that we reauthorize this very important program targeted for children. The Finance Committee's bill proposes a reasonable approach for reauthorizing SCHIP that is the product of months of bipartisan work in the committee. I emphasize the word "bipartisan." As I have said so often, this Finance bill is a compromise. I think it is the best of what is possible. Clearly folks on the left wanted to do more, and if you did what they wanted to do, you would have a Democratic bill. My colleagues on the right wanted to do less, and if you did and even go in a different direction, if you did what they wanted to do, you would have a Republican-only bill. So one way or the other, you have got 51 to 49, and nothing is going to get done. You have got to have bipartisanship, because it takes 60 votes around here to shut off debate, to go to finality.

Neither side got what they wanted. I would suggest to you this is the essence of compromise. This compromise bill maintains the focus on low-income, uninsured children and adds coverage for an additional 3.2 million low-income children, children who could presently qualify but not enough money is available or States were not doing their job of outreach to bring these people in.

I have heard some harping from different quarters about the role Senator HATCH and I have played in developing this important piece of legislation. Some on my side, meaning the Republican side, have suggested our efforts at finding compromise have been inconsistent with advancing the Senate Republican agenda. For a person like me who has been chairman of a committee for the last 6 years, getting a lot of Republican programs through, I take exception to someone who says I am not concerned about Republican principles and getting a Republican program, so I want to put this harping in context. I wish to remind the critics that we would not have made tax relief law if we had not found a way to compromise with Democrats who shared some of our tax reduction goals. The bipartisan tax relief plans of 2001, 2003, 2004, and 2006 could not have passed the Senate on Republican votes only.

During the 4½ years of my chairmanship, we were able to enact almost $2 trillion in broad-based tax relief that was not tax relief as an end in itself but was meant to stimulate the economy, and did stimulate the economy to a point where we have had $750 billion more coming into the Federal Treasury than anticipated as a result, as Chairman Greenspan said, of these tax bills expanding the economy and producing 8.2 million new jobs in recent years.

None of that would have happened if Republicans were working by ourselves, just by ourselves. It took bipartisanship to get that done. So while the temptation is always there for some Members on both sides of the aisle to not engage the other side, rarely if ever will that policy result in sustaining itself.

When it comes to the Republican agenda here, I have not heard any Republicans say to me in the 5 months we have been talking about reauthorizing SCHIP that we should not provide coverage to low-income children. I have not heard anyone say we should not reauthorize this specific bill. Quite to the contrary.

First, the President himself made a commitment to covering more children. I wish to refer to the Republican National Committee in New York City in 2004, and President Bush was very firm in making a point on covering children. Let me tell you what he said.

> America's children must also have a healthy start in life. In a new term [meaning when he was reelected] we will lead an aggressive effort to enroll millions of poor children who are eligible but not signed up for the Government's health insurance program. We will not allow a lack of attention or information to stand between these children and the health care that they need.

That was back in New York City, early September, 2004. Three months later the President is reelected, with a mandate. It seems to me the President was very clear in his conviction then. Let me repeat his words because I think they are important. He said he would lead an aggressive effort to enroll millions of poor children in Government health insurance programs.

President Bush, this is your friend CHUCK GRASSLEY, helping you keep the promise you made in New York City, and helping you keep your mandate that you had as a result of the last election. But somewhere the priorities of this administration seem to have shifted. The Congressional Budget Office reports that the proposal for SCHIP included in the President's fiscal year 2008 budget would result in the loss of coverage, not an increase of coverage as the administration had been advocating for in the year 2004; and that loss of coverage would add up to 1.4 million children and pregnant women.

Secretary of Health and Human Services Mike Leavitt has also supported expanding SCHIP. Secretary Leavitt is the President's Cabinet member for health care. When Secretary Leavitt was Governor of Utah, he favored expanding SCHIP during a public media availability on SCHIP following a meeting with the President.

Here is what he, now Secretary Leavitt, but then Governor, had to say about that meeting:

> There was a discussion on children's health care. A lot of celebration among governors and the President on the successes that we have had in implementing the Children's Health Insurance Program. Over the course of the last couple of years, it has been a very successful partnership. And we discussed [I assume that "we" means the President and the Governors] ways in which that could be expanded.

That is Michael Leavitt.

Also there was a Governor Glendenning at that time representing the Democratic Governors, holding a roundtable with the President.

Now, however, Secretary Leavitt wrote the Finance Committee to say that the President would veto the Finance Committee's SCHIP bill. But even in that letter, he does not call for ending SCHIP. He does not suggest we should not cover kids through SCHIP, not at all. Here is what he said about SCHIP:

> The President and I are committed to reauthorizing a program that has made a significant difference in the health of lower-income children. Through 10 years of experience and bipartisan support the State Children's Health Insurance Program serves as a valuable safety net for children and families who do not have the means to purchase affordable health care. We are committed to its continuation.

I appreciate this support in the past for expanding SCHIP from both the President and Secretary Leavitt. Now, however, some around here say we should not update the SCHIP program regardless of what the President said in the past in New York City, regardless of what Secretary Leavitt said. These people are basically saying the program is fine as it is right now. They want a simple continuation of the current program and current funding.

I will soon say what is wrong with that. But the current program does not work, and the current levels of funding will not do the job everybody says they want to do. Under current law, the current program is authorized to spend $25 billion over the next 5 years. That is if this program were not sunsetting, just continuing on as is. That is what we call a baseline amount. But the Congressional Budget Office says the $25 billion baseline amount will not fully fund the program.

CBO says that without more funding, 800,000 kids would lose coverage. To the chagrin of many Republican Senators and even some Democratic Senators, the administration in the last 6 years—in fact, in one case in Wisconsin, in the last 3 months—has allowed adults to get covered under a program for children. That is not what we intended with the Children's Health Insurance Program. SCHIP is for kids, not for adults. There is no letter "A" in the acronym "SCHIP." A simple extension of current law, however, means that adults, about whom everybody is complaining for being on a program only for children, would stay on the program. A simple extension would also mean more adults would be added. Of course, the reason for that is that States will continue in the future to ask for waivers and, be those waivers granted, they would be free to get approval for more childless adults and parents to be on a program that was not intended for anything but children. Covering adults drains scarce resources away from what we consider a priority—children's coverage first.

We may end up having to pass a short-term extension of the current law for a few months before work is finished on this reauthorization. I hope not, but that is a possibility. This is something we have to live with while Congress finishes work on a final version of the reauthorization. If that happens, so be it. But hopefully we can avoid a long-term extension of current law.

The SCHIP formula funding in current law doesn't work either. It actually gives less money to States that get their kids covered. That doesn't make sense. An extension of current law won't fix the formula.

The current formula also penalizes small rural States. That is because uninsured kids are not counted accurately in small rural States. That has resulted in funding shortfalls in those States. An extension of current law means this inaccurate funding formula would continue. That means more shortfalls for these States.

Another problem with current law is that there isn't enough funding. Under a straight extension of current law, there are going to be additional State shortfalls. We dealt with that earlier this year. I believe 14, 15, 16 States had shortfalls. The Congressional Budget Office says those shortfalls would cause 800,000 kids to lose coverage.

When Congress has faced these shortfalls in the past, what have we done? We just handed out more money to the States. Congress did that on three separate occasions. So that would keep those 800,000 kids from losing coverage, but this wouldn't fix any of the other problems. In fact, it would perpetuate the problems about which everybody is complaining—the funding coverage of adults, No. 1; and No. 2, a fundamentally flawed formula that our legislation takes care of.

That is why an extension of current law won't work. More adults? Think of all the Senators who have been complaining to me because there is no "A" in "SCHIP." It wasn't meant to cover adults. It just leaves things as they are—more adults. We have a broken funding formula. We have some States coming up short. So you have to appropriate more money. And most importantly, you have 800,000 kids losing coverage. So what other options are there?

Well, there is the President's proposal. I am not here to bad-mouth the President's proposal or any of my colleagues on this side of the aisle who are working on proposals. I am not going to, obviously, bad-mouth anything Senator WYDEN is doing in the same respect on the Democratic side of the aisle. These policies are good. But I am going to tell the President: Now is not the time.

Going back to the President's program on SCHIP, the President's plan is in his budget. It proposes a $4.8 billion increase in SCHIP, but it does not work either. What many have overlooked is that the President's plan assumes a massive redistribution of about $4 billion in SCHIP funds that States have in reserve. So the President assumes States will willingly relinquish all of those SCHIP reserves. It assumes the Secretary will redistribute those funds to States that currently have SCHIP shortfalls. As someone who was worried about State SCHIP shortfalls before, worrying about SCHIP shortfalls was cool, I tell my colleagues: That dog won't hunt. It is robbing Peter to pay Paul. There is no way a proposal that sucks $4 billion out of State coffers will ever fly around this Senate.

That is not all. Under the President's plan, 1.4 million children and pregnant women would be cut off of the program between now and 2012; 1.4 million would lose coverage, to emphasize. That is the end result of the President's plan: Rob Peter to pay Paul; 1.4 million children losing coverage.

Then we are going to hear about a more comprehensive plan. This is the one I was referring to when I referred to Senator WYDEN and when I was referring to the President having a proposal and some well-meaning people on my side of the aisle. Most of the news is from either Senator WYDEN or from Republican colleagues of mine, a well-meaning approach, a proposal to use the Tax Code to cover many millions of uninsured children and adults through private health insurance. Again, I don't disagree with that policy, but now is not the time for it.

I said during Finance Committee consideration of this bill that I would have liked the debate about SCHIP to focus on a larger effort to address the millions of Americans who are uninsured. I think we are missing an opportunity by only focusing this debate on SCHIP reauthorization. Too many Americans don't have health insurance, and we need to address rising health care costs. That approach will help that as well. I agree that we should be doing more, and I want to see Congress consider proposals to reform the tax treatment of health care to increase coverage for tens of millions of the 46 million people who don't have insurance today. But in terms of this bill and the whole issue of SCHIP reauthorization, that is not realistic.

I continue to be disappointed by the fact that there isn't bipartisan support for trying to do more as part of SCHIP. I urged the administration months ago to get bipartisan support—I emphasize bipartisan support because that is the only way we get things done in the Senate—if they want the President's initiative to be successful. I never saw any effort beyond maybe talking to Senator WYDEN. It just didn't happen. I looked far and wide. I can't find a single Democratic Senator who will support a tax reform alternative to the SCHIP bill. Even though it won't happen with this bill, we still need to work for a broader package to address the more fundamental problems of rising health costs and the uninsured.

Until then, I see SCHIP as a stopgap measure—5 years in duration, 5 years to do something bigger. The $35 billion we are investing in children's health coverage over the next 5 years is a drop in the bucket. When I say $35 billion is a drop in the bucket, somebody will say: You have been in Washington too long. Let me explain. That is one-quarter of 1 percent of the $14 trillion that will be spent on health care in this entire country, public and private expenditures, between now and the end of this authorization, 2012. Economists generally agree that if a condition cannot persist, then it won't persist. The current spending on health care cannot persist.

Members on both sides of the aisle have worked on proposals to address the broader issues of the uninsured and health reform overall. I have already referred to Senator WYDEN as a leader among Democrats on this issue. He has Senator BENNETT of Utah as a Republican working with him. They have been championing a more comprehensive approach to cover the uninsured. Many Republican Senators want to make changes in the Tax Code to help cover tens of millions of Americans of all ages instead of the few million kids whom we do with this legislation. I am looking forward to a fruitful debate on this issue of health reform and the uninsured through the Senate Finance Committee but not until we complete action on this bill. SCHIP must be passed.

Turning back to the Finance Committee bill, meaning the SCHIP bill before us, I am rather surprised at the overheated rhetoric that has emerged from both sides of the aisle. It has really been pretty unbelievable. On one side, I hear that nothing less than $50 billion will do the job, and if that number is not reached, children are at risk of dying. On the other side, I hear maintaining coverage for kids currently on this program and covering about half the kids eligible for Medicaid or SCHIP represents a slippery slope that leads us to the Government takeover of the entire health care system. Both sides need to call time-out to cool down, stop the hysteria, and take a look at what we actually have before the Senate in this Finance Committee compromise.

In 1997, SCHIP was conceived as a capped block grant program, not an entitlement. That was very important to Republicans. It is our model for how a safety net should work. It is not an open-ended entitlement. The Finance Committee bill maintains the block grant. It does not create an entitlement. I warn my colleagues, they are going to hear this too much, and they are going to hear me wake them up that this is not an entitlement. I believe they know better, but we know the game that is played around here.

In 1997, SCHIP was intended to encourage public-private partnerships. The Finance bill improves and strengthens private coverage options. In 1997, SCHIP gave States the tools they needed to control costs. These tools included allowing waiting lists, adding reasonable cost sharing, and limiting enrollment. The Finance bill maintains the flexibility which was in that 1997 act.

In 1997, SCHIP gave States the flexibility to address geographical differences in health care costs. States determine eligibility for benefits and tailor the benefits to their needs. The Finance bill affirms the States' role in managing this program.

SCHIP is also a humble program when compared to Medicaid. Medicaid is the bigger and more expansive entitlement program. Medicaid is a program for low-income individuals, pregnant women, and families. The bill before us today represents a modest update of the SCHIP program created by the 1997 act.

So what does the bill before the Senate actually accomplish? The bill before the Senate extends the program and fixes problems with current law, first, by extending the program that would otherwise expire September 30, doing away with the sunset or extending the sunset 5 years; No. 2, eliminating shortfalls that have plagued the program; No. 3, eliminating enhanced match for coverage of parents and childless adults—in other words, saving money so you spend more on kids; and No. 4, preserving the original SCHIP mission, coverage of low-income children.

The bill before the Senate continues and focuses coverage on low-income children by doing the following: No. 1, it provides additional resources targeted toward covering low-income children. No. 2, it extends coverage for the 6.6 million children currently enrolled in SCHIP. I want to emphasize, 91 percent of these families have incomes below 200 percent of poverty. No. 3, it covers an additional 2.7 million children already eligible for Medicaid or SCHIP under current law. No. 4, it provides coverage for an additional 600,000 uninsured low-income children.

The Finance Committee bill provides targeted incentives to precisely and, more importantly, efficiently cover the lowest income children. It does this by doing two things: one, by providing precisely targeted incentives that use an incentive fund to encourage enrollment of the lowest income children—in other words, go after those with the most need—and, two, by encouraging States to increase outreach and enrollment.

The Director of the Congressional Budget Office, Dr. Peter Orszag, characterized the incentive fund "as efficient as you can possibly get per new dollar spent."

The Finance Committee bipartisan bill also removes childless adults and limits payments for parents. It eliminates coverage under SCHIP for childless adults within 2 years. Those are the people who are already on the program. It eliminates the enhanced match for parents covered under SCHIP. It prohibits new State waivers to expand coverage for parents.

Now, again, I wish to emphasize this point. It does away with State waivers. You get back to every complaint I hear about this bill. You do not hear complaints about covering kids under 200 percent of poverty from Republicans or Democrats. But you hear an awful lot from both Republicans and Democrats about covering adults because there is no letter "A" in the acronym SCHIP, and those adults are covered because the law allows waivers. So this bill does away with waivers, so you do not get the adults on the program the way they have gotten there in the past.

Next, it reduces spending on adults by $1.1 billion.

Finally, the Finance Committee bill spends less than the $50 billion authorized in the budget. Now, once again, let me emphasize, there are people around here who say $5 billion in addition to what we are spending now is enough. Then, you have people who say only $50 billion more than what we are spending now is enough. Somewhere in the middle is where you end with compromise.

Now, for Republicans who are irritated because I am here with a bipartisan compromise, along with 16 other members of the Finance Committee—17 to 4 this bill was voted out—we are $15 billion under what a lot of people in this body would like to spend. I think for some people maybe $50 billion would not have been enough.

Continuing SCHIP with static enrollment would cost $14 billion over 5 years over the baseline anyway. At $35 billion, the SCHIP Reauthorization Act will cost $15 billion less than what was included in our budget. This additional funding goes toward coverage of lowest income children.

This bill does not include everything on everybody's wish list. I worked hard for a responsible, bipartisan agreement because I wish to see this bill pass. I think we have done a good job. But I also wish to make one more point very clear. My support for this legislation, in the end, will depend upon the outcome of the floor debate and the conference. I am not going to be able to support a bill that changes significantly from what we have in this proposal.

I appreciate very much the leadership Chairman BAUCUS has provided. I thank him and Senator ROCKEFELLER for what they did to reach a bipartisan agreement.

I also extend my sincere thanks to Senator HATCH for the hours and hours he has put into this effort. Senator HATCH was the main Republican sponsor of the bill that created the SCHIP program 10 years ago. His commitment to the ideals and fundamentals of the program is steadfast, and the program is better for it.

I also have to say I am disappointed by the way the Democratic leadership is handling the process of bringing this bill up for consideration on the floor. It does not bode well for the outcome of the bill. In the Senate, process matters as much as policy, and this process has not been managed in a bipartisan or responsible manner. However, the Finance Committee SCHIP bill is still one I can support. It is a compromise. It is based upon reality. This bill is for kids.

So I will end with an analogy from a child's bedtime story. This bill is not too big, it is not too small. It is not too hard, it is not too soft. It is not too hot, it is not too cold. It is just right.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oregon.

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, since the Senator from Iowa has been talking about the efforts of Senator BENNETT and I and how it relates to the children's health program, I wish to take a few minutes to discuss that relationship.

First, I think Senator BAUCUS, Senator ROCKEFELLER, Senator GRASSLEY, and Senator HATCH—through the hours and hours of effort they have put into making the children's health proposal ready for floor action—have done a great service. They have done a great service, first and foremost, to the country's kids.

It seems to me every single Member of the Senate can say today we cannot afford, in a country as good and strong and rich as ours, to have so many kids go to bed at night without decent health care. As a result of the bipartisan work of four Members of the Senate—two Democrats and two Republicans—we have laid the foundation to take steps immediately to help youngsters who are falling between the cracks.

I have long felt the challenge with respect to health care today is twofold. First, you act immediately to help those who are the most vulnerable in our society. That is, in fact, what four members of the Senate Finance Committee have helped the Senate to promote today. Second, we ought to be taking steps on a broader basis to fix health care in our country.

We are spending enough money on health care today. We are not spending it in the right places. We are spending enough money today on American health care to be able to go out and hire a doctor for every seven families in the United States. That doctor would do nothing except take care of seven families. Pay the doctor $200,000 a year, and my guess is, the distinguished Presiding Officer would probably have physicians in the State of Delaware come to him and say, "Where do you go to get your seven families?" because they would all like to be practicing physicians again. So we are spending enough money on health care today. We are not spending it in the right places.

At a time when our population is growing so rapidly, when costs are skyrocketing out of control, we need to fix American health care. But in order to get to the broader health reform effort—an effort that is bipartisan, with Senator BENNETT joining me in the first bipartisan health reform bill in 13 years—you have to take steps to meet the needs of youngsters today.

The Senate has already said that on multiple occasions. We said it first by passing the children's health program, and now, through the reauthorization effort, we say kids will come first. We also said it, in fact, through the budget resolution, where there was an effort to look at the relationship between broader health reform and care for kids, and the Senate, again, said children will come first.

So I am very hopeful. I believe consideration of the children's health program is, essentially, the opening bell of round one in the fight to fix health care. If we can tackle the issue of children's health in a bipartisan way—the way the Senate Finance Committee has done—it ought to be possible, even in this session of Congress, to move on to broader health reform.

Now, I am very hopeful the Administration will join in this bipartisan effort. We have all read about discussions about a possible veto message. I am very hopeful the Administration will join discussions in the Senate, join discussions in the other body, and help us to move quickly on the issue of children's health.

If we do that, it ought to be possible, as the distinguished Senator from Iowa has indicated, to move on to something the Administration feels strongly about, where I happen to think, by and large, they are correct. The Federal tax rules, as it relates to health care, are a mess. Essentially, they reward inefficiency. They disproportionately favor the most affluent. If you are a "high flier" in our country, you can go out and get every manner of deluxe kind of health service and write it off on your taxes; but if you are a hard-working woman in Delaware or Oregon or around the country and your company does not have a health plan, you get virtually nothing.

So I come to the floor today to say what Democratic economists have said, what Republican economists have said, what the administration officials have said: There ought to be an effort to fix the Tax Code as it relates to health care, and I and Senator BENNETT and others want to; and we want to fix it in this session of the Congress. But to get at that issue you are going to, first, have to meet the needs of children.

I was asked today what the implications of the children's health program are for bipartisanship. I think if this body can pick up on the bipartisan work of the Senate Finance Committee, there are extraordinary opportunities for broader health reform in this session of Congress. I do not think the country wants to wait 3 or 4 or 5 more years to fix American health care.

I have heard the discussion about how there is a Presidential campaign coming up, and let's wait another 2, 3, 4 years to talk about a more comprehensive effort to fix American health care. I do not think any of us got sent here to tell businesses that are trying to compete in tough global markets, to tell those who cannot afford the skyrocketing premiums: Well, we are not going to work on broader health care reform for another 3 or 4 years. I think they want to hear how we are going to deal, in a bipartisan way, with the premier domestic issue of our time. Senators BAUCUS and GRASSLEY and HATCH and ROCKEFELLER have given us an initial dose of bipartisanship, an initial dose of bipartisanship in an area the country cares about, and cares about strongly, and that is meeting the needs of our children. But in the spirit that Senate Finance Committee quartet has worked, I and Senator BENNETT and others would like to pick up on that kind of bipartisan theme and move aggressively to looking at the health care system as a whole and taking steps to transform it.

I will say, I am struck again by how every single day it seems to me opportunities for bipartisanship on health care abound. I was very pleased that the nominee to head CMS, the agency that deals with Medicare and Medicaid, reacted very positively to our ideas on preventive health care. The fact is, in this country, we really don't have health care at all. We have sick care. We wait until somebody is flat on their back in a hospital—and the Medicare Program shows this clearly by paying those bills under Part A of Medicare. Part B of Medicare, on the other hand, the outpatient part of Medicare, pays virtually nothing for prevention, virtually nothing to keep people well.

We have known about the value of prevention for quite some time. The distinguished Senator from Iowa, Mr. HARKIN, has been talking about the value of health care prevention for years and years. What I and Senator BENNETT have proposed for the first time under Federal law is that Medicare would be given the legal authority to go out and lower premiums for seniors who reduce their blood pressure and reduce their cholesterol and take the kind of preventive steps that everyone understands makes sense and helps to prolong an individual's good health and also saves money for the Medicare Program. We were very pleased that the nominee to head the agency that deals with Medicare and Medicaid was supportive of those changes and indicated he wanted to work, if confirmed, in a bipartisan way.

So the fact is, there are great opportunities for bipartisanship on health care in this Congress if we can get past this initial effort at addressing American health care. The Senate has indicated, through the initial authorization of the children's health program and through the budget resolution, that this is the program with which it wants to begin the debate on health care.

In the discussions in the Finance Committee, I followed very closely all of the different alternatives. It was a big bipartisan lift to get a 17-to-4 vote in the Senate Finance Committee. A lot of colleagues wanted to spend more. A lot of colleagues thought the program ought to be available to other groups of citizens. Some felt there wasn't much of a role for Government at all and that even the existing children's health program was too expansive. But the committee came together on a 17-to-4 basis.

I see the distinguished Senator from Iowa has returned. If we can pass this legislation with the kind of bipartisan support that was initially demonstrated in the Senate Finance Committee, I think it is very possible, in spite of all of the popular wisdom to the contrary, this Senate can achieve broader health care reform in this session of Congress. I see one poll after another which indicates that health care is the premier domestic issue of our time; that it is the most important issue to our citizens—in many polls by something like a 2-to-1 margin. So I think in addressing this issue today—health care for children—the Senate can lay a bipartisan foundation for broader reforms.

I think Senator BENNETT and I have provided some direction for the Senate to go from here, but we would be the first to acknowledge there are many Senators with ideas on these issues, and many of them are good. I have already indicated I think the Administration has a valid point with respect to these tax rules on health care. The distinguished chairman of the Finance Committee is back, and he and I have listened to one economist after another testify before the Finance Committee—Democrats and Republicans—talking about how the Tax Code on health care makes no sense and largely comes out of the 1940s.

So we have Senators of both political parties who would like to work on broader health care reform, but first we have to pass this legislation. I hope we will pass it with a resounding bipartisan majority vote so that we could truly lay the foundation for significant and comprehensive health reform to be considered by this body.

AMENDMENT NO. 2547 TO AMENDMENT NO. 2530

Mr. BUNNING. Madam President, I have an amendment at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The Senator from Kentucky [Mr. BUNNING] proposes an amendment numbered 2547 to amendment No. 2530.

Mr. BUNNING. I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To eliminate the exception for certain States to cover children under SCHIP whose income exceeds 300 percent of the Federal poverty level)

Beginning on page 79, strike line 21 and all that follows through page 81, line 6, and insert the following:

(a) FMAP APPLIED TO EXPENDITURES.—Section 2105(c) (42 U.S.C. 1397ee(c)) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(8) LIMITATION ON MATCHING RATE FOR EXPENDITURES FOR CHILD HEALTH ASSISTANCE PROVIDED TO CHILDREN WHOSE EFFECTIVE FAMILY INCOME EXCEEDS 300 PERCENT OF THE POVERTY LINE.—For fiscal years beginning with fiscal year 2008, the Federal medical assistance percentage (as determined under section 1905(b) without regard to clause (4) of such section) shall be substituted for the enhanced FMAP under subsection (a)(1) with respect to any expenditures for providing child health assistance or health benefits coverage for a targeted low-income child whose effective family income would exceed 300 percent of the poverty line but for the application of a general exclusion of a block of income that is not determined by type of expense or type of income.".

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Section 2105(a)(1) (42 U.S.C. 1397dd(a)(1)) is amended, in the matter preceding subparagraph (A), by inserting "or subsection (c)(8)" after "subparagraph (B)".

(c) APPLICATION OF SAVINGS TO GRANTS FOR OUTREACH AND ENROLLMENT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding the dollar amount specified in section 2113(g) of the Social Security Act, as added by section 201(a), the dollar amount specified in such section shall be increased by the amount appropriated under paragraph (2).

(2) APPROPRIATION.—Out of any funds in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, there is appropriated such amount as the Secretary determines is equal to the amount of additional Federal expenditures for the period of fiscal years 2008 through 2012 that would have been made if the enhanced FMAP (as defined in section 2105(b) of the Social Security Act) applied to expenditures for providing child health assistance to targeted low-income children residing in a State that, on the date of enactment of the Children's Health Insurance Program Reauthorization Act of 2007, has an approved State plan amendment or waiver to provide, or has enacted a State law to submit a State plan amendment to provide, expenditures described in section 2105(c)(8) of such Act (as added by subsection (a)). The preceding sentence constitutes budget authority in advance of appropriations Act and represents the obligation of the Federal Government to provide for the payment of such amount to States awarded grants under section 2113 of the Social Security Act.

Mr. BUNNING. Madam President, I offer this amendment to the SCHIP bill. This is the same amendment I offered during the Finance Committee's consideration of this legislation.

I have heard a lot of talk about how the Baucus bill puts the focus for SCHIP back on low-income children—so much talk, in fact, that one would hardly know that the Baucus bill allows certain States to provide families making up to $70,000 or $80,000 a year in income with Government-run health care.

Let's start from the beginning. The way the SCHIP and Medicaid Program work is States get Federal matching dollars to help fund their programs. The SCHIP match from the Federal Government is higher than a State's Medicaid match. This means for my State, the Federal Government's match for Medicaid is about 70 percent, while the State pays the remaining 30 percent. For SCHIP, the Federal match is 80 percent, while the State match makes up the remaining 20 percent.

SCHIP was intended to help States provide health care coverage to children and families whose incomes were below 200 percent of the Federal poverty line. These families were likely working but making too much money to qualify for Medicaid and couldn't afford private health insurance. I would like to note that 200 percent of the Federal poverty level is about $41,000 a year in income for a family of four.

The Baucus bill allows States to expand their SCHIP programs and receive the higher SCHIP matching rate for families with incomes up to 300 percent of the poverty level, or almost $62,000 for a family of four. Personally, I think that in and of itself is too high, especially when the national median income in this country was about $46,000 a year in 2005. In the Baucus bill, States that choose to go above 300 percent of poverty would receive their Medicare matching rate for those families which, remember, is the lower reimbursement rate.

However, the Baucus bill thinks families in New Jersey and New York deserve special treatment under SCHIP. The bill provides an exemption for States that have already gone above or are currently trying to go above 300 percent of poverty for SCHIP coverage. New Jersey already provides coverage for families up to 350 percent of poverty. New York is working to get approval to extend coverage up to 400 percent of poverty. I want to make sure everyone understands, 400 percent of poverty is $82,600 a year for a family of four; 350 percent of poverty is $72,275 per year. Are we really going to be providing Government health care for families making $70,000 to $80,000 a year?

My amendment is fairly simple. It strikes the exemption the Baucus bill has given to just New York and New Jersey so they have to play by the same rules as every other State. If these two States want to provide health care coverage to families above 300 percent of the poverty level, they can do so—they just cannot get a higher SCHIP matching rate. They would get their Medicaid matching rate. That at least leaves the playing field level.

There will be obviously some small savings from this if my amendment passes. My amendment would take these savings and provide additional money to outreach and enrollment grants.

Some people will try to say it is more expensive to live in these two States than it is in other States, and that is probably true in certain areas. However, SCHIP is a Federal program, and all States should play by the same rules. Also, these two States can still cover these higher income families if they choose. They just have to get the lower Medicaid matching rate to do so.

If New York and New Jersey feel so strongly about letting families making $70,000 or $80,000 a year have Government health care, then the States should be willing to pay a little more from their own tax revenue. The last time I checked, money doesn't grow on trees around here—or at least it very rarely does. The Baucus bill is requiring people in other States such as Kentucky, New Mexico, Florida, and Maine to pay more so New York and New Jersey can cover families at these higher income levels. To me, that is grossly unfair.

Some people may also try to argue that New York is only thinking about going to 400 percent of the poverty level, and they would have to get a waiver or a plan approved by the Department of Health and Human Services for this increase. OK. So then why give them this special protection in the Baucus bill? Why create special rules for New York when they haven't even gotten approval yet? To me, it is outrageous that a program designed for lower income kids is being expanded to include families at 350 percent or 400 percent of the poverty level. That is too high, and it is unfair to ask people in other States to pay for these types of expenses.

So with my amendment, you have two options: more money for outreach and enrollment efforts and requiring all States to play by the same rules or covering kids and families most of us probably don't consider low income—those making up to $72,000 or $82,000 a year for a family of four.

Madam President, I reserve the remainder of my time, and I ask for the yeas and nays on my amendment when it is appropriate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second? There is a sufficient second.

Mr. BUNNING. Madam President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana is recognized.

Mr. BAUCUS. Madam President, the Senator from Colorado is to be recognized next. I say to my friend from Kentucky, I think the Senators from the two States that will be directly affected by the amendment will be coming to the floor to speak in opposition. When they do, those Senators will be recognized. In the meantime, I urge the Chair to recognize the Senator from Colorado.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Colorado is recognized.

Mr. SALAZAR. Madam President, I rise to support the effort we have on the floor to address a national health care imperative, which is providing health insurance to 10 million young people in our country today.

For me, when I come to this Senate every day and speak on behalf of the millions of people in my State of Colorado and around the country, I think about the biggest issues we are faced with, the biggest challenges of our time, the imperatives of the 21st century, and there are three in my mind.

First is the questions we face in terms of foreign affairs and how we protect America and homeland security. We will have other occasions where we will deal with the fundamental issue of protecting America and making sure our homeland is secure. We took significant steps last week in that direction when we adopted the 9/11 Commission recommendations.

The second issue is how we move forward and embrace a clean energy economy for the 21st century. With the committees that have reported legislation, including the Energy Committee, which adopted bipartisan legislation here, we took a step forward with that international imperative.

The third issue that I think is an imperative of the 21st century is how we take the health care crisis we have—a system which is not working for the people today—and fix it. Today and this week is an opportunity for us, the Senate, to take a very major step toward making sure we are moving toward addressing the complex issue of health care and providing health care insurance to the 10 million children of America who, without this program, would wake up after September without the health insurance that provides them with an opportunity to live a healthy American life. So this legislation is very important for us to move through this body.

I say also at the outset that we would not be here today had it not been for the bipartisan efforts of Senators BAUCUS and GRASSLEY, in the leadership in the Finance Committee, joined by Senators ROCKEFELLER and HATCH. The four of them moved this legislation forward today in the framework that gives us the great possibility of receiving an overwhelming bipartisan vote as we move this legislation out of the Senate.

By all measures, we know our health care system is in crisis. We have 47 million Americans without health insurance today, and 9 million of them are kids. In Colorado, 20 percent of our population—1 in 5, or 780,000—lacks health coverage; 180,000 of those people in my State of Colorado are children.

These are middle class citizens who are getting squeezed by the ballooning costs of health care. Two-thirds of Americans and 70 percent of Coloradans without health insurance work full time. They play by the rules, but still find coverage out of reach.

For those who are able to afford health insurance, the picture is also grim. Health insurance premiums for family coverage have risen by over 70 percent since 2000. An employer-sponsored family coverage plan now costs nearly $10,000 a year. This is a huge chunk of a working family's income.

Our health care system is in dire need of triage. We must start with those who are most vulnerable, our children, and see to it that they have the health care coverage they deserve.

Covering our kids, providing them preventive care from doctors and nurses, ensuring that they grow up healthy and strong—this has been the focus of our health care work over the last several months in the Senate Finance Committee. This week we bring the bill to the floor with the hope that we will pass it swiftly and with broad, bipartisan support, so that we can give 10 million more kids the opportunity they deserve to live up to their potential.

The reason we focus our first reforms of the health care system on our children is simple: every American child deserves the opportunities that come from a healthy start in life.

The fact that 9 million of our kids—180,000 in Colorado—have no coverage is simply unacceptable. It is a massive liability not just for the health of our kids, but for their education and for our future economic security.

The impacts of a lack of health coverage are clear: uninsured children are 6 times more likely to have unmet medical needs; uninsured children are two and a half times more likely to have unmet dental needs; one-third of all uninsured children go without any medical care for an entire year; uninsured children are less likely to do well in school due to absences from unmet health needs; and uninsured children are more likely to seek care from hospital emergency rooms, which are often the provider of last resort, the most costly venue for care, and the least equipped to provide the type of preventive and comprehensive follow-up care children need.

As sobering as these statistics are, the stories of families and health care providers are even more compelling. Earlier this year, at Senator Baucus' suggestion, I traveled to Greeley, Fort Morgan, Fort Collins, Steamboat, Silverthorne, Grand Junction, Durango, Alamosa, Pueblo, Colorado Springs, and Denver to meet with health care providers, State officials, children's advocacy groups and families interested in the reauthorization of the Children's Health Plan.

I heard harrowing tales about delayed health care that caused children's health to worsen. One school nurse told me of a boy who injured his leg during a school football game. Because his family could not afford to take him to a doctor, they applied ice to his leg and prayed it would get better.

Unfortunately, the boy's leg, which was fractured, grew progressively worse, swelling to two times its normal size. The school nurse told me of the pain and anguish the child endured because his parents could not afford an expensive doctor's visit.

I heard countless other stories of colds that turned into pneumonia, of ear aches that developed into ear infections, and of other illnesses that grew worse because parents could not afford to seek medical care for their kids. These families eventually had to take their kids to the emergency room for treatment, the most expensive venue for care, and one which typically doesn't provide the type of preventative or comprehensive follow-up care that our kids need.

For millions of children and their families, for our hospitals, clinics and health care providers who can no longer shoulder the burden of uncompensated care, the time has come to provide health insurance to children in need.

I am proud of the work that we have done on this bill in the Finance Committee. It will cover 10 million uninsured children. It is a huge step toward providing coverage for every uninsured child in America, and we have done it with overwhelming bipartisan support in committee.

Unfortunately, the President seems to have a different perspective. He has already issued a veto threat. I believe he is wrong. For the sake of our children we must reauthorize the Children's Health Insurance Program, and we ask the President to help get it done. CHIP has become a critical resource to us in Colorado and nationwide, providing health care coverage to children who would otherwise go uninsured.

I believe that it is our moral and economic obligation in Washington to invest in our children's healthcare, as our investment today, will pay off tomorrow. The President should embrace this proposal for children across the country, and I strongly urge the President to help us get it done.

I want to take a moment to talk about what the bill does, because the veto threat implies a deep misunderstanding about its benefits.

On the broadest scale, the bill before us provides insurance coverage to 3.3 million children who are currently uninsured, while maintaining coverage for all 6.6 million low-income children currently enrolled in the Children's Health Insurance Program.

The bill includes significant incentives for States to enroll more children onto CHIP, particularly children in rural communities where geographic distances and the lack of health infrastructure create barriers to enrollment. Twenty percent of all low-income children live in rural areas, and a significant percentage of them are uninsured. We can do better.

The CHIP reauthorization also allows States to cover pregnant women. Children who are born healthy have a far greater chance of a healthy life. Healthy children save Medicaid and CHIP significant resources in reduced health care costs. It is sensible that they can receive this coverage under our program.

The bill also provides grants to States to improve dental benefits and helps improve coverage for mental health. In order to receive the Federal match, States that offer mental health services will be required to provide coverage on par with medical and surgical benefits under CHIP. Finally, the bill reduces bureaucratic hurdles and improves the program's efficiency by setting quality standards, by allowing States to verify citizenship through the Social Security Administration, and by establishing a pilot program to allow States to implement express lane enrollment.

I look forward to a lively week of debate on this bill with the hope that we can further strengthen the package.

Finally, I want to briefly talk about an amendment that I intend to offer, which will help States create and expand home visitation programs. In a home visitation program a nurse, social workers, volunteer, or other professional works with families in their homes to provide prenatal care, parenting education, social support, and links with public and private community services. Home visitation programs have existed in the United States since the 19th century and have a long and solid track record in improving children's health.

My amendment is straightforward. It would create a $100 million grant program to fund cost-effective home visitation programs. It would also require a study of the cost-effectiveness of adding home visitation programs to coverage under CHIP.

From my experience with these programs in Colorado, I think we will find that expanded investment in home visitation programs is a logical step toward improving children's health care.

Nurse Family Partnership, one of our home visitation programs in Colorado, is a great example. It operates in 150 sites in 22 States, providing 20,000 low-income pregnant women with help from trained registered nurses. These nurses work closely with the families to increase access to prenatal care, foster child health and development and promote parental economic self-sufficiency.

The statistics prove the success of the program. Nurse Family Partnership has been shown to reduce child abuse and neglect by 48 percent; reduce child arrests by 59 percent; reduce arrests of the mother by 61 percent; reduce criminal convictions for the mother by 72 percent; increase father presence in household by 42 percent; reduce subsequent pregnancies by 32 percent; reduce language delays in 21-month-old children by 50 percent; and reduce behavioral/intellectual problems of children at age 6 by 67 percent.

A report recently released by the Brookings Institute praised Nurse Family Partnership as one of the most effective returns on investment in the healthy development of the next generation.

Our amendment builds on the great promise that home visitation programs offer and strengthens CHIP's investment in the healthy development of our children. I urge my colleagues to support our amendment when we offer it.

I want to again thank Chairman BAUCUS, Ranking Member GRASSLEY, and Senators ROCKEFELLER and HATCH for their bipartisan leadership on this bill. This is a giant step forward in our Nation's steady march toward providing every child in America the chance to chase their dreams.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. BAUCUS. Madam President, the amendments are starting to come before the Senate and that is good. The other news is that all Senators who have lined up to speak at certain specified times are going to have to be very accommodating to other Senators and squeeze down the amount of time they want to speak. Perhaps they can consult with the floor staff to see when they might be able to speak.

I now ask unanimous consent that the Senator from Oregon, Senator SMITH, be recognized to speak next and, immediately following him, that the Senator from Pennsylvania, Mr. CASEY, be recognized to speak. I urge both Senators to limit their remarks as much as possible. Please try to use a little more brevity so we can get to the next speakers. Senator MENENDEZ is also here and he wishes to speak on the amendment offered by the Senator from Kentucky.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CASEY. Madam President, parliamentary inquiry: When the Senator said "limit the time," I am not sure what the Senator meant by that.

Mr. BAUCUS. Well, I have a list of Senators who wish to speak. I have times next to the Senators as to when they are going to speak. I also have time allocated on how much time they think they are going to speak. I am asking all Senators to basically speak for fewer minutes so that all Senators can speak at their allotted times.

Mr. CASEY. My colleague from Montana has been generous with his time and has shown great leadership. I want to make sure I have the time I want on this, so I will wait. I will play it by ear, depending on my colleague from Oregon.

Mr. BAUCUS. Thank you very much.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oregon.

Mr. SMITH. Madam President, I wish to assure the manager of the bill that I will be as brief as I can on this big issue.

All of us who are parents know that the health of a child is critically important in ensuring they have the opportunity to reach their full potential. Yet today in America there are approximately 6 million children who are eligible for either Medicaid or SCHIP who are going without health care nevertheless. In Oregon alone, there are approximately 60,000 kids eligible for assistance who are not getting the help they need. Therefore, the debate before us is about whether we as a country will invest in our young people by providing access to health coverage or whether we will leave these children without the essential building blocks of health care upon which they can build successful lives.

I believe in the promise that SCHIP represented in 1997. It was one of the first bills I worked on, with an amendment in the Budget Committee. I urge my colleagues to support the bill the Finance Committee has now produced which sees this whole promise of CHIP one step closer to fulfillment. This bill will allow States to cover an additional 3.3 million children, and in Oregon that would allow an additional 100,000 children to receive health care coverage.

When thinking about our response to the children, I often like to quote one of our Nation's health care leaders, the former Surgeon General, Dr. C. Everett Koop, who said:

> Life affords no greater responsibility, no greater privilege than the raising of the next generation.

The reauthorization of the Children's Health Insurance Program fulfills the Government's responsibility to take care of our Nation's children. It also lives up to the expectations of the American public—we the people—who want Congress to pass this bill and extend health care coverage to America's underprivileged children.

This bill is also a testament to a bipartisan legacy of the Finance Committee. It contains less money and benefits than some desire, while more than others have indicated they will support. Yet when you look at the actual policy, I believe you will find that it deserves the full support of the Senate.

My colleagues and the American public should know that this bill is not, as some have claimed, an expansion, and it is not the federalization of health care. In fact, it simply takes a step, a reasonable step, toward achieving the original objective, the original vision for SCHIP. It will provide adequate funding and make some programmatic enhancements to help an additional 3.3 million children currently eligible to enroll in the program. I wish to emphasize that these children are currently eligible. This just makes the program available to them.

This package which many of us have worked to craft does not create a new Government-run health care system. In fact, 48 States, including my State of Oregon, utilize private health insurers to deliver the SCHIP benefit package. Like Medicare Part D, it is a highly successful melding of Government and private sector care.

I also believe it important to note that SCHIP is an efficient and cost-effective health care program. Its overhead ranges from about 5 percent, compared to the commercial market, which is over 10 percent. Perhaps most importantly, this bill returns the focus of the State Children's Health Insurance Program to children.

Many on both sides of the political aisle were amazed and disappointed to learn that the administration has allowed States to extend coverage under SCHIP to adults. This proposal puts the brakes on that practice and says: Enough is enough. Upon enactment of the bill, the administration no longer will be able to extend waivers to States to cover any adult. Further, by the end of 2009, those States which currently cover childless adults will be required to move those people into Medicaid, and any parent currently covered will be moved into a separate block grant starting in 2010. This represents a bipartisan agreement.

For those of us who have battled over the years to ensure mental health parity, I am pleased to report that the committee accepted an amendment from me and Senator KERRY, and this bill now delivers a victory to those who advocate for mental health parity. It requires States that offer access to mental health care to provide coverage that is on par with coverage for physical illnesses. As a parent whose child battled a mental illness, I know how important it is for our young people to have timely access to mental health care treatments.

Each year in the United States, 30,000 people die by suicide. That is more deaths than by drunk driving and homicides combined. Yet, with proper treatment, these deaths are preventable. Our Nation and our Government simply cannot continue to ignore this problem. That is why this amendment was included, so that we will now begin to reverse this Federal discrimination as it relates to mental health care. I believe that by ensuring equity among mental and physical illnesses, this bill takes the first step toward eliminating the discrimination against persons with mental illnesses that has existed in our Federal and State health care programs for generations. It is an important first step and fulfills the promise of SCHIP for all children, including those children with a mental illness.

For those who believe SCHIP will erode health care coverage through employers, do not believe it. This bill takes a significant step toward offering access to privately delivered options and helps small businesses gain access to affordable health care coverage for all of their employees.

I authored a provision that allows States to create an employer purchasing pool under the premium assistance section of SCHIP. My provision will allow small businesses with less than 250 employees to buy health insurance coverage through a State-sponsored employer purchasing pool. Employers that participate will have access to a choice of privately delivered, quality health insurance products for all of their employees and will receive reimbursement for those employees or their children who are eligible for SCHIP. It is a win-win arrangement that I hope will lead to more extensive coverage among employees and small- and medium-sized businesses.

Finally, this package rightly utilizes the 61-cent increase in the tobacco products excise tax, which I proposed during the Senate's budget debate, to pay for the cost of reauthorizing SCHIP. Increasing the cost of tobacco products not only puts real dollars on the table to pay for SCHIP, but over time it will lower the cost of tobacco-related illnesses for all Federal and State health care programs and will deter young people from smoking.

Why is this important? My State of Oregon was the first in the Nation in 1987 to begin tracking the number of deaths that were related to the use of tobacco. In 2005, the most recent year for which data is available, there were a total of nearly 7,000 deaths in Oregon due to tobacco. This means that tobacco contributed to 22 percent of all deaths in the State of Oregon. In fact, from 1996 to 2005, tobacco use has consistently contributed to more than one-fifth of all Oregon deaths, ranging from 21 percent to 23 percent of the total deaths per year.

Officials in my State explain to me that to determine the death rate in the State, they often look at it in terms of the number of deaths per 100,000 Oregonians. In 2005, the death rate due to tobacco was about 13 times the rate of death from the following causes: alcohol-induced deaths, drug-induced deaths, motor vehicle accidents, and deaths from an infection or parasitic disease. What is more, the State estimates that an additional 800 deaths were attributable to secondhand smoke in 2005. That means in 1 year, 7,721 Oregonians needlessly died because of the use of tobacco.

So for those who question raising the rate of the Federal tobacco excise tax, I say: Look at these numbers. Look at the 7,000 deaths from tobacco in the State of Oregon in 2005 alone and understand that this Federal rate increase could dramatically lower the death rate from tobacco. That is why this bill rightly includes a 61-cent increase in the excise tax.

In closing, Chairman BAUCUS and Ranking Member GRASSLEY have a long working tradition of tackling challenging issues and developing bipartisan solutions. The development of the Children's Health Improvement Program Reauthorization Act of 2007 is no different. Many hurdles were encountered, and many are yet to come, but if the Senate can follow the example set by Chairman BAUCUS and Ranking Member GRASSLEY, I am confident we will see SCHIP reauthorized by the end of September. Therefore, I urge my colleagues to support this bill.

I thank the Chair for the time, and I yield the floor.

Mr. BAUCUS. Madam President, Senator CASEY has been seeking recognition, and I assured him earlier today that he would be able to speak at about this time.

I ask unanimous consent that Senator CASEY be able to speak and that following Senator CASEY, the Senator from Colorado, Mr. ALLARD, be recognized to offer an amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Pennsylvania is recognized.

Mr. CASEY. Madam President, I thank the Chair, and I thank Chairman BAUCUS for his leadership and for the way he has conducted the debate on this bill.

I wish to make a couple of points that probably haven't been made yet—some have, in different ways—and the first thing I wish to say is that this bill, overall, provides what a lot of Americans expect us to provide in a bill such as this: It lowers the rates of uninsured children in America, just as the original Children's Health Insurance Program did some 10 years ago now; it strengthens the program by increasing and targeting funding for our children; and it also gives States the tools they need to do the outreach that is required to get our children enrolled and to do that in a way that spends money wisely.

One of the things that has been missed in this debate is that this is really about all of America. This isn't simply about one State or one community. One of the population sectors that I think has been ignored often in this discussion by some people who have talked about this is rural children. You can see on this chart to my right what children's health insurance—this program—means to rural children.

Rural children are far less likely to have access to employer-based health care plans because most of these families that have had to struggle are not getting jobs that offer affordable health insurance. That number has gone far too high in terms of the number of rural families that have lost jobs or are seeking jobs with health insurance.

Secondly, rural children are difficult to enroll in children's health insurance even when they are clearly eligible. Outreach and enrollment efforts are critically important to those communities. That is why the features of this bill that deal with outreach—television advertising and other kinds of advertising—are critically important.

The second point about children who live in rural communities across America—and I have to say in Pennsylvania we have literally millions of Pennsylvanians who live in communities that are defined demographically as rural—is that they are more likely to be poor. Nearly half of rural children live in low-income families at or below 200 percent of the poverty level. So you are talking about a doubling of the number, just a little more than $40,000 of family income.

Additionally, rural children increasingly rely upon children's health insurance, this program. In rural America, more than one-third of all children—one-third of all rural children—rely upon the Children's Health Insurance Program or Medicaid.

Another point on benefits, if we can go to the next chart. There has been a lot of talk about what this program means and how much it costs. It is interesting to debate that, but let us get back to what this program means to families. It means immunizations, routine checkups, prescription drugs, dental care, maternity care, mental health benefits, and down the list. You can see what this means to the life of a family and to the health of a nation. I think it bears repeating just how important those benefits are.

In the next chart, we focus on an example from Pennsylvania. There has been a lot of talk on this floor already, some of it inaccurate talk, so let's get back to the facts. This is what the children's health insurance income levels mean in Pennsylvania. What we are talking about here is $41,300 of income and below, under 200 percent of the FPL, the federal poverty level. Care is free for those families, and the average premium is, of course, zero. But the next category, $41,301 to $61,950, above 200 percent of poverty, up to 300 percent, care is provided at a low cost but a cost nonetheless. They pay a premium—a range of a premium.

Finally, looking at the higher income groups and some people, it is very misleading. For those with incomes of $61,951 and above, at that income level care is provided at cost, and the average premium is $150. We should stop misleading people, talking about wealthier families making $80,500. Others will discuss this later. We have already had a lot of misleading—and I hope it is not deliberate, but there has been misleading rhetoric on the Senate floor already about those families.

Just for the record, not only are there no families at $80,000 in the Children's Health Insurance Program, there are only about 3,000 kids enrolled in the health care program today out of 6.6 million who have a family income of 300 percent of poverty or more. Let's speak the truth and adhere to the facts instead of what we have heard already: misleading statements on this floor about these income levels.

One more point about minority children in America. We have heard a lot about what this means and whether it is working. We have lots of proof already that minority children have already been helped. Since the inception of this program 10 years ago, the percent of uninsured Hispanic children has decreased by nearly one-third; for African-American children by almost one-half. So don't tell us this is not working. Some people on the other side have made that point. This is working for rural kids, and it is working for minority children all across the country, not to mention what I have seen in Pennsylvania.

This will be our last chart. We have heard a lot about what this means for the broad spectrum of America. Here is the fact again: 78 percent of the kids covered by the Children's Health Insurance Program are from working families. I think that is an important point to make when we talk about who is helped by this program.

If we want to go the way the President has taken us and cut off kids from children's health insurance—1.4 million kids will lose their coverage under the President's plan—here is what happens when a child doesn't get dental care. We heard this story a couple of months ago. It bears repeating again—12-year-old Deamonte Driver, from Prince George's County here in Maryland, died because he didn't have coverage for a routine $80 dental procedure for his infected tooth. Without that simple treatment, the infection spread to Deamonte Driver's brain and killed him.

Let's put aside some of the mythology about what we have heard from some people—not everyone but some people in this Chamber—about what this means. If that child had received an $80 dental procedure he might be alive today. But, of course, we hear political rhetoric in here to back up the President. I think it is important to remember why we are here.

I have two more points to make, to keep within my time. John DiIulio, Jr., a distinguished Ph.D., worked for President Bush to lead his faith-based initiatives in the early part of the administration. He wrote an op-ed in the Philadelphia Inquirer a few months ago.

I ask unanimous consent it be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Philadelphia Inquirer]

BUSH'S STAND ON INSURANCE PLAN CONTRADICTS WORDS OF COMPASSION

(By John J. DiIulio Jr.)

Eight years ago this week, on July 22, 1999, George W. Bush delivered his first presidential campaign speech, titled "The Duty of Hope." Speaking in Indianapolis, he rejected as "destructive" the idea that "if only government would get out of the way, all our problems would be solved." Rather, "from North Central Philadelphia to South Central Los Angeles," government "must act in the common good, and that good is not common until it is shared by those in need." There are "some things the government should be doing, like Medicaid for poor children."

I helped draft the speech and served in 2001 as an adviser to Bush. He has made good on some compassion pledges. For instance, he has increased funding for public schools that serve low-income children. His $150 million program for mentoring 100,000 children of prisoners has made progress. In May, he pledged an additional $30 billion in U.S. aid to combat the global HIV/AIDS epidemic and save Africa's affected children.

On the other hand, poverty rates have risen in many cities. In 2005, Washington fiddled while New Orleans flooded, and the White House has vacillated in its support for the region's recovery and rebuilding process. Most urban religious nonprofit organizations that provide social services in low-income communities still get no public support whatsoever. Several recent administration positions on social policy contradict the compassion vision Bush articulated in 1999.

In May, Bush rejected a bipartisan House bill that increased funding for Head Start, a program that benefits millions of low-income preschoolers. His spokesmen claimed the bill was bad because it did not include a provision giving faith-based preschool programs an absolute right to discriminate on religious grounds in hiring.

That reason reverses a principle Bush proclaimed in his 1999 speech: "We will keep a commitment to pluralism, not discriminating for or against Methodists or Mormons or Muslims, or good people of no faith at all." As many studies show, most urban faith-based nonprofits that serve their own needy neighbors do not discriminate against beneficiaries, volunteers or staff on religious grounds. These inner-city churches and grass roots groups would love to expand Head Start in their communities.

Last week, Bush threatened to veto a bipartisan Senate plan that would add $35 billion over five years to the State Children's Health Insurance Program (SCHIP). The decade-old program insures children in families that are not poor enough to qualify for Medicaid but are too poor to afford private insurance. The extra $7 billion a year offered by the Senate would cover a few million more children. New money for the purpose would come from raising the federal excise tax on cigarettes.

Several former Bush advisers have urged the White House to accept some such SCHIP plan. So have many governors in both parties and Republican leaders in the Senate. In 2003, Bush supported a Medicare bill that increased government spending on prescription drugs for elderly middle-income citizens by hundreds of billions of dollars. But he has pledged only $1 billion a year more for low-income children's health insurance. His spokesmen say doing any more for the "government-subsidized program" would encourage families to drop private insurance.

But the health-insurance market has already priced out working-poor families by the millions. With a growing population of low-income children, $1 billion a year more would be insufficient even to maintain current per capita child coverage levels. Some speculate that SCHIP is now hostage to negotiations over the president's broader plan to expand health coverage via tax cuts and credits. But his plan has no chance in this Congress; besides, treating health insurance for needy children as a political bargaining chip would be wrong.

Bush should return to Indianapolis. There, SCHIP covers children in families with incomes as high as three times the federal poverty line The Republican governor who signed that program into law is Mitch Daniels, Bush's first budget office director. For compassion's sake, the president should compromise on SCHIP—say, $5 billion a year more—and work to leave no child uninsured.

Mr. CASEY. I will not read it, but I want to highlight some of what he said. He talked about the President and what has been happening with this debate on children's health insurance. He made this point in the second to the last paragraph:

> Treating health insurance for needy children as a political bargaining chip—

And he's referring to the President's other health care ideas——

> would be wrong.

He talks about the fact that Mitch Daniels, who worked in a Republican administration—he is the Governor now, Governor of Indiana, also a great supporter of this program. Mr. DiIulio concludes this way. He says:

> For compassion's sake, the President should compromise on SCHIP . . .

And allow this to move forward.

I have to say, some of what we heard in the last couple of days has been misleading. In the end it is about this: It is about whether we are going to be fair to families across America, not whether the Senate likes a program or doesn't like it. This is about whether we are going to be fair to families.

Anyone who has had the experience of being a parent knows when their child is born, that parent, whoever they are, falls in love again. My wife and I have four daughters, and we know that feeling. So many others here do as well. As a parent, you always want to love your children and protect them. When a child is injured or gets sick, the first instinct of any parent, but especially a mother, is to hug that child, to dry their tears, and to soothe their pain immediately—not months later, not days later, but immediately. Of course if it is more serious you want to get them to a doctor or a hospital.

But for millions of parents—that is why this bill is so important to get done—for millions of parents that hug that they give their son or daughter, that warm embrace and the comfort that a hug can bring to a child—that will often be all that they have at the end of the road because their son or daughter has no health insurance, like the millions of children we have talked about in the last couple of days. If that child cries in the dark of night from pain or if they endure the slow ache of disease or sickness, the mother cannot bring the full measure of her love to that child. In essence, the mother is rendered powerless because of that. Just think of what that does to a mother and to a family.

When we have debates on this floor about this bill, none of it matters—none of the debate in the last couple of days will have mattered if it does not result in a total commitment to the children of America. Unfortunately, if the President gets his way, we will have failed that basic test about a full commitment to our children.

I will conclude with one line. When my father served as Governor of Pennsylvania, it was one of the first States to have a children's health insurance program. He knew the benefits of it. His test for every public official in every difficult fight was very simple, but it is a very tough test: What did you do when you had the power?

This Senate has the power this week to tell the President that he is wrong about children's health insurance, but more important to tell America that we have made a full commitment to the children of America. If we pass that test we will have done our job. If this body does not, it will have failed that test when we had the power to positively impact millions of children, to have exercised that power on behalf of that child, his or her family, and all of America.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana.

Mr. BAUCUS. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that following the remarks of Senator ALLARD, during which he will offer an amendment, then the Senator from New Jersey, Mr. MENENDEZ, be recognized; following Senator MENENDEZ, Senator LOTT be recognized; and following Senator LOTT, Senator OBAMA.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 2536 TO AMENDMENT NO. 2530

Mr. ALLARD. Madam President, I ask the pending amendment be set aside, and we call up Allard amendment No. 2536.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The clerk will report.

> The Senator from Colorado [Mr. ALLARD] proposes an amendment numbered 2536 to amendment No. 2530.

Mr. ALLARD. I ask unanimous consent the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To standardize the determination of income for purposes of eligibility for SCHIP)

SEC. ___. STANDARDIZATION OF DETERMINATION OF FAMILY INCOME.

(a) ELIGIBILITY BASED ON GROSS INCOME.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 2110 (42 U.S.C. 1397jj) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(d) STANDARDIZATION OF DETERMINATION OF FAMILY INCOME.—A State shall determine family income for purposes of determining income eligibility for child health assistance or other health benefits coverage under the State child health plan (or under a waiver of such plan under section 1115) solely on the basis of the gross income (as defined by the Secretary) of the family.".

(2) PROHIBITION ON WAIVER OF REQUIREMENTS.—Section 2107(f) (42 U.S.C. 1397gg(f)), as amended by section 106(a)(2)(A), is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(3) The Secretary may not approve a waiver, experimental, pilot, or demonstration project with respect to a State after the date of enactment of the Children's Health Insurance Program Reauthorization Act of 2007 that would waive or modify the requirements of section 2110(d) (relating to determining income eligibility on the basis of gross income) and regulations promulgated to carry out such requirements.".

(b) REGULATIONS.—Not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall promulgate interim final regulations defining gross income for purposes of section 2110(d) of the Social Security Act, as added by subsection (a)(1).

(c) APPLICATION TO CURRENT ENROLLEES.—The interim final regulations promulgated under subsection (b) shall not be used to determine the income eligibility of any individual enrolled in a State child health plan under title XXI of the Social Security Act on the date of enactment of this Act before the date on which such eligibility of the individual is required to be redetermined under the plan as in effect on such date. In the case of any individual enrolled in such plan on such date who, solely as a result of the application of subsection (d) of section 2110 of the Social Security Act (as added by subsection (a)(1))) and the regulations promulgated under subsection (b), is determined to be ineligible for child health assistance under the State child health plan, a State may elect, subject to substitution of the Federal medical assistance percentage for the enhanced FMAP under section 2105(a)(1) of the Social Security Act, to continue to provide the individual with such assistance for so long as the individual otherwise would be eligible for such assistance and the individual's family income, if determined under the income and resource standards and methodologies applicable under the State child health plan on September 30, 2007, would not exceed the income eligibility level applicable to the individual under the State child health plan.

Mr. ALLARD. Madam President, today I come to the floor to offer an amendment for the purpose of upholding the original intent of the State Children's Health Insurance Program, which is commonly known as SCHIP. In 1997, a Republican-led Congress passed SCHIP to help States provide health coverage to low-income children. Current law defines a targeted low-income child as one who is under the age of 19 years, uninsured, and who would not have been eligible for Medicaid in 1997.

States may set the upper income eligibility level at 200 percent of the Federal poverty level or 50 percentage points above the State's Medicaid income level. But that is not what is happening today.

In my State of Colorado, we had a health care summit meeting early on in the year. It was very popular, well attended by representatives of health providers all over the State of Colorado. They had this to say: We think the SCHIP program is successful, and we think it ought to provide care to needy children, those who are uninsured. They further stated that there needs to be some equity among the various States and the money they get for SCHIP.

Today, anywhere between 12 and 15 States have income thresholds above 200 percent of the Federal poverty level or 50 percent above the State's Medicare income level, which was provided for in the original legislation. So we have 12 or 15 States that have figured out how to get around that provision. States such as California, Maryland, Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Vermont use income disregards to expand their income thresholds beyond the intent of the SCHIP program.

As of July 2006, just a year ago, New Jersey topped the list at 350 percent of the Federal poverty level, at $72,275 for a family of four, I am told.

In fiscal year 2005, nearly half of all children in the United States were covered by Medicaid or SCHIP. SCHIP was never intended to cover all 77 million children in the United States. It was never intended to make all children, regardless of income, dependent on Government for access to health insurance.

In April, New York passed its budget which expanded SCHIP to 400 percent of the Federal poverty level or $82,600 for a family of four. By disregarding specific types of incomes, States can ignore earnings between 200 percent of Federal poverty level and their upper limit, as if that income did not even exist. States should not be disregarding large portions of income to avoid SCHIP eligibility levels. Rather than returning SCHIP to its true intent, the pending legislation makes a deliberate choice to drive up eligibility levels.

My amendment brings the language back to the original intent of SCHIP. My amendment would require that a family's gross income be used to determine eligibility for SCHIP, and that the Secretary of Health and Human Services would determine new regulations for eligibility for SCHIP by establishing what is referred to as "gross income" and having that defined at a certain level.

States would still have the opportunity to cover any child who was determined to be ineligible for SCHIP based on the changes made by this amendment. They would remain eligible for the program, but the State would be reimbursed according to the Federal medical assistance percentage rate rather than the enhanced Federal medical assistance percentage rate.

So I ask my fellow Senators to support me and fellow Republicans in supporting the SCHIP reauthorization. My amendment tracks current law that upholds SCHIP's original intent, and that is for low-income children. Supporting this alternative is a step toward renewing our commitment to America's most vulnerable population; that is, our children.

I will yield the floor.

Mr. LOTT. Madam President, if the distinguished Senator would withhold so I could just address a couple of questions to him on his amendment? The amendment would say that the States have to take into consideration the gross income of the family, not including certain so-called income disregards.

That is the way we talk in Washington, but to the average man and woman, what are we talking about? Are we saying, even though we think they may have other sources of income—I don't know what that might be, and I was going to ask you, are you talking about rental income? Are you talking about some part-time income? I wonder, what types of things are used by these various States to reduce the gross level of income so they can get under this, whatever it is, 350 percent of poverty or—400 percent of poverty is the newest application, I understand, from New York. Do you have any information on that?

Mr. ALLARD. I thank the Senator from Mississippi for his question. Here is what my amendment does. It directs the Secretary of Health and Human Services to establish rules and regulations to set a uniform gross income among the States. He has 90 days, once the bill becomes law, to do that. This will give the States further opportunity to give their input to the Secretary, and it gives him some flexibility to listen to what their concerns are, but says then these States all have to operate under the same rules.

Some States, for example, when they looked at total gross income, have not included income benefits from other programs. Some States have. So this amounted to a considerable amount of discrepancy, particularly in high-income States where the benefits are running much higher.

So we see some States that are getting a much higher rate of benefit through SCHIP than perhaps the more responsible States, such as your State of Mississippi, my State of Colorado, for example.

So this is an important amendment to bring some integrity to the program.

Mr. LOTT. I thank the Senator for his explanation and for his amendment because it is clear that through these waivers or through moves by various States, without questioning their motives, they have been able to develop a system which is very unequal among the States.

I found, for instance, the reimbursement rate to the States—by the States—as required by the States for Medicaid, for instance, varies greatly from as low as 50 percent to as high as 80 percent. That is not fair, and we need to do something about it. I thank the Senator for yielding.

Mr. ALLARD. I thank the Senator from Mississippi for his question.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Jersey.

Mr. MENENDEZ. Madam President, I rise in strong opposition to, first, the Bunning amendment, which is the one I particularly wish to talk about because it is a direct attack on children in New Jersey. I did not think I would come to the Senate and see such a refined focus on the children of anyone's State. But that is what the Bunning amendment does.

I am sure I could draft amendments that would hone in on the interests of any given State, but I do not think that is where we want to go as a Congress, as a Senate. I do not think that is particularly good public policy. So right now I am fuming.

Let me start off by saying I thought this was one country. One country. There are a lot of things I have voted for in the Senate and in my 15 years in the Congress, in the other body before I came here, that clearly did not specifically benefit my State, from crop disaster, to ethanol. I cannot get an E-85 pump in New Jersey; a whole host of things for farmers and the list goes on and on.

I looked at it, I always looked at it as one country. Sometimes in the allocation of resources there are certain needs that get taken care of in one part of the country, where in another part there are different needs. Those amendments are an attack directly upon that notion that this is one country.

I also think it is very easy to talk about income but never talk about costs, as if living in one part of the country automatically means that those costs are the same in another part of the country. Well, they are not. We recognize that in a variety of laws in which we give differentials to a whole host of different elements, from Federal employees to differentials for the military to a whole host of people based upon where they are stationed, because we recognize that, in fact, there are different costs of living in this country.

So it is interesting to talk about income but not talk about costs. You know what I am for? Let's make sure anyone in the Senate—I am sure everybody here makes in excess of 350 percent of the Federal poverty level. Let's eliminate health care for all of those that you ultimately get by virtue of the taxpayers' dollars.

Do you deserve health care more than children who happen to fall into that category? These are the children of working families. They are not poor, as in not working, because if they were, they would get Medicaid. But they are the children of those individuals who are working, and work at some of the toughest jobs, and yet make an income that does not allow them to purchase health insurance and their job does not seem to offer health insurance.

There is a great universe of Americans whom we are trying to cover under the Children's Health Insurance Program. I agree. What is the goal? The goal is to cover children, children who do not have coverage otherwise. Well, this is exactly what we seek to do.

Now, you know, in New Jersey, we do cover 126,000 children. And, yes, we cover children up to 350 percent of the Federal poverty level. That means there are 3,000 New Jersey children who happen to fall in this category who are in the direct aim of the Bunning amendment, 3,000 children who today get health care who would be knocked out by virtue of the Bunning amendment, and there may be one or two other States that focus on children as well.

My question is: Why are you targeting these children? What did they do to you? What did they do to you? You know, the difference is, maybe if I lived in Kentucky, I could afford to get health care based upon the incomes, but first of all, we have heard a lot of numbers bantered around here, some of which are clearly not true.

Three hundred fifty percent of the Federal poverty level is $60,095 for a family of three. So it is not $82,000, as some suggest, for starters. In fact, there is no child in this country, no child in this country covered up to that dollar amount—in the entire country. That is a scare tactic. It is shameful. We need to cover children up to 350 percent because New Jersey families face higher living costs.

They get less of their return on the Federal dollar, so again we cannot have a policy that doesn't take all of that into account. But let my lay it out for you. At the top of New Jersey's current eligibility level, a family might make somewhere around this $4,428.

Well, when you deduct housing costs in New Jersey, when you deduct food costs, when you deduct transportation to get to work, and I think a byproduct is that we want to, in our values, make sure we value the welfare of these children we are talking about and their health care, we also want to value work. One of the things these parents are doing is they are working. Now, they could not be working and be on welfare and ultimately be eligible for Medicaid. But we want to value work as well. They are working.

So they have to get to work. They have child care costs. Here is what the Department of Insurance in New Jersey says is the cost monthly—monthly—for family care in New Jersey, for family health insurance: $2,065. Now, this does not have utility costs, this does not have clothing, this does not have any emergency expenses for the family. This is no buffer. No buffer. What is the consequence of that to this family if they were trying to have health insurance? They would be in the red each month by $1,200, which means that they simply will not have health insurance, they simply will not have health insurance, and these kids would not have health insurance.

Now, that is the goal of the program, to provide health insurance for children who are not so poor that they would get it under Medicaid, but, in fact, are in a set of circumstances where because their parents work, and not getting insurance at work, they find themselves in that category for which there is no coverage and no money to be covered by virtue of their family income.

So it simply does not do it. It simply does not do it. It is basic math. That is why New Jersey enrolls children up to 350 percent of the Federal poverty level, because if you live in New Jersey with that income, without this coverage, children would not have health insurance. Purchasing a private plan—no matter the tax incentives, I have heard some of the tax incentives that are being offered. There is some suggestion of a $5,000 tax credit. Great. Well, that is 2½ months of health care coverage in New Jersey.

What do we do for the rest of the time? Do we roll the dice? Are we supposed to hope for the other 10 months they do not get sick, they do not get preventative care? That is what our public policy is all about? That is what our values are as a Senate, as a country? I do not think so.

Now, the fact of the matter is, I urge my colleagues to think about this, because in New Jersey, you need to have $43,060 to purchase the same goods in Kentucky for $32,669. That is about $11,000 more to do the same thing as if you are living in Kentucky.

Now, the realty is, that is why one-size-fits-all does not work. I have heard many times on the debates here: States know best, let's have flexibility.

Well, this is a perfect example of how that flexibility has given us the wherewithal to cover children. I must say, I wish to warn my colleagues that supporting the Bunning amendment is about dumping children off the Child Health Insurance Program. It is the beginning of a slippery slope. So now we begin to eradicate those who are at 350 percent, we take them off; so then somebody comes up with another amendment, let's do 300 percent, let's eliminate that; then let's bring someone else who brings in 275 percent, and then the list goes on and on.

Before you know it, instead of having a program that covers more children in our country, we have less children covered. Less children covered in our country. I believe that, in fact, what we want to do is quite different. That is why I respect what the Senate Finance Committee did on a bipartisan basis. They looked at all the issues, all the costs, they looked at the goal of achieving, insuring more children in our country, keeping those who are in the 6.6 million, adding another 3.2 to 3.4 million, trying to reach the goal of insuring all our kids and doing it within a fiscal context that would allow it to happen. That is what this is about. That is what this is supposed to be about.

So I hope my colleagues do not join on the slippery slope that begins to cut back and cut back and cut back, that takes children off health care coverage because it would set a precedent that I think none of us would want to do at the end of the day, not only on children's health but on other issues that may be critical to our States.

I think this is about a set of values in the Senate. What are our values? We hear so much about children are our future. Yet our values speak to, if we pass this amendment, cutting children off health care, even though clearly there is a far greater cost to living in a State such as New Jersey than there is to living in a State such as Kentucky.

Now, there are a lot of things that go on in the Senate on different issues that clearly there is an appeal because of the nature of the unique challenges that States face. Well, we face a unique challenge. We want to make sure our children who are already on—by the way, these are children who already have coverage, who will lose coverage as a result of the Bunning amendment.

I am simply baffled. I thought we were about family values here. I thought we were about protecting children. I thought we were about increasing opportunity for children to ultimately be covered. I thought we were about enhancing the quality of life and protecting life. Obviously, it is the lives of children whom we are talking about, whom we put at risk by knocking off their coverage.

So I find it embarrassing that some in Washington, some in the very Senate who have about the best health care coverage in the world can come and offer amendments that they cannot live under, that they could not live under if, in fact, they had to.

What Member of the Senate does not make more than 350 percent of the Federal poverty level? Do you not deserve to have the Government subsidizing your health care? You should be out then. Let's have the amendment make that happen too before you take 3,000 kids off the Child Health Insurance Program. It is just incredible in my mind.

So I urge my colleagues, when the time comes, and I hope there will be a timeframe when that amendment is to be pursued because I will be vigorous in pursuing it on the floor, that we do not head down the slope of pitting one part of our Nation against another, pitting the realities of the difficulties of living in one part of our Nation versus the other, pitting children in one part of the Nation versus the other, pitting the very essence of preserving children and their health against some simple formula number that ultimately Members of this body could not live under themselves.

I think if it is good enough for us, it is good enough for these children. I would not want to see a vote that ultimately undermines the ability of thousands of children who presently get health care under this program to be eliminated. That would be a dark day in the Senate's history.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana.

Mr. BAUCUS. Madam President, notwithstanding an earlier agreement, I ask unanimous consent that Senator OBAMA be recognized to speak next and, following Senator OBAMA, Senator LOTT be recognized.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. OBAMA. Madam President, let me begin by thanking the Senator from Mississippi for allowing me to speak first. I appreciate his courtesy.

I also congratulate the Senator from New Jersey for his outstanding statement, sentiments which I fully share.

I will be brief.

As I have traveled across the country during these past several months, there are few issues that show a greater disconnect between what the American people want and the way Washington works than health care. Every single year people put it at the very top of the list of their concerns. Every year more people lose their insurance or watch their premiums skyrocket or open up medical bills they can't pay. Yet whenever the issue actually comes up in Washington, they watch health care debates play out that are filled with half truths and scare tactics. They see insurance companies run ads telling folks they will lose their doctor or wait forever if universal health care is passed. They watch the industry spend billions on lobbyists who use undue influence to block much needed reform. At the end of the day, nothing gets done, and we move on to fight about something else.

To most Americans, we seem completely disconnected from the reality they are living every single day, especially when we have a President who has actually said, and I quote:

> I mean, people have access to health care in America. After all, you just go to an emergency room.

That is what passes for universal health care in the greatest, wealthiest country on earth—overcrowded, understaffed emergency rooms that raise everyone's premiums and cost taxpayers more money. It is shameful. What is even more shameful is that 9 million of the Americans who are forced to wait in emergency rooms when they get sick, who have no health insurance at all, are children—children who did not choose where they were born or how much money their parents have, children whose development depends on the care and nourishment they receive in those early years, children whom any parent anywhere should want to protect at any cost.

We can shade the truth and pretend there are only 1 million uninsured, as the President says. We can make excuses for this neglect, we can start getting into an ideological argument, or we can just ignore the problem altogether. But as long as there are 9 million children in the United States with no health insurance, it is a betrayal of the ideals we hold as Americans. It is not who we are, and today is our chance to prove it.

We know CHIP works. Because of CHIP, 6 million children who would otherwise be uninsured have health care today. Because of CHIP, millions of children are protected when their parents lose their health care. Because of CHIP, individual States such as my home State of Illinois are building on its success to expand health coverage even further. And because of CHIP, millions of children with asthma, traumatic injuries, and mental health conditions are able to see a doctor and get the treatment they need.

Even though the uninsured rate among low-income children fell by more than one-third in the years after CHIP was enacted, the trend reversed 2 years ago. Since then, we have seen growing numbers of uninsured children. That is why I am always puzzled when we start getting into these debates that are ideologically driven about whether Government should provide coverage. If market-based solutions provided affordable coverage options for these children, then it wouldn't be necessary for the Government to help provide coverage, because these children wouldn't be uninsured. The reason they are uninsured is because their parents can't afford private coverage.

Uninsured children are twice as likely as insured children to miss out on much needed medical care, including doctor visits and checkups. One-quarter of uninsured children don't get any medical care at all. Those who do get lower quality care. Even with the same illness and conditions, whether it is an ear infection or appendicitis, studies have found that uninsured children get different treatment and often suffer more as a result. One study even found that uninsured children who are admitted to a hospital with injuries are twice as likely to die as children who are admitted with health insurance.

To put this problem in the larger context, we know that when a child gets sick and can't get treated or receives inadequate treatment, he misses more days of school. When he misses more days of school, he begins to do worse relative to his peers. That can have long-term consequences on his chances in life. That is not something I want for either of my two young daughters or for any American child. This body should not want it for any child either.

Let's get serious and solve this problem. Let's reauthorize CHIP. Let's make sure that the 6 million children who are now covered through the program continue to be covered. Let's extend coverage to an additional 3.2 million uninsured children.

We also know the question of children's health care is tied to the larger question of universal care in this country. Because we know that when we cover parents, we also cover children. That is something we have seen in Illinois. When I was a State senator, I was able to help extend health care coverage to an additional 150,000 parents and their children. So if we are serious about covering every child, at some point we are going to have to cover every parent as well.

The American people have been waiting for us to act on health care for far too long. Starting by covering more children should not be a difficult issue to agree on. I urge every Senator to vote for this bill. I know the President has threatened to use his veto, which he has so sparingly used, to deny health insurance to America's children. I urge my colleagues to stand and fight that veto every which way we can. There is not a single person here who, if their child were sick and they couldn't afford health insurance, wouldn't be begging the Government to give them some help. We wouldn't be having these arguments. Let's show some empathy for the families out there, many of whom are working every single day, sometimes working two jobs and still don't have health insurance. Let's make sure they have what every parent wants, which is some assurance that if their child gets ill, they are going to receive the kind of care they deserve.

Let's cover our children and remind the American people who we are and why they sent us here in the first place.

I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. LOTT. I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LOTT. Madam President, we were alternating back and forth on both sides, but the Senator from Illinois had a need to go forward. I agreed that he would go first and then I would follow.

Let me say on the bill we have here, again, it is very easy to get up and talk about children and the need to help children. That affects us all. I am a parent. I am a grandparent. There is nothing that excites me more in the world than going to see my four little grandchildren. I can't stand the thought of children anywhere, regardless of income level, not getting the kind of health care they need. That is why I voted for SCHIP in 1997. I remember Senator KENNEDY was in the debate. Senator Phil Gramm of Texas had a little different point of view. Senator HATCH was involved. We came to a conclusion. We got a good program to help children who did not have health care. I thought we had done a good thing.

The problem here is, we are exploding the program in terms of costs, tax increases, or cuts in the House. They are not doing the tobacco tax increase. They are cutting Medicare Advantage which affects people at the other end of the age schedule, people who need Medicare Advantage to get health care in rural areas in States such as mine.

There is a balance here. Why can't we agree on a reasonable increase to make sure we continue to cover children who would not be covered otherwise. Also what is happening here is a steady march toward higher and higher and higher income level children. You heard Senator ALLARD talk about the fact, now we are up in the range of $73,000 income for a family of four. The ultimate goal is for all children to be covered by "Mother Washington," Washington bureaucracy health care. Why should any family have to worry, regardless of income, or any State have to worry about children being covered of all ages, forever, for everything, including dental care?

I agree, dental needs can be as damaging healthwise as any other illness. I am connected to a family of dentists, dental hygienists, and dental technicians. But the question is, how much can the Government pay for? Why can't we keep some limits? Why do we want to force people off of private insurance? We are going to have children now covered by private insurance going into SCHIP or Medicaid. Why are we trying to force everybody on to SCHIP?

This chart shows what is happening. When we started this program in 1997, the next year, 1998, the children enrollment in Medicaid and SCHIP, the children's health program, was 27 percent covered by Medicaid, 1 percent was covered by the Children's Health Insurance Program, and 72 percent by other programs including private insurance. By 2005, it had grown to 37 percent covered by Medicaid, 8 percent by the CHIP program, and 55 percent other. With this bill, the underlying bill going into effect the way it is now, it will jump to 71 percent of all children will be covered by Medicaid and SCHIP, and only 29 percent other. You see the steady march toward every child being covered by this particular program.

The problem with this bill can be described with A, B, C. Not only have you had the steady march of higher and higher income level children being covered, adults are being covered. Where is the "A" in SCHIP? Again, it is a creeping thing. First, gee whiz, yes, it is supposed to be for children, but pregnant mothers should be covered and what about parents of children. There are some other adults that maybe need some extra consideration, too. So it is not only higher and higher income children, it is adults and more adults and even more adults. So the first appropriate problem is adults, A.

B, we are talking billions here. The underlying program is $25 billion. The Finance Committee adds 35 at a minimum on top of that. And in the outyears it expands tremendously, up to, I think in the year 2012, the number is maybe 37 billion in that single year. Remember, if we pass the Finance Committee bill, that 60 billion—25 plus 35, it will be 60 billion—the House is going to pass a bill at what, 80, 90, 100 billion, paid for by taking money away from Medicare beneficiaries and we go to conference, if we go to conference. What will happen? What always happens, you split the difference. We are at 60; they are at 90. How about 75, $75 billion? How is that going to be paid for? It is going to be paid for by cutting benefits for the elderly and/or raising taxes for all kinds of people.

We can fix this, though. It gets back to the A, B, C. Keep to the core mission, children who are low-income families. We need to get back to that. We have some good amendments pending. We should pass the Bunning amendment which would eliminate the high income eligibility above 300 percent, the Allard amendment which would stop the income disregards which drives the income level up steadily, and I understand that Senator GREGG will have one that will strike the adult coverage.

We can fix this. We could get together on a bill that would be bipartisan and would help the children who do need it, the ones we started out to help before we got the bright idea we will cover everybody by the Children's Health Insurance Program.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KENNEDY. Madam President, I was wondering if the Senator would yield for a question.

Mr. LOTT. Madam President, I am glad to yield.

Mr. KENNEDY. Madam President, I see the Senator from Wyoming. I want to address the Senate for a minute, but I want to inquire of the good Senator from Mississippi if I could engage him in a question or two.

I listened with great interest to the Senator from Mississippi talking about the cost of this program and the paying of this program. Does the Senator agree with me that every Member of the Senate has a health insurance program that is funded and financed 72 percent by the Federal taxpayer? Does the Senator agree with me on that?

Mr. LOTT. Madam President, we do have a program that has input from the Treasury, yes.

Mr. KENNEDY. Well, the input is 72 percent for every Member in our health insurance program. Every Member's program, Republican and Democrat, is paid for by the American taxpayer, No. 1. Secondly——

Mr. LOTT. Well, if I can respond, I have a solution. Let's cut that. Maybe we are not entitled to that.

Mr. KENNEDY. If the Senator wants to offer that amendment, fine. I hear him talk about children, but I do not hear him talk about that.

Secondly, would the Senator not agree with me that Members of the Senate have access to Bethesda Naval Hospital and Walter Reed Hospital and virtually free care at those places, which the children of America do not have? Would the Senator not agree with me that we are treating Members of Congress one way and the children another way?

Mr. LOTT. Well, now, Madam President, I might say, the Senator has been here much longer than I have, and I presume he would know the origin of how these programs were created and voted for or against them. But I want to correct something he said right at the beginning. I have not advocated cutting children. I advocate covering the children who are now covered and making sure we cover the children we have committed to. What I am opposed to is the ever increasing income level and number of children and adults.

What about adults who are being covered by this program? If it is going to be "ACHIP," adults-children health insurance program, that is one thing. But I would like to keep the focus on covering the children who really need it and would not be able to get it perhaps through a private insurance program or in Medicaid.

But if the Senator wants to propose we cut the Senator's benefits, I will be glad to join him in that.

Mr. KENNEDY. I am for having a universal——

Mr. LOTT. Everything we are doing to ourselves, we might as well do that too. That would be fine with me. If we could control the growth of this program, I would be more than glad to help pay for it.

Mr. KENNEDY. If the Senator will yield for one more question. He was talking about coverage. We have 9 million children who are not covered. All of our children are covered. We have $160,000 in income, and every one of our children is covered. Why is the Senator so concerned about trying to cover the remaining children who are not covered in this country? Under this program, we cover 4 million more. All of our children are covered. We have $160,000 in income.

Mr. LOTT. I am perfectly delighted to do that. Of course, my children are grown, and they are not covered at all by this, but I would be glad, to control that, to do anything the Senator wants to do to the Senate. I suspect it richly deserves it.

And another thing, what I am saying is, one State is only covering children up to 200 percent, other States now have 350 percent, or even one of them is now wanting 400 percent of poverty for children and adults.

All I am saying is, stick with the program we intended. Let's not turn this into just a Washington bureaucratic health-run program. That is what this is all about. This is about moving us toward a system we could not get any other way, where the Government will pay for and control everything in terms of health coverage in America. I do not believe the American people want it.

I worry about my children and grandchildren in this respect. What kind of burden are we putting on their backs in terms of what they will have to pay for in the future? Does nobody ever think about that anymore? Every program is growing exponentially; every one of them. So I worry about my grandchildren having to pay for all the things we are coming up with here.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana.

Mr. BAUCUS. Madam President, the Senate has been very gracious in working out times. Two Democratic Senators spoke, and Senator LOTT had the floor. So I ask consent now that the Senator from Wyoming, Mr. BARRASSO, be able to speak—that would be two Republicans in a row—and following him, if he wishes, that Senator KENNEDY be recognized to give a statement on the bill for about 15 minutes. I thank the Senator.

So I ask consent that Senator BARRASSO be recognized, and following Senator BARRASSO that Senator KENNEDY be recognized.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wyoming.

Mr. BARRASSO. Thank you, Madam President.

Today, I rise to speak about health care for children. We are talking about the SCHIP program, and I come to the floor with great interest because the "S" in SCHIP stands for State, and the "C" stands for children.

For the last 5 years, I spent time in the Wyoming Legislature on the Labor, Health, and Social Services Committee, where we worked closely on the issue of children's health, and specifically worked closely with SCHIP.

I have been a fan and a supporter of children's health, and specifically of SCHIP. In Wyoming, SCHIP has been a very successful program. In Wyoming, right now, there are over 5,000 young people who are in this program. Madam President, 5,642 was our count in July. We call the program Kid Care. That is because kids can be born with club feet. Kids can fall at the playground. Kids can have problems with measles or mumps.

Nationwide, this very successful program has covered over 6 million children. It is a good program. Some folks confuse SCHIP with Medicaid. They are very different. Medicaid is designed for people below the poverty level. SCHIP is for people above the poverty level, but in that income range of up to 200 percent of the Federal poverty level. For us, that is an income of about $40,000 a year for a family of four.

In Wyoming, if you talk to anyone in the legislature, from both parties, they will tell you this program has been cost effective. It is not an entitlement. It is done through a combined partnership with Blue Cross-Blue Shield, a public-private partnership. It covers the people in Wyoming who are intended to be covered.

Many Government programs do not work well or produce results. Yet SCHIP very successfully achieved what it set out to do about 10 years ago when the program began. We have significantly reduced the number of uninsured children in America. It has worked. That is why I want to be clear from the outset, as we go into this debate, I am 100 percent committed to reauthorizing this very important safety net program for kids. I strongly supported the program as a State senator. I will continue to do so in my capacity as a U.S. Senator.

Madam President, 5,642 Wyoming children depend on SCHIP right now to stay healthy. There are additional young people in our State who are eligible for SCHIP but who are not yet enrolled. So I want to do more in terms of outreach, working on outreach and enrollment efforts to find these people, to target these low-income children, and get them enrolled in the program.

I want to support and enhance public-private collaborations to make sure we are doing the most cost-effective, efficient, and quality health care possible for these young people, but mostly I want to make sure this Senate and this Congress produces a reasonable, commonsense piece of legislation that we can send to the President and that he will sign.

I have concerns with the bill that is in front of us. This bill, this piece of legislation, reported out of the Finance Committee, takes a successful spending program and uses it as a vehicle to create a new entitlement. The bill that I look at today covers high-income people, covers people who already have insurance, and covers adults. To me, this bill should be all about children.

Well, let's look at those three concerns.

High-income people: This bill allows families at 400 percent of the poverty level to be covered. In New York State, that is an income of $82,600 a year. In New Jersey, 350 percent of the poverty level is an income of over $72,000 a year. At home in Wyoming, we play by the rules. It is 200 percent of the poverty level. That is what we need. That is what works.

Are there kids in New York and New Jersey who need to be covered? Of course. There are kids everywhere who need to be covered. But why the different rules for different States? And why so many high-income people as part of the program?

So that is No. 1.

No. 2, people who already have health insurance: When you start to cover children in families above that 200 percent of the poverty level, many of those children are in families where they already have insurance. Madam President, 77 percent of the children in families between 200 and 300 percent of the poverty level have private health insurance. When you go above that, above the 300 percent level, between 300 and 400 percent of the Federal poverty level, 89 percent of those children are in families where they have private health insurance.

When you do the math and look at the numbers, people in those categories will be financially compelled to take their children off of the private, usually employer-sponsored health care plans, and put them on the taxpayer-supported plans.

The Congressional Budget Office looked at this, and they think, with this plan, 2.1 million people will move from private coverage to Government dependency, if this legislation is enacted.

This is supposed to be a program to help children, children who do not have health insurance. It seems as if some in this body may be trying to use this plan to nationalize health insurance.

The third thing I see that is a concern with this plan is in some places it covers adults, not just children. It covers the parents of children. Nowhere—nowhere—in the word "SCHIP" is there the letter "A" for adults. The "C" stands for children.

This country does need to have a serious debate on health care, and it should not be on the backs of these children covered under SCHIP. In the future, we need to debate health care in America, how we pay for health care, how we encourage people to better care for themselves, to take more responsibility for their own health, what incentives we can have for people to stay well, how insurance is used in this Nation. Should it be deductible for all, instead of just in businesses and not by individuals? Should there be tax credits? Is there a way we can set up small business health plans to help people who need insurance?

I find that people are very thoughtful when it comes to how they spend their own money. So often, in the medical world, very few people spend the same kind of time making those financial decisions as they do when they are spending money out of their own pocket, when it is a third-party payer who is doing the spending.

In the future, we need to have a debate and discussion about how we handle medical errors in this country: No. 1, how to prevent them from ever happening; and, No. 2, how to deal with the fact that when they occur, we want to make sure people are taken care of quickly, and that anything that goes to them goes more to the injured party than it does to the system.

We need to find ways to lower the significant cost in America of defensive medicine.

These are all very serious issues. They all deserve a serious national debate, and that day will come. But the bill today wrongly attempts to massively expand a successful program under excessive spending for many people who do not need it, and it avoids a debate we need to have on health care in America.

With that, I yield the floor.

Mr. KENNEDY. Madam President, I believe I have 15 minutes. Am I correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is not limited.

Mr. KENNEDY. Well, Madam President, I think the floor manager intended to yield me 15 minutes, for which I am very grateful.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana.

Mr. BAUCUS. Madam President, I ask my friend, how long does he wish to speak, 15, 20 minutes?

Mr. KENNEDY. Fifteen minutes.

I see the Senator from Connecticut on the floor. I know we had accommodated the Senator from Illinois a short while ago. I do not mind accommodating him. I see, then, the Senator from Kentucky on the floor.

Could I ask my friend from Kentucky, if we do not exceed 15 minutes, would he mind if I yielded a few minutes to the Senator from Connecticut? We basically are going from one side to the other.

Mr. BUNNING. To the Senator from Connecticut? That would be perfectly all right, just so long as I get the time that was allotted to me.

Mr. KENNEDY. Madam President, if it is agreeable with the floor manager, I would take 11 minutes and yield the Senator 4 minutes, if that is OK. Would the Chair remind me when I have used 10 minutes and I have 1 minute left?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator will be notified.

Mr. KENNEDY. Madam President, many of the best ideas in public policy are the simplest.

The Children's Health Insurance Program is based on one simple and powerful idea—that all children deserve a healthy start in life, and that no parents should have to worry about whether they can afford to take their child to the doctor when the child is sick. CHIP can make the difference between a child starting life burdened with disease, or a child who is healthy and ready to learn and grow.

This need not be a partisan issue. My good friend Senator HATCH and I worked together in 1997 to create this program that was our shared vision for a healthier future for American children. This year we have once again worked together to find common ground on covering the children who deserve decent, quality health care.

In Massachusetts in the 1990s we agreed that health care coverage for children is a necessity and that action needed to be taken. In 1993, the Massachusetts Legislature passed the Children's Medical Security Plan, which guaranteed quality health care to children in families ineligible for Medicaid and unable to afford health insurance.

A year later, Massachusetts expanded eligibility for Medicaid and financed the expansion through a tobacco tax—the same approach we used successfully a few years later for CHIP and he same approach that is proposed in the bill before us now.

Rhode Island followed and other States took similar action and helped create a nationwide demand for action by Congress to address the unmet needs of vast numbers of children for good health care.

In 1997, Congress acted on that call, and the result was CHIP. Senator HATCH and I worked together then—as we have this year—to focus on guaranteeing health care to children who need it. Now, in every State in America and in Puerto Rico, CHIP covers the services that give children a healthier start in life—well child care, vaccinations, doctor visits, emergency services, and many others.

We know that CHIP works. Children across America depend on it for their health care, but there are still too many children that are left uninsured.

In its first year 1997, CHIP enrolled nearly a million children, and enrollment has grown ever since. An average of 4 million are now covered each month, and 6 million are enrolled each year. In every State in America and in Puerto Rico, CHIP covers the services that give children a healthier start in life—well child care, vaccinations, doctor visits, emergency services, and many others.

As a result, in the past decade, the percentage of uninsured children has dropped from almost 23 percent in 1997 to 14 percent today. That reduction is significant, but it is obviously far from enough.

Children on CHIP are more likely to have a regular source of care than uninsured children. Ninety-seven percent of CHIP children can see a doctor regularly compared to only 62 percent of uninsured children.

What does this mean for these children? It means that their overall quality of life is improved because they can get the care they need when they need it. Their parents are more confident that they can get the health care they need, they are more likely to have a real doctor and a real place to obtain care, and their parents don't delay seeking care when their child needs it. Children on CHIP also have significantly more access to preventive care.

Studies also show that CHIP helps to improve children's school performance. After just 1 year on CHIP, children pay better attention in class and are more likely to keep up with all school activities. When children are receiving the health care they need, they do better academically, emotionally, physically and socially. CHIP helps create children who will be better prepared to contribute to America.

CHIP has perhaps had the greatest impact on minority communities. Sadly, we still have persistent racial and ethnic health disparities in America. African Americans have a lower life expectancy than Whites. Many Americans want to believe such disparities don't exist, but ignoring them only contributes more to the widening gap between the haves and have-nots. Minority children are much more likely to suffer from asthma, diabetes, HIV/AIDS and other diseases than their White counterparts.

Minorities are more likely to be uninsured than Whites. More than half of all children who receive public health insurance belong to a racial and ethnic minority group. The good news is that since the beginning of CHIP, the number of uninsured Latino children has decreased by nearly one-third and the number of uninsured African-American children has decreased by almost half.

Having CHIP works for minority children. CHIP all but eliminates the distressing racial and ethnic health disparities for the minority children who disproportionately depend on it for their coverage. Minority children are more likely to have their health care needs met. In other word, they can see the doctor when they need to, go to the hospital and get the medicines they need, just like other children, when they are on CHIP.

They are also more likely to have a real doctor—not just sporadic visits to the emergency room—when they are covered by CHIP.

For specific diseases like asthma, children on CHIP have much better outcomes than when they were uninsured.

CHIP's success is even more impressive and important when we realize that more and more adults are losing their own insurance coverage, because employers reduce it or drop it entirely.

That is why organizations representing children, or the health care professionals who serve them, agree that preserving and strengthening CHIP is essential to children's health. The American Academy of Pediatrics, First Focus, the American Medical Association, the National Association of Children's Hospitals and countless other organizations dedicated to children all strongly support CHIP.

> Ennrollment in SCHIP is associated with improved access, continuity, and quality of care, and a reduction in racial/ethnic disparities. As pediatricians, we see what happens when children don't receive necessary health care services such as immunizations and well-child visits. Their overall health suffers and expensive emergency room visits increase.

Today, we are here to dedicate ourselves to carrying on the job begun by Congress 10 years ago, and to make sure that the lifeline of CHIP is strengthened and extended to many more children.

Millions of children now eligible for CHIP or Medicaid are not enrolled in these programs. Of the 9 million uninsured children, over two-thirds—more than 6 million—are already eligible for Medicaid or CHIP. These programs are there to help them, but these children are not receiving that help either because their parents don't know about the programs, or because of needless barriers to enrollment.

Think about that number—9 million children in the wealthiest and most powerful nation on Earth. Nine million children whose only family doctor is the hospital emergency room. Nine million children at risk of blighted lives and early death because of illnesses that could easily be treated if they have a regular source of medical care.

Nine million uninsured children in America isn't just wrong—it is outrageous, and we need to change it as soon as possible.

We know where the Bush administration stands. The President's proposal for CHIP doesn't provide what is needed to cover children who are eligible but unenrolled. In fact, the President's proposal is $8 billion less than what is needed simply to keep children now enrolled in CHIP from losing their current coverage—$8 billion short. To make matters worse, the President has threatened to veto the Senate bill which does the job that needs to be done if we are serious about guaranteeing decent health care to children of working families across America.

We cannot rely on the administration to do what is needed. We in Congress have to step up to the plate and renew our commitment to CHIP.

The Senate bill is a genuine bipartisan compromise.

It provides coverage to 4 million children who would otherwise be uninsured.

It adjusts the financing structure of CHIP so that States that are covering their children aren't forced to scramble for additional funds from year to year and so that Congress doesn't have to pass a new band-aid every year to stop the persistent bleeding under the current program.

Importantly, this bill will not allow States to keep their CHIP funds if they aren't doing something to actually cover children.

Equally important, this bill allows each State to cover children at income levels that make sense for their State.

The bill also supports quality improvement and better outreach and enrollment efforts for the program. It is a scandal that 6 million children today who are eligible for the program are not enrolled in it.

In sum, this bill moves us forward together, Republicans and Democrats alike, to guarantee the children of America the health care they need and deserve.

Our priority should be not merely to hold on to the gains of the past, but to see that all children have an access to decent coverage. Families with greater means should pay a fair share of the coverage. But every parent in America should have the opportunity to meet the health care needs of their children.

In Massachusetts, I met a woman named Dedre Lewis. Her daughter Alexsiana developed an eye disease that if left untreated would make her go blind. Because of our State CHIP program, Masshealth, Dedre is able to get the medicine and doctors visits need to prevent Alexsiana's blindness. Dedre said this:

> If I miss a single appointment, I know she could lose her eyesight. If I can't buy her medication, I know she could lose her eyesight. If I didn't have Masshealth, my daughter would be blind.

This is the impact CHIP has on families across America.

Let me say that quality health for children isn't just an interesting option or a nice idea. It is not just something we wish we could do. It is an obligation. It is something we have to do. And it is something we can do today. I look forward to working with my colleagues to make sure this very important legislation is enacted.

I want to pick up on a theme I mentioned just a few minutes ago, and I stand to be corrected. I would say there is not a single Member of the Senate who doesn't take, effectively, the Federal employees insurance program, and in our situation, the Federal Government pays for 72 percent of it. We have one Member, and I admire him—I have just learned of his name, and I will not mention it here; I will ask whether I can include it as part of the RECORD rather than embarrass him—but it is a noble act on his part when he said that until we get universal coverage, he wasn't going to take this.

But the idea that all Americans ought to understand now is what we are standing for—and I again commend the Senator from Montana and the Senator from Iowa and my friend, Senator HATCH, when we worked together years ago, and Senator ROCKEFELLER on this program—is a rather simple and fundamental concept, and that is this: Every child in America ought to have a healthy start.

Here in the Senate, we are about expressing priorities. Those of us on this side of the aisle and a group on the other side—a small group on the other side, a courageous group on the other side—have stated that same concept, that every child in America should have a healthy start, No. 1; and No. 2, that every parent in America should be relieved of the anxiety of worrying about whether they have sufficient resources to be able to make sure their child is going to receive decent quality health care. Those are revolutionary thoughts, are they not? Those are surprising concepts; isn't that right?

Evidently, our friends on the other side of the aisle get all worked up about those two concepts—that all children in this country should have a healthy start and that mothers and fathers should be relieved of the anxiety that when their child has an earache or their child has a soar throat or their child has a headache, they have to wonder whether their child is 150 dollars or 175 dollars sick because that is what it costs to take them to the emergency room. So they wait overnight. They let the child get a little sicker. They have a sleepless night. They worry. They hope and they pray that their child gets better. Well, we in this body say that America can do better.

I listened to my friend—and he is my friend—from Mississippi talking about the cost of this program: $60 billion over 5 years. That is what we are spending in 5 months in Iraq—5 months in Iraq. What would the American people rather have—coverage for their children or a continued conflict in Iraq where we are losing the blood of our young men and women? This is the issue. Let's not complicate it. Let's not make it difficult. Let's not make it unreasonable. That is what this is about.

Sure, we have listened to the arguments: Oh, someone is going to have to pay for it. Yes, it is going to be those who are smoking. What is the result of increasing the tobacco tax? What is the direct result? Tobacco—cigarettes—when used as advertised increases deaths in America. Among whom? Among children. Every day, 2,800 children become addicted. Every year, 500,000 people die because of the use of tobacco. So what happens if we raise the tax 61 cents on cigarettes? You know what happens. Children stop smoking. Oh, they do? Yes, they do. Who says so? Who says so? Just look at the history of what has happened when we have increased the tax on cigarettes.

So I commend those on the Finance Committee for finding a revenue measure that will ensure—not that all children will stop smoking and end it but that this will be a major disincentive for young people to smoke. On the other hand, it gives children a healthy start and relieves the anxiety for parents.

So this is a measure which speaks for action. It speaks for justice. It speaks for fairness. It speaks for our values. I, for one, strongly believe in the concept of comprehensive health care, and we will have that debate at another place and at another time.

I know my children were covered. They are grown now, as others have been here, but I know when they needed health care, they were able to receive it. I remember very clearly that when my child lost his leg to cancer, we saw families in that chamber who were absolutely driven into poverty because they couldn't afford the same kind of health care we had.

This is a statement that we in the Senate find children to be a priority and find their parents to be a priority and find it to be in the interest of children to increase the tobacco tax.

This legislation makes a great deal of sense, and I again commend the sponsors for it.

Whatever time remains I yield to my friend and colleague from Connecticut.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Connecticut is recognized.

Mr. DODD. Madam President, I wish to begin my comments by thanking our colleague from Massachusetts once again for giving heart to an argument that sometimes gets lost in statistics and numbers.

As all of us know, every one of us has watched either fellow Members or others—our staffs or constituents—who have gone through the dreaded situation of watching a child in need of health care. We know how fortunate we are to be Members of Congress, as we receive a tremendous amount of support for health care services. The fact that we are living in a day and age in the 21st century when so many of our children, growing numbers in our society, are without any kind of health care coverage at all. It is shameful, to put it mildly. I commend the distinguished Senator from Montana, the chair of the Finance Committee, and once again the Senator from Massachusetts for his tremendous support of this effort.

I wish to offer an amendment at the appropriate time. As many of my colleagues know, over a period of 7 years, three Presidents, and two Presidential vetoes, I worked toward passage of the Family Medical Leave Act. It finally became law in 1993. Today, more than 50 million Americans have been able to take advantage of the protections of that law. It is related to the subject matter of the bill at hand, a little bit off center, but it's about caring for our families.

Last week, Senator Dole along with Donna Shalala and others, offered recommendations from the President's Commission on Care for America's Returning Wounded Warriors. They urged Congress to draft legislation to allow up to 6 months of family and medical leave for family members of troops who have sustained combat-related injuries and meet the other eligibility requirements of the law. We believe this is a worthwhile proposal, so I introduced the Support for Injured Servicemembers Act last week with several of my colleagues.

I am very grateful to Senator DOLE, a former colleague of ours, and the entire Commission for their thoughtful work on this crucial issue.

For 20 years, we have worked on legislation to extend family and medical leave to families in this country. So I hope that at the appropriate time, my amendment on this matter will be considered and unanimously adopted. There may be an argument on germaneness, but we can't wait to help the men and women who are injured in service to our country. I can't think of a more appropriate step for us to take than to allow these veterans who are recovering from their wounds to have a loved one with them during that period of recovery.

I wanted to lay out for my colleagues the value of this amendment, how valuable the protections of family and medical leave have been for families. In fact, we have introduced legislation to provide paid family and medical leave. I won't be offering that at this juncture, but now offer an extended unpaid leave program. My amendment would simply extend the period of job protection for up to six months for those who care for our returning heroes as they recover from their injuries. The reasons are obvious.

In the Wounded Warriors Commission survey, 33 percent of Active-Duty and 22 percent of Reserve components and 37 percent of retired/separated servicemembers report that family members or close friends relocated for extended periods of time to be with them while they were in the hospital. Twenty-one percent of Active-Duty, 15 percent of Reserve components, and 24 percent of retired/separated servicemembers say friends or family gave up a job to be with them or act as their caregiver.

It seems to me they shouldn't have to give up a job in order to be with a recuperating servicemember coming back from Iraq or Afghanistan. The Commission's findings indicate the critical role that family and friends play in the recovery of our wounded servicemembers. Currently FMLA provides for 3 months of job-protected unpaid leave to a spouse, parent or child acting as a caregiver for a person with a serious illness. The report indicates that many servicemembers rely on other family members or friends to care for them. My amendment allows these other caregivers—siblings, cousins, friends or significant others to take leave for up to six months, when our returning heroes need them the most, without fear of losing their jobs. My amendment goes beyond some other proposals in other ways as well. It covers caregivers staying with the recovering servicemember in a military hospital as well as those providing care at home. This proposal would apply to all individuals currently covered by FMLA, including federal civil servants, who might find themselves caring for a wounded warrior.

My amendment only addresses servicemembers with combat-related injuries. This is a narrow universe of individuals who experience extraordinary circumstances. Taking care of our soldiers, sailors, airman and Marines returning from Iraq and Afghanistan was the point of the Commission and the Wounded Warriors Act that we recently passed. I can't think of anything more important that we could do this week before August break than to pass a proposal that would provide these service men and women the opportunity to have a loved one with them as they recover.

I send my amendment to the desk. I thank my colleague from Massachusetts for his tireless work, the Senator from Montana, of course, and the Senator from Iowa, who have worked hard on children's issues, and ask them to consider this amendment at the appropriate time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kentucky is recognized.

Mr. BUNNING. Madam President, I would like to talk about the State Children's Health Insurance Program, also known as SCHIP.

A few weeks ago, the Finance Committee passed the Baucus bill to reauthorize this program. I did not support this bill in committee and I will not be supporting it on the floor. Today, I would like to take a few minutes to explain my concerns with the Baucus bill. I would also like to talk about the SCHIP reauthorization bill I will be supporting this week and have helped to craft over the past couple of months—the Kids First Act.

This bill is a good piece of legislation that reauthorizes this important program in a fiscally sound way and keeps the focus of the program on what it was originally for, which is low-income children.

I have significant concerns with the budget gimmicks used, the SCHIP provisions, and the tax increases in the Baucus bill. The budget gimmick used to fund the Baucus bill is irresponsible, jeopardizes coverage under the program, and basically guarantees another tax increase 5 years from now. Under the bill, SCHIP spending in 2012 reaches $16 billion; however, the very next year, spending drops to $3.5 billion. While this strategy helps the drafters hide an additional $40 billion in spending, does any Member of the Senate really think that SCHIP spending in 2013 will be $3.5 billion? That is below the current spending level of $5 billion a year. Does any Member really think we will kick millions of kids off this program in 2013 to accommodate this lowered spending? Of course, the answer is no. That means Congress will have to come up with a significant amount of money to pay for the increased spending, which will likely mean reaching into the wallets of hard-working Americans again.

I also believe SCHIP should be a program for low-income children. When Congress created the program in 1997, it was intended for children without health insurance who lived in families making less than 200 percent of the Federal poverty limit. For 2007, 200 percent of poverty is about $41,000 in income for a family of four.

Not many people realize adults are now covered under SCHIP. Most people rightly think this is a program only for children since it is the State Children's Health Insurance Program. That is its name. Over the years, the Department of Health and Human Services has approved expansions to the program to allow States to cover these adults. These expansions should not have been approved in the first place, and it is Congress's responsibility in the reauthorization to rein in these abuses.

While the Baucus bill at least ends coverage for childless adults currently on SCHIP, it still allows other adults—specifically, parents—to stay on the program in certain States, and any State that currently covers parents can keep adding new parents to their programs.

The Kids First Act, which I am supporting, responsibly reauthorizes the SCHIP program and keeps the focus on low-income children. This bill reauthorizes the program for 5 years at a cost of about $39 billion. This would still be a significant but responsible increase over spending in the first 10 years of the program.

The bill would require States that want to cover children and pregnant women above 200 percent of the poverty level, or $41,000 for a family of four, to pay more from their State coffers than they do now to do so.

The bill also takes steps to limit the number of adults on the SCHIP program. While we would not require States to remove any adults currently on the program from their rolls, we would reimburse States at a lower amount for the childless adults and parents they currently have on their programs.

Also, States could not add any new childless adults or parents to their SCHIP rolls. If they want to cover these individuals, then they need to do it under their State Medicaid programs.

The Kids First Act also stops the Department of Health and Human Services from approving any more waivers or demonstration projects for States that want to cover parents or childless adults.

The Kids First Act is a good proposal that I hope will get full consideration on the Senate floor. It keeps SCHIP focused on low-income children, curtails States' ability to add new parents or childless adults to the program, and makes sense from a fiscal standpoint. Unfortunately, the Baucus bill falls short on these key points.

Also, the tobacco tax in the Baucus bill is fundamentally unfair to my State and the surrounding States. I want to show you a chart I have here, which shows the 50 States. This illustrates the real problem. It is compiled from data drawn from a CDC database on tobacco consumption and projections by Families USA concerning SCHIP spending. You will see here that there are big winners in this program, and they are in dark green on the chart. You can see Texas, California, Arizona, New Mexico, New York, and California, which is $2.564 billion. New York is $1.684 billion. It shows Kentucky, Tennessee, South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Missouri, Iowa, Wisconsin, and particularly Florida; it shows those States as dead net losers—$703 million in Florida; $602 million in Kentucky; $517 million in Indiana; $536 million in North Carolina, and so on. It also shows States that are neutral, such as Oregon, Idaho, Nebraska, and some other States that are kind of in the middle, such as West Virginia, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, and so on. You can see from the chart that we pick big winners and big losers, some neutral and some lower losers, not big such as the ones in dark brown. It is very important that you realize that is a completely unfair reason and method of funding SCHIP.

The problem with the tax is that the money comes from low-income smokers in my State and all of the dark brown States on this chart, and it is going to pay for an extravagant expansion of SCHIP in California, New York, Texas, and the States depicted in green.

This bill will also, without any doubt, add an enormous boost to black-market tobacco smuggling and counterfeiting. The plan would be a tremendous gift to organized crime and the black-market kingpins, who will profit handsomely from it in future years. There is plenty of past evidence of this. In 2002, for example, New York City increased its tobacco tax from 8 cents per pack to $1.50 per pack. The city's revenue estimators predicted an additional $107 million in revenue. Do you know what they got? It brought in $43 million. What is more, the tax increase on cigarettes cost the State over $600 million in tax revenue due to lower sales at convenience stores throughout New York State. An economist found that most of the reduction was due to smuggling, cross border sales, Internet sales, and sales on Indian reservations.

Even supporters of this bill acknowledge that the higher tax will have an impact on demand. It will reduce legal consumption of cigarettes. It is not likely to reduce total consumption, as the supporters of the bill say it will, because it will also increase smuggling. But legal consumption is what matters to the United States because that is the only part that is taxed.

The revenue estimate provided by the Joint Committee on Taxation shows this. Revenue is projected to decline by $700 million per year by the last year of the estimating window. That is right. Understand this now. Revenue is expected to go down over time as the number of legal sales of tobacco products declines.

Whatever its other problems, the tobacco tax is a poor foundation for SCHIP. We are matching a declining source of revenue with a growing Federal problem. This does not make any fiscal sense.

If we were honest and we truly wanted to fully fund SCHIP spending with a tobacco tax, the Federal Government would have to encourage people to smoke.

That is what this next chart shows: additional smokers. The Federal Government would need an additional 22.4 million smokers by the year 2017. Of course, I don't support such an effort, but this highlights the budget gap, as you can see, from 2010 up to 2017. The revenue for this program is going to have to come from more tax increases down the road.

We all say we oppose regressive taxes, but what we are considering today is a highly regressive tax. In fact, this tax is among the most regressive type of tax we could consider.

In my State of Kentucky, the impact on low-income taxpayers will be compounded. It will hit low-income Kentuckians, Kentucky tobacco farmers, and every citizen in the Commonwealth of Kentucky. Although there has been a dramatic decrease in the amount of tobacco farmers in my State due to the tobacco buyout, tobacco continues to play an important role in Kentucky's agricultural landscape. Tobacco barns and small plots of tobacco still dot the Kentucky landscape. Cash receipts for tobacco are projected to contribute between $300 million and $350 million to Kentucky's economy this year.

An increase in the excise tax on tobacco will drive down demand for consumption, which will result in less tobacco being purchased from Kentucky tobacco farmers by manufacturers—both cigarette and non-cigarette. It will likely force the specialty growers in my State—Kentucky burley leaf and Kentucky-Wisconsin leaf—completely out of business. These are small family farms in rural Kentucky that rely on these revenues for their crops. The money they get from the tobacco pays for their mortgages, puts their kids through school, and allows them to keep farming.

The CBO has estimated that the SCHIP proposal will result in a 5 to 6 percent reduction in demand for tobacco during its first year in existence. This will likely cause a $5.4 million reduction in payments to rural farmers in my State under the master settlement agreement we signed a few years ago.

Some people will say there is nothing wrong with all of this because it will force some people to quit smoking and we are using the money to help poor children. But who gets credit for this supposed act of charity? This plan would take money from one group of poor people and give it to another.

I urge my colleagues to oppose the Baucus SCHIP bill and support the Kids First Act.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana is recognized.

Mr. BAUCUS. Madam President, I have two requests. First, I ask unanimous consent that at 5:20 today, the Senate vote in relation to the Allard amendment No. 2536, with the time from 5:15 to 5:20 p.m. equally divided between Senator ALLARD and myself or our designees; that no second degree amendments be in order to the amendment prior to the vote.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BAUCUS. Madam President, I also ask unanimous consent that following the vote on the Allard amendment, Senator DORGAN then be recognized.

Mr. BURR. Madam President, can I ask the Senator to change the unanimous consent request to add myself after Senator DORGAN.

Mr. BAUCUS. Madam President, I so change my request.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Colorado is recognized.

Mr. ALLARD. Madam President, what is the pending amendment?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Allard amendment.

Mr. ALLARD. Thank you.

Madam President, I plan on going ahead and, if I understand what we have agreed to, I have 2½ minutes to speak. I plan on spending a minute or minute and a half to talk about my amendment, and then I will yield and wrap it up later. I would appreciate it if the Chair will alert me when I have spoken for about 1½ minutes.

Mr. BAUCUS. Madam President, the normal order is that the sponsor of the amendment speaks first and those opposed second. If we can maintain that, it would be 2½ and 2½.

Mr. ALLARD. That is fine.

Madam President, I rise to encourage my colleagues in the Senate to vote with me on this important amendment. What we see happening now is that there is a discrepancy between the calculation of gross income between the various States. Because of the way the various States are calculating their gross income, some States are getting more benefit under SCHIP than others. The State of Colorado, for example, is not one of those States. There are 12 to 15 States that have made some adjustments in the way they figure gross income, and that entitles them to more Federal dollars as far as SCHIP is concerned.

So what my amendment does, if it is adopted, it will direct the Secretary of Health and Human Services to put in regulations the definition of gross income. This is going to have a 90-day period in order to establish this value, and this will then allow the States an opportunity to come and give their input as to what they think the calculation of gross income should be. Then, when that rule and regulation is enacted, all the States are going to be acting under the same rules so they will all be figuring their gross income in the same way.

I think this is an important amendment. I think when we are talking about equity of benefits to the various States, it is extremely important we make sure they are operating under the same rules. Right now we have some of the States that disregarded the original intent of SCHIP and, as a result of that, they are receiving considerably more benefit as far as SCHIP is concerned than some of the other States.

My hope is my language will be adopted, and then we can move forward with this program. It has been working. We have to create some equity among the States.

I yield the floor and reserve the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SALAZAR). The Senator from Montana.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, how much time is remaining on both sides?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Colorado has 12 seconds; the Senator from Montana has 2 minutes 30 seconds.

Mr. BAUCUS. I don't want to belabor the issue, so I will use all my time.

Mr. President, the hallmark of the CHIP program, the Children's Health Insurance Program, is block grants, not entitlements. That is first. Second, it gives the States flexibility. States design their own program. This is a State Children's Health Insurance Program. Different States are different. Different States have different needs. Different States have different costs of living. Different States are different.

Many States find themselves in a situation where a law might restrict them. If the States did not have flexibility, many people who earn a little too much might find they cannot get health insurance, and so they quit their jobs. The goal is to get people to work. People want to work. The goal is to make sure people have health insurance. People need health insurance. But in many States, people are just above the level here, and if they can't find health insurance, they quit their jobs so they can be in the Children's Health Insurance Program.

I think States should have the right to make some adjustment to keep people working so they get health insurance. Now, if this amendment passes, 30 States will be adversely affected. Children in 30 States will be adversely affected. I don't think we want to do that. States need flexibility. Many Senators in this body have said many times, we shouldn't have one size fits all. We need flexibility.

There are very definite Federal limits on how much States can make an adjustment—that is, not include a certain amount of income—so those people don't have to quit their jobs and can keep their private health insurance.

So I would say I understand the basic theory, but we can't let perfection be the enemy of the good. We cannot. We cannot take away health insurance coverage from kids in 30 States. I do think the goal is for people to work. We want people to work. We should not adopt policies, which this amendment in effect would do, and say: OK, people, sorry, you can't work. You can't work so you can qualify for children's health insurance. I think we want people to work in States so they can get health insurance.

I strongly urge Members to not agree to this amendment. It has surface appeal but only surface appeal. If you dig down and find out what is happening in many States, I think Senators will realize this is not the right thing to do and will oppose the amendment.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, this is a matter of fairness among the States. Any child determined to be ineligible for SCHIP would remain in the State program, but the State would be reimbursed according to the FMAP rate rather than the enhanced EFMAP reimbursement rate.

I think this is an important issue as far as equity among the various States. I ask Members to join me in voting for this particular amendment, and I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second? There appears to be a sufficient second.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. DURBIN. I announce that the Senator from Delaware (Mr. BIDEN) and the Senator from South Dakota (Mr. JOHNSON) are necessarily absent.

Mr. LOTT. The following Senators are necessarily absent: the Senator from Kansas (Mr. BROWNBACK) and the Senator from Arizona (Mr. McCAIN).

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, what is the regular order?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senator from North Dakota is to be recognized, followed by the Senator from North Carolina.

The Senator from Montana.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that following those two Senators receiving recognition, Senator McCASKILL then be recognized; that following Senator McCASKILL, Senator GREGG be recognized for an amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I yield to the Senator from Ohio for a unanimous consent request.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that amendment 2551 be modified with the changes at the desk, notwithstanding the fact that the amendment is not pending.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Montana.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I think the regular order is to recognize the Senator from North Dakota.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct. The Senator from North Dakota is recognized.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, first of all, let me thank my colleagues, Senator BAUCUS and Senator GRASSLEY, the chairman and ranking member of the Finance Committee, for bringing to the floor the piece of legislation called the Children's Health Insurance Program. It is a very important bill. It will add several million more children to the health insurance rolls and provide important health insurance for kids who otherwise would not have it. I believe all of us in this Chamber would believe that children's health care should not be a function of how much money their parents may have in their pocketbook or their checkbook. A sick child needs health care. This legislation moves in that direction. I am pleased to support it. I thank my colleagues for the work they have done on it.

I do wish to offer an amendment at this point, and I wish to talk a bit about a very important issue that also relates to health care.

My amendment deals with the Indian Health Care Improvement Act. It is true that we will now improve the lives of 3 million children with the underlying bill. I fully support that and compliment my colleagues for doing that. It is also true that there are at least 2 million American Indians in this country living on Indian reservations who are seeing health rationing virtually every day of their lives. It is unbelievable that that condition continues to exist.

We have a trust responsibility for those people. The American Indians are a group of people in our midst with whom we made treaties, we made agreements, and we have the trust responsibility for Indian health care. We have not nearly met those responsibilities.

I would observe that we have a responsibility for the health care of those who are incarcerated in Federal prisons. Guess what. We spend twice as much per person on health care for Federal prisoners as we do in meeting our health care responsibility for American Indians on a per capita basis.

AMENDMENT NO. 2534

(Purpose: To revise and extend the Indian Health Care Improvement Act)

Let me say that I have filed amendment No. 2534. Let me call up that amendment, which is at the desk. I offer this on behalf of myself, Senator JOHNSON, Senator MURKOWSKI, Senator BINGAMAN, and Senator STEVENS.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the pending amendment be set aside.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, I was wondering if I could ask the Senator from North Dakota how long he expects to debate this amendment.

Mr. DORGAN. I intend to speak about 25 minutes.

Mr. GREGG. I thank the Senator.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The clerk will report the amendment.

The Senator from North Dakota [Mr. DORGAN], for himself, Mr. JOHNSON, Ms. MURKOWSKI, Mr. BINGAMAN, and Mr. STEVENS, proposes an amendment numbered 2534.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, let me describe now, if I might, the issue of health care for American Indians, which I believe is an urgent national need. We have a trust responsibility for their health care. We have a piece of legislation that exists in law called the Indian Health Care Improvement Act, but it needs to be reauthorized. It has not been reauthorized for 15 years. It expired 7 years ago. We need to do this. Year after year after year, this Congress postpones it. We have passed legislation out of the committee; it does not get to the floor; it does not get done.

Littlewind. Her relatives gave me permission to use her picture. Avis is dead. Avis committed suicide. I want to tell you the story about Avis because I went to talk to the school officials, the tribal officials, the mental health officials, and those who were in the extended family.

This 14-year-old girl took her own life. It probably should not have been a surprise to anyone because for 90 days this little girl lay in bed in a fetal position, missed school. Something was very wrong. This little girl had a sister who, 2 years previous, had committed suicide. This little girl had a father who took his own life. This little girl had another parent who was a very serious drug abuser. She laid in bed 90 days before she took her life.

Now, one might ask the question: Why does this 14-year-old girl just fall through the cracks? She thinks she is in a situation that is hopeless. She feels helpless and she takes her own life. But this little girl had a full life in front of her.

You know something? On that Indian reservation where Avis Littlewind lived, there were no mental health treatment facilities for someone to take this young lady, this young girl. One might ask and certainly should ask: Why is it in this country that mental health treatment is not available to a young child like this? Why is it that the person responsible for trying to give this young lady some help did not even have a car or any transportation? Even if you could find a mental health professional to treat this person, there is no transportation to get the person to treatment. Why is it that for 90 days this young lady lay in bed, and nobody from the school, nobody from the area, said: All right, there must be a big problem here; let's find out what is going on.

The fact is, this is one precious child who took her life. We have had clusters of teen suicides on Indian reservations. This is but one aspect of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act, but it is not just mental health. The bill covers virtually every aspect of Indian health.

We are told that about 60 percent of Indian health care needs are met. That means 40 percent of the health care needs are unmet. There is full-scale health care rationing on Indian reservations. If we were to debate that on the floor of the Senate, people would be appalled. You can't ration health care. Yet, that is what is happening.

We have a trust responsibility, and yet health care is being rationed with respect to Native Americans. American Indians die at higher rates with respect to tuberculosis, 6 times the national average; alcoholism, 5 times the national average; diabetes, 180 percent higher than the national average. In Alaska, Native communities in Alaska have fewer than 90 doctors for every 100,000 Alaska Natives. That compares to 229 doctors for every 100,000 Americans. Heart disease, diabetes, blood pressure, stroke—you name it. The incidence of most diseases affecting our Native Americans are at much higher rates than for non-Indians. Cervical cancer for American Indians and Alaska Natives is nearly four times higher than cervical cancer for other women in this country.

I mentioned before that Federal prisoners, for whom we have a responsibility for health care, receive twice as much funding per person on their health care needs than do American Indians for whom we have a trust responsibility. Stated another way, we spend twice as much per person on Federal prisoners than we do with respect to American Indians, and we have a trust responsibility in law to deal with American Indian health issues.

I want to show a photograph to describe health care rationing. This is a photograph of Ardel Hill Baker. She has also allowed me to use her photograph. Ardel Hill Baker was having a heart attack. As she was having a heart attack, she was taken from the Indian reservation by ambulance to a hospital. When they offloaded her from the ambulance onto a gurney to take her in the hospital, this woman, at the emergency room entrance, having a heart attack, had a piece of paper taped to her thigh. The hospital dutifully looked at that piece of paper. The piece of paper that was taped to her thigh said that the Indian Health Service contract health care is not an entitlement program, meaning there are no funds to pay for this service because it is not a life-or-limb medical condition.

Let me say that again. Someone is having a heart attack. When they are brought to the hospital, they have a big piece of paper taped to their leg. It says to the hospital: By the way, if you admit this person, you are on your own because our contract health care money is gone. In fact, this is the piece of paper which was taped to the leg of an Indian patient coming into a hospital, having a heart attack. What would anybody in this Chamber think if this were taped to the leg of their spouse or their son or their daughter? They are having a heart attack, but the hospital is told: You know what, we do not have any money for this person; if you admit this person, you are on your own. Contract health care. It is called health care rationing.

Tribal chairmen tell me that the refrain on their reservation is: Don't get sick after June because if you get sick after June, there is no money in contract health care. By the way, you can get a little help still, but it has to be life or limb. You must be threatened with the loss of a limb or the loss of your life; if not, tough luck.

We would be outraged, outraged, every single one of us, if this were our relative. But it was not. It was Ardel Hill Baker. She survived, but there are plenty who do not.

This is Lida Bearstail. Lida Bearstail had a serious problem with her leg. The bones in her knee were rubbing against each other; cartilage was worn away. She was in great pain, in great discomfort.

The normal treatment for perhaps someone in this Chamber or perhaps for a relative of someone in this Chamber would be to get a knee replacement, but in Lida Bearstail's case, Lida Bearstail was not given the option of getting a knee replacement.

Despite the great pain, it was not determined to be priority one, life or limb. She wasn't going to lose her limb or her life. She could just live with the pain. So because it wasn't priority one, life or limb, this woman whose bones were rubbing together in the knee in unbelievable pain was told: There is no health care available for you.

We have hearings to talk about all these issues. A doctor comes to our hearing and says: I had a patient come to me with a very serious problem with a knee. It was a ligament problem, very serious, very painful. That patient went to the Indian Health Service and they said: Wrap that knee in cabbage leaves for 4 days and you will be OK.

It is pretty unbelievable. Yet we can't get a bill on the floor of the Senate to deal with Indian health care. That is unbelievable. We have a responsibility to pass this legislation. I passed it out of the Indian Affairs Committee. Now we need to move it through the Senate and then the House so we can say to these people who need health care—the first Americans, Native Americans that this country understands its obligation, understands its trust responsibility, and we are going to do what we need to do to pass the legislation.

It is almost unbelievable that with all the priorities we discuss, we can't somehow make this a priority. In my State, we have some wonderful Indian tribes. The Three Affiliated Tribes is a wonderful tribe. It includes the Mandan, the Hidatsa, and the Arikara Nations. If you get sick on that reservation in Twin Buttes, ND, your nearest health facility is a little old building with a couple of tiny examination rooms. If you are lucky enough to get sick on one of the right days when a nurse is there and one of the few days when a doctor might be there, you might do OK. But this is a 1-million acre reservation. It is a big place. We had testimony from law enforcement the other day on that reservation. The first you would expect to be able to get someone to come to deal with a law enforcement call, no matter how serious, would be about an hour and a quarter to an hour and a half. So call while a crime is being committed and, perhaps an hour and a quarter later, if you are lucky, someone from law enforcement will show up. You might understand then that if you need a prescription or if you have a health care emergency, the dilemma Indians face on reservations.

A mother who has a feverish child who needs an antibiotic, or a diabetic who needs insulin—who don't have ready access to health care facilities, in circumstances such as that, we must find ways to meet these health care needs.

There are some who say—and I agree—we need substantial change. My colleague from Oklahoma is here. He talked about the prospect of saying: All right, let's have dramatic change. I am perfectly willing to work on dramatic change, to say that if we have a trust responsibility for someone for health care, let's let them show up at a hospital someplace and let's pay the bill so they can go to the providers who have the capability. We have the responsibility to do that. The problem is, we can't get a bill such as that through this Senate. I have offered time and again on the floor to add funding. The last time I tried to add $1 billion. It went down on a partisan vote. You can't get money added in this Senate to meet the responsibility we ought to meet with respect to Indian health care.

We have worked in a bipartisan way on this legislation in the Indian Affairs Committee. The vice chairman of the committee, Senator MURKOWSKI of Alaska, is a cosponsor as well. The Indian Health Care Improvement Act is legislation that begins to answer and advance the interests of providing health care to American Indians and meeting our trust responsibility to do so. We would authorize additional tools to deal with the issue of teen suicide on Indian reservations.

I began by talking about Avis Littlewind, but I could have talked about many others. I have had several hearings on this subject. The bill also includes new provisions to address lack of health care services. We have begun trying to find a different construct of convenient care for American Indians on reservations. It includes several Medicaid provisions that are in the jurisdiction of the Finance Committee. The Finance Committee is going to be holding a markup. We will talk with the chairman and ranking member about including this bill in that markup.

My point today is very simple. I understand the need to provide additional health care opportunities for 3 million American children is very important. It is no more important than providing the health care we promised we would provide to 2 million American Indians who live on reservations for whom we have trust responsibilities. We have broken far too many promises to American Indians. We have done it for far too many decades. It is time for this Congress and the country to keep its word and meet its promise. We don't have a choice, and it is not going to break the bank to do that.

I encourage all my colleagues, go to the Indian reservations. See for yourself. See a dentist practicing in an old trailer house for 5,000 patients, operating out of an old trailer. Go see that. Then ask yourself: Is this the kind of health care we promised? Are we delivering what we promised? The answer is a resounding no.

I understand in this Chamber there are priorities. With respect to the priorities all of us have, we all have different things we are passionate about. We have now on the floor a health care bill. This legislation is important. The reason I offer this amendment is, when we talk about health care, I think we have a responsibility to address Indian health as well. If we can, we need to, either tonight or tomorrow, get a commitment on dates to mark up and bring to the floor of the Senate the Indian Health Care Improvement Act, which is 7 years overdue and 15 years since it was last reauthorized. If we can get that commitment, I will know we are going to get this through the Senate. That is the goal.

I am going to visit with Senator BAUCUS. Let me also make the point, Senator BAUCUS has been a very strong supporter of Indian issues. I have been happy to work with him. The Indian Health Care Improvement Act was sent to the Indian Affairs Committee. We have moved this out of committee. I think we have written it in a way that substantially improves Indian health care. Now it waits, as it waited last year, the year before and the year before that and the year before that. Every single year it is the same thing. I am flat out tired of it. I will not let it happen this time. One way or another, this needs to get done by this Senate because this Senate has a responsibility to do it. We have not met this responsibility for too many years. This year I insist we do so. The fact is, kids are dying. Elders are dying because the health care doesn't exist that we had previously promised. We have a responsibility to do something about it.

I say to the chairman of the committee, I will visit with Senator REID, and I know Senator BAUCUS is a strong supporter of Indian issues. I hope if I can get a commitment that we can get from the Finance Committee a markup—and I know the Senator wants to do that—if I can then get a commitment from Senator REID to bring this to the floor, I don't intend to interrupt the children's health insurance bill, but if I can't get that commitment, I fully intend to interrupt this bill as long as I can interrupt it because it is that important.

To my colleague from Montana, let me say thank you for allowing me to at least at this moment offer this amendment, and let me ask my colleague if I can get some hope that the two of us, working with others, can move together to get this through the Senate in a reasonable time. I am going to ask the same of the majority leader, who I know also is very supportive of Indian issues and very much wants to get this done.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. MENENDEZ). The Senator from Montana.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I commend the Senator from North Dakota. If our colleagues could see the conditions of health care on the reservations of this country, they would be appalled, absolutely appalled. It is as bad as a Third World country. It is disgusting the low quality of health care on the reservations. The Senator from North Dakota earlier mentioned the life-and-limb provision. Basically, the Indian Health Service does not take people unless it is for life and limb, unless you have lost a limb or your life is in jeopardy, nothing less. That is not entirely true because it depends upon the allocation of the various Indian Health Service hospitals around the country. But very quickly, those hospitals get to the point where they are at the life-and-limb threshold. They have used up what few paltry dollars they have. So on the Blackfeet Reservation of Montana, someone is ill, a child is ill. If they have reached that reservation and reached the life-and-limb limit—which happens, I am told, midway through the year—that is it. They don't get any health care. It is an absolute outrage.

We all know the health conditions on Indian reservations are much worse. Statistics show it is much worse than the national average. About 27 percent of Indian kids don't have any health insurance whatsoever. I might also say the tuberculosis rate on the Indian reservations is about 7½ times that of the general population. The same is true of the suicide rate and so on. I say to my good friend from North Dakota, absolutely, I am committed. We passed this bill out of committee. It passed last year. It passed by unanimous vote in committee. I am very committed to having a markup. Indeed, I think we scheduled September 12 to get this out of committee so we can find a way to get this bill enacted this year. I share the conviction. We have to find a way to get this done this year. It is an outrage, a total outrage in the United States of America to let these conditions continue. Frankly, this legislation is only the beginning to bring the level totally all the way up to what it should be.

I thank the Senator for offering this amendment tonight. I am committed to find a way to get this enacted into law this year.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, let me say thank you. If we can get a markup in the Senate Finance Committee on September 12, that allows the bill to move to the floor of the Senate. I am going to talk to Senator REID, who I know is a strong supporter of Indian issues and feels very strongly about this. If I can get a commitment, I know he wants to provide that commitment to get to the floor of the Senate, then I will seek to withdraw the amendment from this bill. But I do want to visit, and perhaps in the morning on the floor, with Senator REID on that subject.

I wished to make two more points, and then I know my colleague from North Carolina seeks recognition.

This chart shows the expenditures per capita relative to other Federal health expenditure benchmarks. This deals with Indians versus all others—Indians get far less. Here is the expenditure per capita for Medicare, the Veterans' Administration, Medicaid, Federal prisoners, the Federal Employees Health benefits. Here is Indian Health Service. It is unbelievable to me how much less it is. In many ways, all of this is intertwined—social services, health care, law enforcement, housing, education, it is all intertwined. What got me interested and involved in Indian issues—and I am privileged to serve as chairman of the Indian Affairs Committee and feel a deep responsibility to force us to do the right thing—what got me involved one day was a young girl named Tamara.

Tamara was a young 3-year-old American Indian girl who was put in a foster home. But the person who was handling the social services cases was handling 150 cases, so they did not bother to check the home this little girl was going to be put into. It was not long before, at a drunken party, that little girl had her nose broken, her arm broken, and her hair pulled out at the roots. It will scar that little girl for life. I met her. I met her granddad. I talked to the social worker. I fixed that social worker problem by getting additional workers in, so that it does not happen again.

The fact is that should never happen. These incidences should not happen. We do not have the resources to do what is necessary, to do what needs to be done. Nowhere is that more true than in health care. Health care is not a luxury. When there is a sick kid someplace, or a sick elder, when somebody has a health problem, we have a responsibility to find a way to help.

For those who might listen to this and say that Indian health care is not our responsibility, oh, yes, it is. We signed treaties. We made promises, and we broke them every chance we got. Maybe in the year 2007 we can begin keeping a promise or two. These are promises we have a responsibility to keep. It is our trust responsibility.

There is a lot to do in health care, but there is nothing more important than meeting our obligation to provide health care for Native Americans because we made that agreement with them, and we need to keep that agreement.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Carolina.

Mr. BURR. Mr. President, I rise to speak on the SCHIP bill. I have an amendment to the SCHIP bill, but I do not intend to call it up at this time. I wish to speak on SCHIP, as well as on my amendment.

I also take this opportunity to ask unanimous consent to add Senator DOLE as a cosponsor to the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BURR. Mr. President, I think it is safe to say that health care is probably one of the most important things this body can debate. I think you have to look at our overall health care system today to understand why it is so important. It is because we have the best health care delivery system in the world, bar none.

We have seen other countries try to develop a system that fit within a budget framework that, over time, as the dollars got tight, constricted the level of care delivered, creating waiting lines for individuals who had certain health conditions. But the United States has always been considered the innovative health care delivery system of the world. It was accessible for most, regardless of region. I think it is safe to say for a long period of time it was very affordable. But that has all changed.

The U.S. system still provides a level of security if, in fact, you are insured. If you are not insured, I am not sure the sense of security—just knowing there is a hospital or doctors—necessarily provides you with a tremendous amount of security.

With every day that continues on, the level of choice that exists within the United States health care system begins to get less and less. Most of us have been here for the debates of the creation of HMOs and PPOs, and all the products that employers, insurers, and individuals desperately try to create to address this rising cost of health care, while maintaining some degree of benefit for the individual and for their family. But over time, we have continued to see changes to those products, to where there is very little difference between the products now except for what we call them. Clearly, that has eliminated many of the choices.

What has happened to the U.S. system, over a very slow period of time, maybe the last two decades? Over 50 percent of the American people are now on a Government health care plan. It is no longer private-sector driven. We are here with this big question mark about why market conditions do not affect the cost of health care or the cost of premiums or that they do not create choice. In fact, over half of the American people are now in a Government-run system, one that mirrors more what others in the country have tried, only to find out that unless you have an unlimited pool of money, they do not work.

Well, what do Government systems eventually create? They create a system that has less doctors, less nurses, less hospitals, which means less care for those in the country.

I know the ranking member represents a State that is considered to be rural. North Carolina is a State considered to be rural. If you have a contraction of doctors, if you have a contraction of specialists, if you have less nurses in the pool, it means there is not enough to go around all the facilities. There are many regional areas of my State today where we cannot find OB/GYNs to deliver babies.

Now, sure, I can look at a pregnant woman and say: Within a 30 or 45-mile radius, you will be able to get delivery care. But try to explain to a mother, when her water breaks and she goes into labor, that the person who is going to deliver that baby is 45 miles away. In fact, the prenatal care, for that individual who needs it, is now 45 miles away because that is where her OB/GYN is, and we are not going to be able to get the level of prenatal care in rural America that we want.

What has the Government controlling more of health care produced? Less choices, fewer providers, and less services, and especially for those limited amounts of services that are preventive.

Let me state from the beginning of this debate, I am for reauthorizing the SCHIP bill. I will support the substitute that Senator McCONNELL will offer which provides $38.9 billion over 5 years, which is an increase of $13.9 billion.

I also was in the House, on the Energy and Commerce Committee, in 1997, when we enacted the first SCHIP bill, which was a $40 billion Federal commitment over 10 years to those children at 200 percent of poverty or less. Many States expanded that SCHIP program to cover parents of SCHIP kids and childless adults.

The McConnell reauthorization protects the original SCHIP program by making sure that low-income children are the focus of our effort.

Now, I will say, North Carolina has one of the best SCHIP programs in the United States. I am pleased that Senator McCONNELL's reauthorization will give North Carolina the additional funds it needs to continue serving low-income children. But I am, sadly, here today to tell you I am not for expanding the rolls of SCHIP. The Finance Committee bill adds more than $30 billion to the current SCHIP base budget—$25 billion—to, roughly, cover 3.3 million additional children.

Now, CBO scored what the State and Federal Government spending will be per child. Let me put that up for everybody: $3,930 per child. Yet, today, the average private health care plan in the private sector is $1,130. My question is, if we are going to spend $3,900 per child in a Government plan, but we can insure them fully in the private sector today for $1,130, where is the choice? As a colleague of ours in the House used to say: Beam me up, Scotty. Something is wrong here. This seems like a no-brainer. This is not an investment that one can make on the part of American taxpayers and feel good about.

In 1997, we spent $40 billion. It was an honorable goal. Quite frankly, the program has been very popular. The Baucus reauthorization plan, though, would spend $60 billion over the next 5 years.

Now, people will talk about budget gimmicks. I am not here to talk about that. I think they are here. I think it hides millions of dollars that I think are extra spending—and maybe they are going to insure this 3.3 million, and $3,900 per child is incorrect, or maybe there are more people who are going to be covered, and many of them outside of the ranks of low-income children—but there is no question the Baucus-Grassley bill expands SCHIP so much that I feel children who need it the most will get lost in a new, larger Government-run program.

As a matter of fact, if SCHIP works as well as I think it does, why would we change it? I think some would tell us we are not here changing the SCHIP program. But I would only point to section 606 of the Grassley-Baucus bill, where they remove the word "State" from the name of SCHIP. See, SCHIP is the State Children's Health Insurance Program. It was always designed as us being an enhanced share for the States, and the States running the program. Now, SCHIP is going to be called the Children's Health Insurance Program. It sounds like a big, one-size-fits-all Government program to me.

The solution to our health care crisis is not to put every child in America in a Government program. Today, one out of every two children in America is in a Government program. They are either enrolled in Medicaid or SCHIP.

The Baucus plan puts more children into Government health care. A recent CBO analysis concluded that for every 1 million additional children covered under SCHIP, an estimated 250,000 to 500,000 will be switched from private insurance to the new public SCHIP coverage.

Now, let me say that again. CBO estimates—this is not me—CBO estimates that for every 1 million new kids we put into SCHIP, somewhere between 250,000 to 500,000 will switch from their parents' insurance to the new Government plan.

Now, that is 3.3 million kids, which means 1.65 million could be switched from private insurance to Government insurance, at 3,900 and some dollars, estimated by CBO. Again, where is the sanity and the obligation and fiduciary responsibility we have to the taxpayers? Why in the world would we create an avenue for people to go off their family's plan and come on a Government plan, where we are committed, as CBO said, to spend $3,900, roughly, per child?

Now, before people think we are all insane—they know I am now—what should we be discussing? I believe we should be discussing how do we reform the health care system? I do not think I would find much opposition except on how we do that because there are 45 million uninsured Americans today. If they are sitting at home listening to this debate about covering 3 million low-income children, or wherever they are on the income scale, for a person sitting at home, who is an adult today, they are saying: What about me? What about the fact that I do not have insurance?

If they have no job, and they have no income, we know they are on Medicaid. If they have a job, and they do not qualify financially for Medicaid, then where do they go? Well, there are 45 million of them out there somewhere who are in this classification. Some of them are kids and some of them are adults. Every time they access health care, and they cannot pay for it, an incredibly predictable thing happens: The cost that is unrecovered is shifted to everybody else in the system.

In North Carolina, there are 1.3 million who are uninsured. Seventeen percent of the North Carolina population is uninsured, and 16 percent of the American population is uninsured. Yet our debate is limited to 3.3 million children.

It is not about how we insure America. It is not about the rising cost of health care. It is not about the fact that health care premiums have, in fact, doubled in the country since the year 2000. If compared with the growth of inflation since 2000—at 18 percent—and the growth of wages—at 20 percent—health insurance premiums for family coverage have increased 73 percent over the last 5 years. Health care costs are rising three times the rate of inflation, and with no corresponding rise in quality.

Now, there is the red flag. We have seen a 73-percent increase in the premium. If you could turn to something tangible in the system to say that quality has gotten that much better, then one could maybe rationalize this increase. But the fact is, there has been no corresponding rise in quality. As a matter of fact, today there are no health care plans that are focused primarily on wellness and prevention.

I remember when we tried to get mammographies and PSAs covered in Medicare, and we tried to get an array of preventive health care, it was the hardest thing I have ever worked on in health care to try to get added to a system. I guess it is because Medicare beneficiaries are old to start with, and why would we do anything preventive. Yet if we look at the research that goes on every day, and that we pay for, we find the earlier we can detect cancer, the earlier we can detect diabetes, the more we can monitor disease management, the better the outcome is but, more importantly, from a taxpayer's standpoint, the less it costs the system.

We know that happens in the Government system. We don't implement wellness and prevention like we should. If we did, we would require it in Medicaid. But we have an opportunity—as we talk about redesigning the American health care system, we have an opportunity to build wellness and prevention as the main piece of this broken system.

Today we have a system that only triggers when you get sick. It doesn't trigger when you want to stay well. It triggers when you get sick. But if you look at companies that have said: There is no way I will ever be competitive if, in fact, the health care system doesn't change in America—they made a decision that they are going to go outside of the insurance products that are available today, and they are going to do things that are creative out of the box. And they are self-insured and they have gone out and partnered with somebody to administer their plan. What do you find? It is Dell Computers, which now has about 4 years of experience with disease management and how to bring down the overall costs of health care for their employees—not just corporately but for their individual costs to their employees—all the way to Safeway, that has a model that I know every Member on the Hill has probably been briefed on—what Safeway is doing, which is giving people control of their care but, more importantly, stressing to them that prevention and wellness is something for which they will actually receive an incentive.

People without access to employer-sponsored coverage are severely disadvantaged under the current system. I know both of the Senators who are in charge of the tax committee probably would agree that we have inequities. Ninety-one percent of workers in large firms have health insurance. Sixty-six percent of workers in small firms—10 employees or less—have health insurance. Twenty-nine percent of the uninsured work in small business. The percentage of employers offering coverage has dropped 8 percent since the year 2000.

Whoa. Global economy. That is what has happened since 2000. There is a global economy where it doesn't matter where you manufacture. All that matters is where are your customers. Most U.S. businesses have changed from a model that was predominantly for domestic consumption to a model today where 60 or 70 percent of their business is international, and 30 or 40 percent of it is domestic—in the United States. We ought to look at some of the decisions they have made and wonder: why didn't we have this challenge before this point with those employers, looking at their business model and saying: How can I continue to pay a health care cost that rises in double-digit ways each year with inflation and remain competitive with my global competition which doesn't have that cost?

Well, I am going to put the Senate on notice: This is happening at an alarming rate. If U.S. businesses determine that they are not competitive in the marketplace they are selling to, which is global, and health care cost is the No. 1 issue that makes them noncompetitive, in the absence of us reforming the system and creating a way for them to provide health care—not that seeks double-digit inflation every year but begins a downward pressure on the cost of health care—I will assure you they have two choices: they eliminate the benefit or they leave the country, and both of them are devastating to the United States.

If we don't reform health care, what happens? Health care becomes unaffordable for people. U.S. businesses become uncompetitive. Government will have its normal reaction. It will ratchet down the reimbursements that we pay through Medicare and Medicaid and the effect of that is that private insurance sees that as an opportunity to ratchet down the provider reimbursements. Doctors and nurses get paid less. More people go on Government health care. Doctors and nurses will become Government employees. Hospitals will become Government property. Insurance companies will become paper pushers. We must all agree that the outcome has to be better for us.

By the way, taxes will rise too. I am not sure whether it is individual or corporate, but let me assure my colleagues, though some believe that health care is free, somebody pays for it. Look at the systems around the world where the government is in control of their health care, and the beneficiaries may think it is free, but one of the problems—one of the reasons they are ratcheting back the scope of coverage they have is the fact that as the government runs out of money and can't find ways to raise revenues, they have a choice. They can tax individuals, they can tax corporations, or they can reduce benefits. When you look at the prevailing tax rate they have now, you understand why their only choice is to cut benefits. The likelihood is that we will be faced with the same thing as socialized medicine is just around the corner, and I think time is actually running out.

The current tax structure for health care benefits exists for employer-focused plans. Employers get a tax deduction for the amount of the health care benefit provided for their employees, but the deduction unfortunately doesn't exist for individuals who shop in the marketplace. We spend 50 percent more of our GDP—16 percent—on health care than the next three spenders—Germany, Japan, and France—but we aren't any healthier. It is time we begin to focus on how our system becomes more efficient, healthier, and more affordable.

One out of every four dollars in health care spent in this country does nothing to help patients. It is actually wasted on defensive medicine, unnecessary paperwork, and outright fraud. When you put individuals in charge of their health care—not just constructing it or negotiating it, but responsible for whether the system is efficient and effective—you would be amazed at how you wring out that 25 percent, that one out of four. The source of the problem is runaway health care costs which is caused by a lack of choice and a lack of government control.

Now, let me assure you that in Sweden today, heart patients wait 25 weeks to be seen. In England today, Heritage said cancer patients sometimes wait a year between their diagnosis and their chemotherapy treatment. Canada's Supreme Court Justice, Beverly McLachlin, said it best in a 2005 ruling:

We have a roadmap as to where we are going, and we have an opportunity to change that today.

What happens if the Senate, if the Congress of the United States, becomes the visionary body that it needs to be and the reform body that it has to be if, in fact, you want to protect the delivery system in this country? Americans have to have three things: They have to have choice, they have to have ownership, and they have to have control. They have to have the ability to construct their insurance policies to meet their age, their income, and their health condition. Health care needs to be portable, just like a 401(k).

When you give an individual ownership of a 401(k), they are no longer strapped to an employer about their pension or retirement; they have the ability to take that money with them to the next job. Well, we have reached the point now that health care should be the same thing. It should be ownership, and we should have the ability to take that health care from employer to employer where we are not locked in, and for the first time Americans would have the freedom to make decisions about their future and about the future of their families.

Innovation works. We all know it. A year ago, a 46-inch plasma TV cost as much as $11,000, but today you can buy the same TV for $2,839. In 1908, Henry Ford made a car for $850. Eight years later, Henry Ford produced the same car for $360.

Innovation also works in health care—don't fool yourself. Between 1999 and 2004, the cost of LASIK surgery, which is set by the market forces and outside the current system, went down 20 percent while health care expenditures per person increased by more than 44 percent. LASIK surgery is this new surgery that individuals have on their eyes. If they have a certain condition, they can have LASIK and throw their glasses away. A controversial thing, and innovation brought it. It went through and FDA approved it. The cost was very high to begin with, and as more people have sought LASIK surgery, the price has come down and down and down and down and down. I am sure Dr. Coburn will talk more about it as we go through this debate.

Duke University set up a program to manage congestive heart failure. Half of all of the congestive heart failure patients typically have a 5-year life expectancy, and costs are a total of $22.5 billion for congestive heart failure annually in the United States. Duke developed a program that integrated the care to develop best practice models for congestive heart failure patients. The approach resulted in better patient outcomes, increased patient compliance with their doctor's recommendations and, most importantly, a 32-percent drop in the cost per patient of treating congestive heart failure. Innovation allows incredible things to happen but only when we have a marketplace that rewards innovation.

I said when I stood up I had an amendment that I didn't intend to call up, and I am not going to call it up. That amendment is the Every American Insured Health Act. I want to just briefly talk about it.

Hopefully, this accomplishes everything I have spent the last 20 minutes talking about. It provides the resources for every American not on a government plan to access the coverage they need. Let me say that again. It provides the resources for all the uninsured in America to negotiate the coverage they need in the private marketplace.

No. 2, it eliminates cost shifting. It eliminates that bill we get through our premium costs or through the cost of a service delivered that we can't figure out who used it, but somebody didn't pay because they weren't insured and it got shifted to everybody else. We eliminate that by providing the resources for every American to negotiate coverage. We estimate that it may be $200 billion a year that we eliminate in cost shifting.

Now, how do we accomplish it? Because one might say: I know how expensive SCHIP expansion for 3.3 million children is going to be. Can we afford what it is going to cost us to insure everybody who is uninsured in America? Well, here is what we do. We address the tax inequity. Through that we treat those who get insurance provided by an employer the same way we do individuals. Then we turn around to every American who is not on a government plan and we do this: We give them a refundable, advanced, flat tax credit. For an individual, it is $2,160 a year. If it is a family, it is $5,400 a year.

Now, if, in fact, you had tax consequences from this new equality in treating individuals and employer plans the same, the likelihood is that if your health benefit from your employer doesn't exceed $15,000 from the employer on a family plan, then $5,400 is more than enough to cover the tax consequences.

If, in fact, you are an individual who is uninsured and you get a refundable tax credit on an annual basis of $2,160, then you can go out and negotiate in the private sector for health care coverage that on average today is between $1,500 and $1,700 nationally for an individual plan and about $4,500 to $4,600 for a family plan. You could insure yourself as an individual or as a family, and you could do that all within the confines of the refundable tax credit we have allowed.

Now, people have questioned whether there is a little bit of a shift in wealth. Yes, there is. We are taking people who have rich health care plans, more health care than they need, plans that are priced because there are no out-of-pocket costs—there are a lot of things that we know we need to do from the standpoint of making sure Americans know they have skin in the game every time they go to the doctor's office for the facts of utilization—and we are shifting it down to where we give people refundable tax credits that are barely over the Medicaid qualifications, and we are going to give them a soup-to-nuts plan—$2,160 for an individual or $5,400 for a family annually, a refundable tax credit that is only good for health care.

When they sign up with an insurer, the money will go directly from the U.S. Government to the insurer. If money is left over, it would automatically transfer over into a health savings account for that individual to use for other health care benefits, whether it be for copayments, deductibles, whatever the structure of the plan is, and they are allowed to design a plan that meets their age, their income, and their health conditions.

We give States incentives to make sure that in every marketplace there is an affordable plan. It is absolutely crucial that you begin to have insurance reform at the same time you are creating a marketplace that is driven by individuals.

Our goals are to give Americans the resources and the right to purchase health care in the private marketplace, to end the tax discrimination, to encourage individuals to take control, to eliminate the current cost shift, so that every American's health care begins to come down because of this new benefit, and to ensure the accessibility and affordability of high-quality health care.

By the way, this plan I have just described that did this for the first time—insured everybody who is uninsured, provided annually a $2,160 refundable tax credit for individuals and $5,400 for a family—I still didn't tell you how much it costs. I am like the guy on the infomercials who waits until the end to spring on you how great of a bargain it is.

Well, this is budget neutral. It doesn't cost the American taxpayer one new dollar. That doesn't take into account that there may be $200 billion worth of cost-shifting going on in the system. We get no scoring for the fact that we could potentially drive $200 billion of costs out of the health care for everyone else in the system by making sure everybody is insured. We get absolutely no credit for being able to put together plans that promote prevention and wellness, that begin to drive down utilization and make Americans healthier, that begin to create data for us so we know exactly what the right reimbursements are for doctors, nurses, hospitals, and community health centers. We pull that out of the sky today, and they complain. And they should because there is no relation to that in reality.

This, by creating a real marketplace, real competition from the insurer all the way through to the service delivered will begin to build the database of information we need to know what reimbursements the marketplace says are fair to the people who provide it. Then they can make a decision. I believe we will find that every doctor, nurse, hospital, and community health center will receive this in a warm way because now they believe that this is a system which will evaluate what they deliver and what cost they are reimbursed for.

Mr. President, I am sure the chairman of the committee and the ranking member would have preferred to have this solely focused on SCHIP tonight. I know that. I think it is also rational to understand that when you are talking about expanding the rolls of Government insurance coverage to 3.3 million kids, somebody ought to stand up and ask: What about the other 45 million Americans? If, in fact, Members find there is value to the reform for the entire system, then why would we put the 3.3 million kids in a program that CBO already told us would cost $3,930 per child, which we can buy in the private marketplace for $1,130 worth of coverage today? Why don't we integrate them into the last system, which is reform our health care system.

Let's bring equity to the tax side and provide every American who is uninsured with the resources they need to go out and negotiate their coverage, whether they are individuals or families. Let's give the health care delivery system the confidence of knowing we are willing to create a market. This is not an unusual thing for us. We did it with Part D Medicare. The chairman of the committee was very instrumental in its passage. Today, 1 year after enactment of Part D Medicare, we created transparency and competition on what was one of the most price-sensitive areas: prescription drugs. What has the net result been? Premiums reduced 28 percent the first year, and drugs were reduced 33 percent. It was because we created competition and transparency. We made people show their prices and made sure there were multiple plans that people could choose from. The net result of that is exactly what we are trying to mirror here, but do it in a way that treats health care in its entirety. You cannot do that without prevention and wellness being the main pieces of it.

I thank the chairman for the fact that he listened. I appreciate that. I plan to be on the floor probably several times this week. I will try to do it when it doesn't interrupt the SCHIP debate. I think it is an important time to begin to educate our Members, to begin to educate America about the need for health care reform and how health care reform can actually enhance the future of the very special delivery system we have in this country.

I yield the floor.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, many Senators are waiting very patiently this evening. I see the Senator from Missouri, who has been extremely patient. We have done our best to protect Senators' places in line. Many Senators want to come to the floor and speak on this bill.

I ask unanimous consent that the following Senators be recognized in this order after Senator McCASKILL and Senator GREGG: Senators WHITEHOUSE, COBURN, BROWN, CORKER, DURBIN, MARTINEZ, KLOBUCHAR, DOLE, and TESTER.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Missouri is recognized.

Mrs. McCASKILL. Mr. President, I don't know that anybody could argue that the Children's Health Insurance Program hasn't been a success. Of course it has been a success. Frankly, successes have not come easily in the area of health care availability in this country over the last decade. So we have to protect it, we have to make sure it continues, and we need to make sure we expand it to as many children as possible.

I think this strong piece of bipartisanship we are debating today, in fact, does those things. The interesting thing is, I think back to a debate in this Chamber that occurred in November of 2003. In November of 2003, there was a piece of legislation concerning prescription drugs. Now, children's health insurance and prescription drugs are both noble and good causes to the Senate—to try to lower the cost of prescription drugs, to try to provide more insurance for children. What are the differences between the two debates? It is really interesting to look, because that is when that ugly head of politics begins to rear and people begin to see that sometimes, unfortunately, in this building it is about politics instead of public policy. Both goals of public policy, prescription drugs with lower costs and children's health insurance—everybody has to be for those goals. But how you get there and what complaints you have on the way is where politics come in.

Medicare Part D was a $400 billion program. Interestingly enough, it was passed in November of 2003 as we were approaching a Presidential election and a cycle of election. Interestingly enough, the President was running for reelection. Not a whisper of a veto threat was heard even though it was $400 billion that had no way to be paid for. There was no cigarette tax in Medicare Part D. It was guaranteeing a profit to the pharmaceutical industry. In fact, it went so far as to make sure you could not negotiate for lower prices—a bold thing, for a country where the free market is supposed to be something we relish. Negotiating for lower prices? That is pretty all-American. But, oh, no, we made sure there was no negotiation for lower prices on the part of the Government in Medicare Part D. There was no mechanism to pay for it.

Yet I hear Senators today speaking against this bill with righteous indignation, saying: Well, the tobacco tax in here is not going to be enough. The vast majority of the Republican party voted for Medicare Part D. I will note that the Senator who will follow me on the floor was one of the brave souls who voted no, and I am willing to bet it was because he was trying to be responsible relating to the budget. Most of his colleagues didn't agree with him, and certainly the President of the United States didn't agree. Not only did he sign the bill, he signed it with relish and he campaigned on it, even though the way the program is going to be implemented was not going to hit home for seniors for years in advance.

I think we can all be proud that there are some savings with Medicare Part D. We have to be honest that the Government is paying a price for it, just like we are going to pay a price for enhancing and protecting the Children's Health Insurance Program in this country. Other than Medicare Part D, we have not lifted a pinky finger in the area of health care during this administration.

Most Americans are now scared. They are scared about getting care for their children, getting care for their parents, and they are scared about whether they are going to be able to afford health care, knowing that any minute their employer may drop their coverage. The expansion of this program has more to do with the unavailability of health care from an employer than it has to do with some effort on the part of the Government to insure every person.

This is a public-private effort that has been a success. It is a block grant, not an entitlement. It allows the States flexibility. It is everything a Government program should be. It is getting to a very important need. There are so many reasons to be for this bill. I will not take the time tonight to go into them all because my colleagues will and they have today. I listened for a couple of hours when I was sitting in the chair. I am sure this will go on tomorrow with many people talking about important things.

I want to mention one part of the bill that I think is very important, which has not been talked about—mental health parity. We have spent a lot of time talking about our children being at risk for drugs and alcohol. We have talked a lot about how we have to teach them the dangers of drugs and alcohol. Truth be known, one of the biggest failures in our health care system in this country is the complete unavailability of mental health services for children.

Right now, in America, if you have health insurance and you know people and you are educated, it is difficult to find a mental health professional that specializes in children. If you are a poor working family and your child has gotten involved with drugs or alcohol and you want to get them mental health assistance, a treatment program, forget about it. It is literally almost impossible to access programs that can help adolescents and teens get off drugs and alcohol if they turn down that path at a young age.

This will allow those programs to get the parity they need in the States. Speaking from experience, in terms of watching the expensive price tag on what happens to these young people if they get addicted to drugs or alcohol at a young age, the costs to the Government are huge because of what it means down the line in terms of wasted productivity, criminal conduct, the prison systems, and other health care costs down the line.

There are very few kids who are addicted to drugs and alcohol who can get help when they are young, and a vast majority of them who do not end up charging us a heftier pricetag down the line, in terms of Government programs and assistance.

This is a very wise investment of the public dollar, to get not only the physical health care but the mental health care to the children of this country who desperately need it. We have talked about dental care and emergency rooms and broken arms, but I think it is time we realized we are abandoning our children when it comes to important mental health care services. This bill will go a long way toward fixing it.

I hope my friends on the other side of the aisle will not be situationally worried about the budget. When this was a program that was passed in 2003, $400 billion with no offsets, no way to pay for it, they lined up to vote for it, and the President signed it gleefully. It will be a bitter pill for America's children to swallow if, in a responsible way, we move forward to protect this program and this President decides to veto it. But if he does, he should know there are many of us here who will stand and fight with all the might we can muster on behalf of the kids of this country who deserve a chance at health care, deserve a chance for peace of mind for their parents.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Hampshire.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, first, I appreciate the acknowledgment of the Senator from Missouri of my views on the Part D proposal. She is correct, I did not vote for that proposal because it was not paid for. I don't think one expensive program deserves another expensive program, especially when the second expensive program is backed with very poor policy.

What I wish to talk about tonight is the policy. The issue, of course, should be how we get more children insured and how we get fewer people uninsured in this country. There are a variety of ways to do that. I have had a number of proposals of my own in this arena. However, it is not a good idea to approach this issue of how we get more children insured by suggesting that the best way to do it is to take a lot of kids off private insurance and move them on to public insurance or to, under the nomenclature of protecting children, which is, of course, very popular—and we have had lots of pictures on this floor already of children who have gone through very serious health concerns who need to have the support of the health community, of using children and pictures of children and anecdotal stories about children for the purposes of using a Federal program which is entitled children—to cover adults, some adults who, in fact, do not even have children. There are a lot of serious policy problems with this initiative.

The irony, of course, is this initiative is not about insuring more children, although that is a stated goal. The purpose of this initiative is to essentially take another large step down the road toward Federal control and delivery of health care in this country, universal health care, as it is popularly referred to. That is not me phrasing that. The chairman of the Finance Committee, who is always very forthright, always very honest about what he is doing around here, said exactly that: SCHIP is a major step on the road to a universal, one-payer, Federal health care system. There are a lot of folks on the other side of the aisle who especially believe that should be the proper way to insure people in this country or take care of health care needs in this country, and I respect that viewpoint.

However, I do not think it accomplishes what the goal is, which is to deliver high-quality health care to the most people in this country, to make health care affordable to most people in this country, and to give people in this country the opportunity to get good health care. What it does is what was described earlier in one of the starkest and most effective attacks on universal health care I have heard on this floor, when the Senator from North Dakota essentially explained the Indian health care program and what a disaster it is.

What is the Indian health care program? The Indian health care program is single-payer Federal health care. He was talking about kids not being able to see dentists, kids not being able to get broken arms fixed, kids put in serious situations and adults in equally serious situations and no resources, no capability to take care of these people who are having serious health care problems. Interestingly enough, he used the word which is most often associated with those studies which have looked at universal health care or federally mandated health care or single-payer health care. He used the word "rationing." He said rationing was occurring on the Indian reservations. He is right. He is right because that is what happens when you go to a single-payer system and the Federal Government becomes the payer. That is what they have in England, they have rationing. If you have certain situations, if you have a hip replacement, you are going to be rationed, depending on your age. If you have cancer and you are under a certain age, you are going to get hit with rationing. If you have to have some sort of invasive procedure which is optional, you are going to get hit with rationing.

The same thing happens in Canada. Why do you think Canadians come to America for health care? In New Hampshire, we see it fairly regularly, Canadians coming over the border to get their health care at Boston, at one of the many extraordinary medical facilities in Boston or at Dartmouth-Hitchcock, one of the best, most extraordinary facilities in New England, in the country quite obviously. Why? Because there is quality there, because things are being done there that are not being done in Canada, and you can get served. You don't have to wait in lines 2, 3, 4, 5 years for some sort of elective surgery, or if you have to have something done that is a major, complicated issue, you don't have to worry that the people doing it maybe do not have the expertise you need because the Government hasn't paid for the science behind the necessary research to produce that service.

This SCHIP fight is as much a debate about whether we are going to move to a single-payer system with the Federal Government taking complete control over health care as it is about how we pick up coverage of children in this country who don't have coverage.

Coverage for children in this country is affordable. We can do it without going to a single-payer system. We don't need to take 2.2 million kids off one system and put them on the SCHIP system. We don't need to take, I believe it is 1.7 million kids off private insurance and put them on public insurance.

The total amount of children who are going to be covered by this $35 billion in new program over the next 5 years—do you know how much? Mr. President, 4.5 million children. But of that number, 2.2 million already have coverage. So actually there are only 2.3 million children you are picking up, and it is costing you $35 billion to do that. That works out to something akin to $3,200 per child.

You can go on the Internet today and buy an insurance policy for a child for about $1,300. So in the classic way that the Federal Government works, we are going to spend twice as much of your tax dollars to pay for insurance for children, and we are going to take people who are already covered and move them from having the private sector bear the cost of that coverage over to the public sector so the public sector bears the cost of that coverage. Does that make sense? Is that common sense? Is that a good use of resources? Of course, it isn't.

The practical effect is also that under this proposal, the program is not paid for. In the second 5 years, in order to avoid the pay-go discipline which is allegedly on the other side of the aisle, the Holy Grail that is supposed to be followed in every instance—of course, they have waived it now nine times on domestic spending they like—they take the cost of this program and project that in year 6 of this program, a program which will have been built up to $16 billion in spending annually will suddenly drop back to $3.5 billion in spending. Now that doesn't pass the smell test. That is the laugh test. That is absurd on its face. No Federal program ever disappears around here, and you don't take one that supposedly is benefiting children and cut it by almost $12.35 billion. That is not going to happen, but that is the assumption that is made in this bill in order to avoid having to pay for this bill.

So this big white area, which is all the area that isn't covered of the projected costs—and this is actually a conservative number, by the way, this projected cost, that represents $40 billion, $40 billion that is unpaid for—is a cost we pass on to our children, by the way.

Ironically, we say we are going to insure our children by paying twice as much as it costs to insure them and by taking a bunch of kids off private insurance and move them to the public sector, and then at the same time we are going to create a $40 billion debt which our children will have to pay for. I am not sure our children are getting all that good a deal, to be very honest with you, in this exercise.

Plus, the ultimate goal of the exercise—I believe the ultimate goal has been stated by the chairman of the committee—the ultimate goal is to move toward a universal, single-payer system, where the Federal Government pays for health care. Here is the goal: You have all these folks on Medicare on one end, the elderly folks—that is me. I shouldn't call them too elderly—and then you have all these people on SCHIP, taken off private sector and being put in the public sector, such as this bill does, you have compressed the number of people available in the private insurance market, you are going to crowd out the private market. That is the game plan, crowd out the private market so you end up with a single-payer plan.

As I have already gone through, single-payer plans make very little sense from a standpoint of quality and rationing. I don't think this country will be very comfortable with a single-payer plan, any more comfortable than, for example, the Indian population appears to be on the Indian reservations, as was explained to us by the Senator from North Dakota, who was describing a single-payer plan, otherwise known as Indian health care.

So within this proposal, not only does it have this $40 billion gap in funds in spending, which it doesn't pay for in order to avoid the pay-go rule, not only does it take a bunch of kids who already have private insurance and move them to the public side, 1.7 million kids, and then end up paying twice as much to insure them as it is probably costing the private sector and sticking themselves with that bill because they don't pay for the program in the outyears, not only does it do all that, which is terrible policy, but it compounds this by taking a program which is supposed to insure children and using it to insure adults.

Both the predecessor program, State Children's Health Insurance Program, and the present program as proposed under this legislation, Children's Health Insurance Program, do not say anything in their title about insuring adults. They are supposed to be insuring children. That is the idea. But some of our States, in a very creative exercise, have decided to expand this program to insure adults. That makes some people in this body quite happy because it fulfills this exercise of moving toward universal health care. You can use the SCHIP program or the CHIP program, which is supposed to be for children, to pick up adults, and then we will even narrow further the population of people who would be available for private sector insurance and, thus, move even more aggressively toward public, single-payer insurance, public single-payer plans, universal health care, rationing, reduction in quality. It makes no sense that this should be allowed to continue.

Now, actually, the committee knows this. In fact, they sort of tacitly recognized it, because they put in place language which attempts to partially phase out this coverage of adults. They say over 3 years these waivers will end that cover adults, but adults will be insured, instead of at the rate of Medicaid, which is what the States have a right to reimbursement for when they insure adults who qualify, they will get some new blended rate that is higher than Medicaid but less than what you pay for children. So in a tacit way the committee has sort of acknowledged that they shouldn't be insuring adults with a program called Children's Health Insurance.

The only adults who could possibly and appropriately—and I have no problem with this—be covered under that would be pregnant women. Obviously, there is a clear issue of insuring a child if a woman is pregnant. She has a child. She is with child and, therefore, clearly that coverage is reasonable. But adults are supposed to be covered, if they qualify for Federal coverage, under Medicaid, not under the children's health insurance system.

So the amendment I am offering essentially completes the thought of the committee on this point by saying: No, we are not going to reimburse States. This isn't about insuring so much as about what the reimbursement rate is to the State—what sort of windfall a State gets when they move adults on to the SCHIP program.

There are a lot of State Governors who have figured out, I can get more money for my State, which I can use to help me balance my budget, if I put more adults under SCHIP because my reimbursement rate from the Federal Government is significantly higher. So that is why this happens.

Well, it is not right. It is gaming the Federal system to do that. Waivers shouldn't be granted to allow that to happen, and this administration bears many of the problems when it comes to that. They do not come to this issue with clean hands, that is for sure, because they have given a lot of these waivers. But the committee at least recognized this was not good policy and has tried to mute it a little bit so that States, when they do game this, will only be able to game it for another 3 years and then reduce it to about half of what gaming goes on in the outyears.

But there shouldn't be any of this. There is no reason to give States a breathing spell here on this issue. There is no reason to encourage States to put more adults into the system in the interim or to put more adults in the system in the future because you are reimbursing at a higher rate than Medicaid reimburses at. No reason at all. There is no good policy reason. The States have certainly had a good run of money coming in to them that they didn't deserve, because the Children's Health Insurance Program was not supposed to insure adults, it was supposed to insure children. So we are not doing them a disservice and we are not treating them unfairly by saying: All right, that policy ends. The SCHIP program, the new CHIP program, will be for children, not for adults.

So my amendment essentially does this. It says: Adults will not be covered under this program at the SCHIP rate. They can still be covered under the Medicaid rate but not under the SCHIP rate, which seems to be a very reasonable approach to a program entitled children's health insurance.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to be allowed to take the time already allocated to the Senator from Rhode Island, Mr. WHITEHOUSE.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, what an interesting debate this has been. If you want to know how Congress is likely to react to the fact that we have 47 million uninsured Americans and millions more with health insurance that is almost worthless, if you want to know what Congress is likely to say about the plight of families who struggle each year with premiums rising and coverage falling, you should listen to this debate. Because my friends on the Republican side of the aisle—not all of them, but a number of them—want to argue for the proposition that we ought to be careful we don't insure too many people in America.

It is an easy thing for a Member of the Senate to argue. We are some of the luckiest people in America. We are covered by the Federal Employees Health Benefit Program. That may be the sweetest deal in terms of health insurance anyone can dream of. It covers 8 million Federal employees, including Congressmen, Senators, and their families, and it allows us—if you can believe it, those watching this debate across America—it allows us once each year to decide if we want to change companies. If we don't like the way we were treated last year, if a particular company didn't cover something important to our family, we can say: That is it, we are buying a new product. It is like shopping for a car and we are in the driver's seat because we have options.

In my State of Illinois, my wife and I can choose from nine different health insurance plans. If we want to get more coverage, we can have more taken out of my check; less coverage, a lower amount. Our choice. Real consumers. Boy, there aren't very many Americans who can say that, are there? How few Americans can stand up and say: If I don't like my health insurance company, I will buy another. But we can do it. The Senators coming to the floor today arguing against children's health insurance being extended to too many people have that luxury. They are part of the Federal Employees Health Benefit Program.

Most of us here in the Senate bring our life experience to the floor. In this bill, there are two life experiences I have been through that come to mind. The first relates to the way we pay for children's health insurance, and that is with the tobacco tax. Well, tobacco has been a big issue in my congressional career. It was 20 years ago that I decided to introduce a bill to ban smoking on airplanes. It was considered a radical idea, that we would have no smoking on airplanes. Back in those days, they split the plane up, smoking and nonsmoking, and argued if you sat in the nonsmoking section that you were protected. Everybody knew better, but nobody questioned it. So I introduced a bill to take smoking off airplanes. My interest in that went beyond the fact that I was a frequent flyer, as most Members of Congress are. It even went beyond the fact that I had read the statistics about secondhand smoke and the damage it had caused to so many innocent people. It went to a personal life experience. My father smoked two packs of Camels a day. He was an addicted smoker for as long as I knew him, and I didn't know him very long. When I was 14, he died. He was 53 years old, and he died of lung cancer. I stood by his bed and watched as he took his last breath on November 13, 1959, at noon. I didn't swear then and there that I would get even with tobacco companies. But looking back, and as a young boy, I never got it out of my mind that that product, that tobacco product, had taken his life and taken him from me.

I remembered it whenever I would fight the tobacco companies, and I have quite a few times. I would think about all the other young people, men and women across America whose lives had been touched by tobacco disease.

My dad started smoking when he was a kid—most people do. So how do we stop kids from making that terrible choice in their lives? There is a simple way—raise the cost of the product. The more expensive a pack of cigarettes is, the less likely a younger child will start smoking and the less likely they will be addicted. That is simple economics. We have proven that over and over again.

We have these charts here that show U.S. cigarette prices versus consumption. As the price goes up, the consumption goes down. It is that basic. So we pay for this bill for children's health insurance across America by imposing a higher tax on tobacco products and cigarettes. It is no surprise that my Senate colleagues from tobacco-producing States don't like the idea at all. For years, they have come to the floor of the House and Senate and argued against tobacco taxes for a variety of different reasons, but they can't argue against this reality. The higher the cost, the lower the consumption. Certainly among children it is even more dramatic.

So for many who have come to argue against our approach to expanding children's health insurance, saying it is not fiscally responsible, it is as responsible as you can ask for. We are going to pay for it, and we pay for it with a tax on a product that claims over half a million American lives each year. Tobacco is still the No. 1 preventable cause of death and disease in America. Sparing a child from addiction to tobacco is sparing them the 1-in-3 likelihood that they will die from that addiction.

The second life experience that brings me to this issue goes back to my time in law school here in Washington at Georgetown Law Center. My wife and I were married after my first year in law school, and a baby came along rather quickly. Our daughter was born at the end of my second year, and I didn't have health insurance. I was a law student. We were happy to have our little girl, but a little surprised and unprepared. So we had to save up the money to pay for her delivery. Luckily, in those days, it wasn't as expensive as today, but for a law student it was still a lot of money. My wife worked during the pregnancy, I tried to save a few dollars, and we had enough money to pay the obstetrician and pay the hospital for my daughter's delivery while I was still in law school. But something happened 30 days after that which made a big difference. My daughter was diagnosed with a serious illness. Still, we had no health insurance. I found out what it was like to be the parent of a child and to have no health insurance. It was a humbling experience. I used to leave law school and drive over to Children's Hospital here in Washington, DC, pick up my wife and baby, drive over there and sit in the clinic. The clinic was, I guess, the place for those of us who didn't have health insurance, and we would wait our turns. There were a lot of people in that clinic, and it meant waiting a long time. I was glad to wait, because I wanted some doctor, some competent physician, to come see my daughter.

Well, we usually ended up with a resident who took the history, which we gave over and over and over again. But that is the price you pay when you don't have a regular doctor and a regular appointment. So the chart of my daughter's background grew and grew, and I sat there with my wife time after time waiting for a doctor to examine my baby. It wasn't a reassuring feeling for a father, because you want to believe that the doctor who is going to be there for your baby is the best. If you don't have health insurance, you may be tossing the dice. I learned what it was like. It was a humbling experience. I have never forgotten it, and I never will.

We are talking about children across America now who have no health insurance. Of the 47 million who are uninsured in America, about 9 million are children. We decided about 10 years ago to create a special program to provide uninsured kids with healthcare coverage. It worked. It worked very well. Over 6 million kids across America today have health insurance because of this program, and it is a program that people like because Governors and others can work to make it fit into their State, to fit their needs. There are Government guidelines, but there is flexibility through waivers that are offered. So a lot of States are trying different ways to bring more children in and cover more uninsured people. I think that is a good thing. I hope that whoever the next President of the United States may be—and we all have our favorites in this Chamber—whoever it may be, they will start their administration by saying they are going to challenge America to eliminate the uninsured over a specific period of time. And wouldn't they start with the kids?

The bill that came out of the Finance Committee is a bipartisan bill. I want to salute not only Senator BAUCUS of Montana, the chairman, but Senator GRASSLEY of Iowa, the ranking minority member, and others, Senator HATCH of Utah, Senator ROCKEFELLER of West Virginia, and Senator SNOWE of Maine, who have all made a real bipartisan effort. What we are trying to do is to take this bill and reauthorize this Children's Health Insurance Program so that we cover even more children. In fact, we have the opportunity to add another 3.2 million to the 6.6 currently covered. That is almost 10 million kids who will have health insurance, if we are successful. It will still leave almost 6 million uninsured. That is still too many, as far as I am concerned. But we are moving forward. We are dealing with political realities and budget realities and doing the best we can under these circumstances.

But Senator McCONNELL, the Republican leader, is going to come to the floor and suggest spending dramatically less money on this program. The net result of it is that Senator McCONNELL and others are going to argue let's not increase the number of uninsured kids covered by this program. At the end of the day it is going to mean that just about 9 million kids in America will be uninsured instead of the 6 million that will remain if we pass this proposal. Senator McCONNELL has made a calculation that he is willing to leave millions of uninsured kids behind.

He doesn't like the tobacco tax. Being from Kentucky, I am not surprised. But for many of us it is a small price to pay, increasing the cost of tobacco products so that kids have more health insurance. The important thing about this debate is it is a precursor of a much bigger debate that is to come over whether America is going to get serious about the shortcomings when it comes to health insurance.

I know there are a lot of people with a lot of different theories. I see my friend from Oklahoma, a medical doctor. He and I have talked about this. He has a much different view about this issue than I do. I hope his approach, if it is ever tested, works. But I believe this approach will work because what we are doing is taking those who have been unfortunate enough not to have health insurance and giving them a chance for coverage.

We know the poorest kids in America are eligible for Medicaid, a program that we share with the States all across the Nation. We know that the kids from wealthier families usually have health insurance through some worker in the household. But what about the kids caught in the middle? What about the kids where the parents do go to work but don't make enough money? What about the kids from families who, because of an existing medical condition or some other complication, can't afford health insurance, can't buy health insurance? That is what this program is all about.

There has been a lot of criticism of this program—I have heard it on the Senate floor today repeatedly—that it just covers too many children. We really ought to cut back on the number of kids covered. That really betrays an approach to this issue which I think we will hear more of. There are some people who, for a variety of reasons, philosophical and economic, would leave a lot of kids and a lot of uninsured Americans behind and say: That's life.

I don't accept that. I don't think that should be life in America. We live in a much better nation than that. Our values are stronger than that. We exalt family in America. We say that is the strength of our Nation. How can you exalt families and say that you want to make them stronger and not provide one of the basics in life—health insurance?

I know what it is like sitting in that waiting room, worrying about my own daughter's care, with no health insurance. I try to think of millions of other families who face that every single day. We were lucky. We got through it. My daughter is 39 years old now and has her own family. We were blessed in many ways.

But it was a tough experience I wouldn't wish on anybody. Those who vote against this proposal are wishing it on millions of Americans. In fact, they know millions of Americans will continue to have no health insurance and they accept it.

There is a young teenager in Naperville, IL, I am honored to represent. His name is Michael, and he is 17 years old. When he was in the fourth grade, he was friends with a young boy named Joey. He used to talk about Joey as his friend with the megawatt smile. They shared lunch together and kept their secrets safe for one another. But, unfortunately, Joey complained a lot about just not feeling right. He missed a lot of school. He was tired, his knees hurt, he bruised easily.

It came as a shock one day when Michael was told that Joey had been diagnosed with acute lymphocytic leukemia, a devastating, life-threatening disease. Then they learned another piece of alarming news: Joey's dad, who was a house painter, was self-employed and like millions of other self-employed Americans, was uninsured.

In the 4 years that followed, Joey with leukemia, would come to school when he could. He lost his hair with the treatment he received. He was frail, and he wore his Cubs cap to cover his bald head. Sometimes he only stayed for a couple of hours, but all the kids remember they were good hours. They were happy to see him.

Then, on January 8, 2003, the school counselor came in and told Michael and his class that Joey was not going to return. That is not an unusual story in America—but it should be.

What does this say about America, that 9 million children do not have the most basic health protection in our country? We are so proud of so many achievements that we have registered in the course of our history. We are so proud of the opportunities in our country. But how would we explain to future generations that we would just walk away from those kids and this opportunity to provide them with coverage? If Senator McCONNELL's alternative prevails, we will walk away from 9 million uninsured children. If the committee proposal prevails, we at least will take care of about 3.2 million of those kids. I wish we would take care of more.

We also know that if kids don't receive basic health care, a lot of simple things can become complicated; a lot of things that can be treated successfully will be ignored and unfortunately become worse. As Michael puts it, how many Joeys could be saved if only affordable health insurance was available to all children?

What do Americans think about this general concept of helping States cover more uninsured children? In a country that is sharply divided along political lines on so many issues, this is one that is overwhelmingly popular. Ninety-one percent of the American people get it. They think this is the right thing to do, to cover more children. Eighty-four percent specifically support covering all uninsured children with the Children's Health Insurance Program. It is hard to believe that number exists, when you hear some of the speeches against this program from the other side of the aisle. With this program we have reduced the number of uninsured children in America by a third.

States have worked to design programs that work best for them. My State is one of them. Illinois now provides coverage to over 130,000 parents under CHIP, and because of the increased outreach and enrollment, 250,000 more parents than it did prior to receiving a waiver from our Government to offer that coverage.

You say to yourself, if this is a children's program, why are you covering parents? They found the vast majority of parents had no health insurance or couldn't afford the health insurance they had, and by offering them insurance, it brought their children into coverage as well. Some will say it is not what the program is about; it is the children's health insurance program. But for these people, they consider it somehow a violation of trust that we would expand the program to bring in uninsured parents. To me, it is striving to reach a national goal, where every American, regardless of their economic situation, has health insurance. That is something I support and most Americans support, and something this program tries to achieve.

We give the States such as New Jersey and Illinois and many others the option to cover more parents. What is striking is, during the same time period that the state covered these parents, Illinois has added more than 360,00 children to Medicaid and CHIP coverage, so this program has worked. It has become an outreach program to let parents know they have an option. They may qualify for Medicaid. They may qualify for the Children's Health Insurance Program. It is a 38-percent increase in the number of kids covered by health insurance in my State. Is that working, a 38-percent increase? I think, frankly, the figures are obvious.

Just last week, Illinois State officials hosted delegations from around the country, briefing them on how our program works and maybe exchanging some ideas on how to make it better in their States and ours as well. Illinois was telling other states how to do it because Illinois has a successful model.

This is not a perfect piece of legislation. I wish it were larger. I would spend more than $35 billion. I would raise the tobacco taxes higher, if necessary. I would find other ways to offset the cost because I think we should be striving for full coverage of all uninsured children in America. What a great day that would be. What a celebration it would be for us to be able to say, on a bipartisan basis, Republicans and Democrats have reached that goal.

This bill doesn't quite reach the goal. But let's celebrate what it does. It moves us forward. It preserves a program which would expire on September 30, and it expands it. With these new funds and an accurate formula, combined with the incentive bonuses proposed, Illinois could cover as many as 123,400 children who are uninsured today over the next 5 years. That is a dramatic expansion. It is one which I would be happy to vote for and will vote for.

The Finance Committee bill increases eligibility levels for children covered under this Children's Health Insurance Program to 300 percent of Federal poverty. Some people on the floor have talked about 300 percent of Federal poverty level as a higher income. Do you know what it means to have a family of four and be at 300 percent of poverty? It means an income of $62,000 a year. That is a little over $1,000 a week. That is maybe a little more than $5,000 a month. It is hard to imagine people are living in the lap of luxury, after they pay their taxes and their basic expenses, paying for the higher price of gasoline and utility bills, paying for whatever it takes to have a safe and sound place to live in.

I think most of us who are blessed with a lot more income should reflect on a family of four struggling with $62,000 a year. I don't think there are many vacations or trips to the movies with that kind of income. For the State of Illinois, this change in eligibility level would bring in an additional $26.5 million to cover thousands of additional kids, which is certainly a positive step forward.

I can tell you that Senator McCONNELL, who is offering a Republican alternative—as I mentioned earlier, is not offering an alternative embraced by all Republicans. Many support the bipartisan bill that came out of the committee and see it as strengthening a successful bipartisan program. Senator McCONNELL sees it as a slippery slope to universal coverage.

low-income children, fiscally responsible, providing a safety net. He criticized the bill from the committee as a "dramatic departure from current SCHIP law."

What he failed to mention is his alternative is the dramatic departure. It includes a bare reauthorization of the program and adds in small business health plans and health savings account reform. Incidentally, the health savings account is the refuge for all of my friends on the Republican side of the aisle. When they can't think of anything to say about covering more people with health insurance, they come in with these health savings accounts—an idea once waltzed out by Speaker Gingrich that has gone around the track many times and has not shown the success that they promised.

Here it is again—no surprise. The Republican proposal by Senator MCCONNELL would likely cause hundreds of thousands of people to lose coverage.

I am encouraged that the reauthorization bill before us has sparked a national conversation, not only about the kids who are uninsured but others as well. My counterparts on the other side of the aisle have not always been open to that conversation, but that is not what is before us. The bill we are considering will reauthorize the Children's Health Insurance Program before it expires on September 30.

This is not the time or vehicle to try to add all kinds of health care proposals, but that day should come. This is the time to take care of our nation's children and we will pay for it as we go. As I said earlier, this new tobacco tax is a smart thing from a health point of view. In a poll conducted by the Campaign for Tobacco Free Kids, two-thirds, 67 percent, of those interviewed favored such a tax increase. Only 28 percent opposed it. Moreover nearly half, 49 percent, strongly favored it. Only 20 percent strongly opposed it. It is the right thing to do. We know what tobacco does to the health of America. Discouraging its use is a move in the right direction.

This is an historic debate, one that is long overdue. We know health care is the most important issue to Americans next to the war in Iraq, and very rarely if ever do we seriously address it. We know the business community is begging us to move forward and expand health insurance coverage in this country to help them find a way to move to universal coverage which will not be at the expense of competitiveness. We know that working families, those in labor unions and those who are not, all understand the cost of health insurance and its value to every family, and we know from our own personal experiences and the people we meet in our States that this is long overdue. It is about time we opened up this discussion.

I am heartened by the work of the Finance Committee. The fact they brought this bill to us with strong bipartisan support on the floor of the Senate is an indication that there is some promise to this debate. I thank my colleagues who worked so hard on the committee to bring this bill forward. I hope we can build on it, cover more uninsured children, and move to the day that every single American, regardless of their income, has basic health insurance coverage so that every American has peace of mind when it comes to their health and the health of their family, so that no American, whether a law student or someone who has a low-income job, has to wait and pray that there will be good professional health care for their children.

I yield the floor.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. President, I am going to spend a little bit of time first discussing health care in America. I have a little bit of experience, having practiced for 24 years. The children the majority whip talked about, I delivered 4,000 of them. I cared for well over a third of those through their infancy and into childhood.

Let's be clear about what this debate is. There is no difference. I agree with Senator DURBIN. I want every person in this country to have health insurance. Actually, every problem that Senator DURBIN mentioned could be solved by equalizing the tax treatment under the Tax Code so that everybody is treated the same under the Tax Code in this country.

Let's talk about where we are in health care in America today, then let's talk about what the possible solutions are.

What we have today is the best health care in the world. It is very expensive, there is no question about it. Eighty percent of all of the innovation in health care in the world comes out of our health care system. We have survival rates on prostate cancer, breast cancer, and colon cancer that far exceed anywhere else in the world. Our treatments for coronary artery disease are better than anywhere else in the world. If you have a heart attack in this country, you are more likely to live 5 years than anywhere else in the world. But we have a system that is designed to treat chronic disease instead of designed to prevent disease.

I know that the President this evening is supportive of prevention in terms of how do we change the focus in this country. You see, what we have coming to us is a storm. It is not going to be a storm that affects myself or the Senator from Ohio; it is going to affect our kids and our grandchildren. Here is what the storm is. If you are born today, born today, you are born owing $500,000 for the health care of everybody who was born before you under Medicare. Think of that. Listen to me—$500,000 is the cost we are laying on the next generation for the health care system we have under Medicare. That is not talking about Medicaid, that is not about SCHIP, that is about Medicare only. If you are born today, that is what you are going to bear over and above what our present tax rate is. That is called stealing opportunity from the next generation.

We also have a health care system under which 7 percent of the costs of health care comes about from tests that are ordered for you that you do not need. There is no reason you need them, but the tests get ordered because your doctor needs them or your hospital needs them. It is a full $170 billion a year we spend on tests that nobody needs except the doctors to protect themselves in the case of "what if." And this body refuses to look at tort changes that will make us order tests based on what you need rather than on the threat of a malpractice suit.

So we have liability costs, we have unfunded costs from Medicare, we do not have prevention. We spend tens of billions of dollars a year on disease prevention in this country, $7.1 billion at the NIH, $8.4 billion at the CDC, and then billions more that we can't quantify across many Federal agencies where you cannot measure that we did anything on prevention.

The average American does not know that at age 50, they should have a colonoscopy; they do not know that at age 35, they should have a mammogram; they do not know that if they have a family history of breast cancer, they should have that mammogram sooner; they do not know that every month, they should be doing a self breast exam; they do not know the symptoms of prostate disease in older men; they do not know what they need to know about prevention. We are totally inept in the programs we have today to communicate that to America.

So that is where we find ourselves today—the best health care system in the world, with the most innovation, but also 50 percent more expensive than anywhere else in the world.

Now, when you match up those two statistics I talked about, in terms of greater life expectancy, in terms of all of the cancers, in terms of heart disease, against the cost, what is the difference in all the countries that have universal, single-payor, government-run, bureaucratic-controlled health care? They let you die. That is the difference. If you need a knee replacement, like the Senator from North Dakota talked about, you do not get it because there is no money. Let's talk about some statistics. Average waiting time in Sweden: 25 months for heart surgery. How many people do you think live 25 months? How about an average of 10 months before the onset of chemotherapy for breast cancer in England. The reason their costs are down is because they are not caring for people at the end of life.

We can get all of that back if we emphasize prevention. Prevention. For every dollar we spend on prevention in this country, we are going to get 100 back. Yet we do not have effective prevention programs. So what is this debate really about?

There is not anybody in this Chamber who does not want to see kids have great access to health care, preventative or otherwise. There is not anybody in this Chamber who wants anybody not to have available health care. What is the real debate? Well, there are actually three.

The first debate is: Do we want the Government that cannot get you a passport, that cannot control the border, that cannot take care of the problems associated with a hurricane when we have a major emergency, do you want them running your health care? A government that is failing so many fronts because the bureaucracy is so big, the oversight is so poor from this body, the oversight is so poor, we do not do our jobs. We can find lots of ways to spend new money, but we cannot spend the effort to find out if money we are spending is working. The oversight is so poor that we have ineffective programs all over the place.

There is a columnist by the name of P.J. O'Rourke. He said, if you think health care is expensive now, wait until it is free. And there is a lot of truth to that. When it becomes free, it is going to be tremendously expensive.

So the debate is not about whether we should cover children and whether children ought to have great health care. They should. We have the resources to do it. What the debate is about is whether we are going to put into the hands of an incompetent government in many other areas your health care. And this is the first step in moving it all in that direction.

Now, the Senator from Illinois talked about the young child with acute lymphoblastic leukemia. We have moved to where we have about an 80-percent cure rate with that right now. We did not do that through the Government; we did that through the private sector. But he also noted that he did get this care. He did get chemotherapy. He did get it. So the other point that needs to be made about—the system we have now is shifting a quarter of a trillion dollars a year into a system because we are absorbing costs rather than giving individuals their care based on freedom.

The second point is, if we do this expansion of SCHIP, are we getting good value for what we are paying? There is a chart I want to put up that shows—these are CBO numbers. The reference to the private care comes from data about the individual health insurance market. The $1,532 comes from average of a $500 deductible added to the average premium for a private children's policy: $1,032. One in three will pay a $1,500 deductible, two will pay no deductible. So for $1,532, you can buy private coverage, but with this bill we are talking about spending $3,950 for government care for the same thing. That expense will be charged to your children and your grandchildren. I think it is probably not a great deal, not great value, for us to do it this way.

The other thing the Senator from Illinois recognized is that he wanted everybody to have insurance. All he has to do is cosponsor the Burr-Corker bill because that gives everybody in this country, if you are an individual, a $2,160 tax credit, refundable flat tax credit. If you are a family, it gives a $5,400 refundable tax credit.

Now, what does that mean? If you are earning $61,950, a bureaucrat is going to decide what your health care is and who your doctor is going to be and whether or not you have care versus you deciding. It is about freedom to choose.

So the Senator from Illinois can have every one of the desires he listed and meet every one of the goals by us equalizing the benefit under the Tax Code for all of us. That means it does not matter if you are rich or poor; you get the same treatment under the Tax Code. In other words, we are going to guarantee 100 percent universal access for everybody in this country, and it is not going to cost a penny.

The other thing this debate is about is, Do we really want to have a debate in this country on health care? If we do, let's have a total debate.

Mr. President, so this debate is about whether we get value, this debate is about whether we really are going to fix health care, and finally, this debate is about the dishonesty in this bill about how it is paid for. And what we are doing—you saw Senator GREGG with the chart out here. We are going to assume that in year 6, the cost of this is $3.5 billion, but the new program is 12. There has never been a program that is going to go down from that. So rather than violate their own rules, they cut it down and said it does not exist at the same level for the second 5 years of this authorization. That is exactly what America has come to expect of us—being intellectually dishonest with them about the true costs of programs.

So, as Senator GREGG said, the debate really is about the starting of the debate, about what we are going to do in health care. We have good health care. We have 43.6 million Americans who do not have it. This bill purports to put 3.3 million of them on SCHIP. The only problem with that is 1.1 million of them have insurance now, so there is a double cost. So we got back to the $3,900, which is what the American taxpayer, one way or the other, is going to pay for $1,532 worth of care. How does that make sense? It makes sense only if you are moving in a direction to have the Government run it all.

So if you want the personal freedom to be able to choose what your health care should be and you want the Government to equalize the tax basis under which we all receive care so that everybody gets the same benefit—not the wealthy, one, and the poor, a different one; the difference is $2,700 if you are well off and $102 if you are not—that is how the Tax Code discriminates against you now. What we do and what we suggest is everybody gets the same treatment. And what happens is, under this bill, CBO scores that it will add maybe 3.3 million kids. Under the Burr-Corker, we add 24 million people in coverage over the first 10 years of that program, according to JCT.

So if this is about covering all of the children and about covering those who do not have health care, we ought to be addressing it in a totally different way. We ought to be saying we want a universal flat tax credit that is refundable to everyone in this country so they can all have access.

Senator WYDEN has proposed that on the other side with some minor differences in what we are suggesting through the Burr-Corker bill. But the fact is, you cannot have it both ways. Which way is better? Do you want the freedom to choose or do you want an organization that right now has proven to be terribly incompetent?

Some statistics about the incompetence: the doctor shortage in this country 15 years from now is going to be 200,000 doctors. Why is that? Why are the best and brightest not going into medicine today?

Why is that? It is the same reason that you see all the European single-payer systems moving toward what we have, as we try to move toward them. We are going in exactly the opposite direction. The reason is, by the time you finish 12 years of college and graduate and postgraduate and post-postgraduate education, you can't earn enough under Medicare or Medicaid to even repay your loans. So what is happening is, our best and brightest, instead of going into medicine, are going into other areas where they can be remunerated for their investment in education. This drives us further that away.

What is the statistic behind it? Fifty percent of the doctors don't see Medicare or Medicaid patients now. If you move to a new city and you are on Medicare, good luck on finding a new Medicare doctor. Why? Because the reimbursement is about 50 percent of what they can earn seeing somebody who is not on Medicare. So we will have a shrinking number of doctors, a government-run program that is going to control cost by saying, as the Senator from North Dakota said: Here is the amount of money. Guess what. We are not paying for it. It is going to get rationed. That is exactly what is going to happen to us. Consequently, we are going to take the best health care system in the world, with all its defects, and we are going to turn it on its ear. We are going to take the system that develops 80 percent of all new innovations in health care and run it away.

Example: M.D. Anderson Clinic spends more on research in health care than all of Canada. Think about that. One private outfit in this country spends more than the whole nation of Canada on health research. Why? Because we have a system that rewards innovation. We are going to kill that system. We are going to destroy it. The question is not whether children ought to be covered. Sure, they should. But so should their parents and everybody else but not in a way that destroys the system. The system will work if we create access for everyone. The system will work without raising a tax dollar to anybody. We will give everyone free choice to have what is best for them.

The numbers don't lie. If you doubt what I am saying about this being a step toward national health care, here is what they say. Question: Is this the first step toward a government-run, bureaucratic-controlled single-payer health care system? Senate Finance Committee: Absolutely not.

Now let's hear what the chairman said:

> We're the only country in the industrialized world that does not have universal coverage. I think the Children's Health Insurance Program is another step to move toward universal coverage.

AKA government-run health care in this country. So the system that gives us great innovation, that creates 80 percent of the new drugs, new techniques, new technologies, we are going to poke our finger in its eye because of what it has done.

We heard the Senator from Illinois say all the big businesses want to solve this. They have made commitments to health care. They now want to dump on the American public rather than on their shareholders. General Motors, Ford, Chrysler, they want us to pay for it. They had an obligation for it. They took plenty of bonuses when the profits were good. Now they want you as taxpayers to pay for it. That is why all the Governors want the SCHIP program, because it is going to expand their ability to solve their other budget problems. But what we are charged with is doing what is best for the country in the long run. I will promise you, a government-run, bureaucratic-controlled health care system is not the best thing for this country. And that is what we will get. What we to have do is go back and use a little common sense and look at what is happening.

In my State of Oklahoma, we have 117,000 kids on SCHIP. Oklahoma chose to make it a Medicaid expansion. The problem is, Medicaid doesn't pay enough so kids can't get access in Oklahoma under the rates which they pay. So have we given children access? We have a SCHIP program. Can they get care on a timely basis, can they get the same thing somebody through a private insurance firm can get? No. Is that the kind of care we want? I want everybody to have the same access. I don't want a Medicaid stamp on anybody's forehead. I want them to be treated equally under the Tax Code so they have exactly the same opportunity for access to care that the richest or the best union member or the best business offers. We can do that, but we can't do it by going in this direction.

We heard from the majority whip that we don't like kids. I don't care how much tobacco is taxed. The problem is their numbers are foolish, because we know as we raise the tax, the amount of volume goes down or it goes to the black market or it goes through Indian tribes who don't pay the Federal excise tax even though they owe it.

So what we know is the way we are going to fund this isn't going to work, but we are going to be on the hook anyhow. Except it is not us on the hook. It is your kids. The very kids we are going to insure, we are going to come back and say: By the way, you have to pay for your insurance through increased tax rates.

We should be very careful about what we are doing. I care dearly about children. I have four grandchildren, 10 and under. I look at them, and I see all the kids I have delivered through the last 20-some years. I see all the kids I have cared for, diagnosed major diseases on, treated broken bones, taken their appendix out. I look at all those, and not once were they ever turned down. The vast majority of physicians don't turn somebody down in need, but we are coming to a screeching halt. No longer can we continue to cut the incentive to have people going into the medical field. Take 200,000 doctors and see what would happen if, in fact, we had them there in the future.

The biggest problem facing hospitals today, they can't find a nurse. Why? Because the reimbursement rates are so low we can't incentivize enough people to go into nursing because they can't pay the costs to do it and the hours are terrible. You work four 12-hour shifts. You are off for 3 days, and you come back and work four 12-hour shifts. It is not a great life. So the people in medicine today, the vast majority, care deeply about kids, but they also care deeply about having some rest, having access to a normal life outside of that. My nurse added it up. During my 20 years, my average time in practicing medicine was over 80 hours a week. That is not uncommon in this country. It is not uncommon for doctors to spend 80 hours a week taking care of folks. But we are going to be short 200,000 because we are going to see less dedication because there is not the financial reward for people to invest that much time and their assets to get the education they need.

Let's talk about who is going to get on the system and who is not. Under the old system with this expansion, we are going to add 4.1 million kids. But we are going to take 2.1 million off private insurance. So in Oklahoma, I don't know what the exact numbers will be, but we are going to take kids off private insurance and then put them on a Medicaid system they can't get access to. We will feel good. We gave them insurance. We give them coverage, but they don't have access. Unless you are getting seen, it is not access.

Also under the new system, the newly eligible, they will add 600,000 kids, but there is a 1-for-1 trade. We will take 600,000 off private insurance. So tell me what we are doing? We are shrinking the pie so that the cost for everybody in private insurance is going to go up. That is what is going to happen. We are going to move it over to a government-run system that doesn't reimburse at a rate to give you access. Why would we do that? Why would we pay 2.5 times what it costs to get it in the private sector?

There are a lot of changes that need to happen in health care. We need to complete transparency as far as price and quality so you as a consumer can make a decision. I am for that. We need true insurance market reform so that instead of big health insurance companies taking 40 percent of the premium dollars you pay and keeping it through administration of profits, we actually put it into health care.

We need a change in the insurance industry, where a bureaucrat sitting at a computer, either at Medicaid, Medicare or an insurance firm, isn't denying your care because they have never put their hands on you to say you need this or not.

What we are talking about is giving individuals the freedom to handle their own health care, the freedom to choose, the security to know that through this tax credit, everyone will have access in this country, no matter who you are, no matter what you make. You are equal footing with everybody else.

When the majority whip comes out and says that is what he wants, my challenge to him is, sign on to the Burr-Corker bill. That is exactly what it does. It gives equal access to everyone. Instead of an additional 130,000 kids in Illinois, he will have all the kids covered. Instead of the adults who are not covered in Illinois, he will have them all covered. He would not raise taxes on a soul. Will it shift some? Sure.

The question is, are our kids worth it? That is the question that has been raised by the Finance Committee and Senator DURBIN and those who have spoken. I say they are. But if you go back to the numbers, which is $3,950, and you apply that and you take the 4.2 million children, we could cover all of the uninsured children if we did it at the cost of the private sector right now. If we said we will take the same amount of money we are going to spend under the SCHIP program and we will buy them all a private policy, we can cover every kid who is not covered today because we spend 2.5 times more doing a government program than the same thing you can do on your own in the private sector. Why wouldn't we do that?

We wouldn't do that because this is the first step in moving toward universal, government-run, bureaucratic-controlled health care.

One other point I wish to make. We have a Medicaid program today. We have a SCHIP program today. There are 680,000 kids right now who are not covered who are eligible for those programs. Tell me how effective we are at covering those 680,000 kids. They are eligible, but we don't have them? That is because of the failure of the Government bureaucracy to fully get a benefit out to those who are deserving of the benefit. So what do we do? We are going to go in the opposite direction.

The other important point is, what SCHIP does is separate you from your family. If you make $60,900 in this country—that is higher than the average family income in 21 of our States—your child is going to be eligible for SCHIP. So your child is going to go on SCHIP. They will have a different insurance plan than you. They will have different doctors. There is not going to be a family doctor who cares for the whole family. The child will have one, and the parents will have a different one. We will separate them and divide them. We are going to totally separate them. Then guess what is going to happen. Parents are saying: I could put my kid on SCHIP, and I will get a decline in my premium. But it would not decline because we would not have done any insurance market reform. We will not have created a competitive market where they have to bid for your care. We will not have done what we need to do to fix health care.

So I welcome this debate. This is a debate we ought to have in this country. Health care is important, and it is one of the things that is limiting our competition. But the reason it is limiting competition is because we aren't investing in prevention and nearly $1 out of every $3 spent in health care does not go toward helping anybody get well. The reason it is that way is because we have the Government in the middle of the market. We are about to make that worse.

What we do know in this country is markets work. Individuals in this country figure out how to buy a car that is good for them. They figure out how to buy auto insurance. They figure out how to buy homeowners insurance. But we assume if we give everybody a level playing field, they are not capable. How arrogant of us. Markets work.

What we will see is this $250 billion—this quarter of a trillion dollars in transfer payments, cost shifting—go completely out. The $250 billion will drop everybody's insurance cost in this country by $1,000 per person. So not only will we insure everybody who is not insured, we will lower their cost of insurance by $1,000, by eliminating the cost shifting, and we are paying for that already. So we will have great benefits if, in fact, we move to a true competitive market.

The last thing I will say is, if we do a tax credit—a flat tax credit, a refundable tax credit—it keeps families together. It keeps mama and papa and brothers and sisters going to the same clinic, with the same doctors, with constancy of care, knowledge of their history, knowledge that is important in terms of giving great care.

I look forward to this debate. I plan on being on the floor. I plan on asking questions. The fact is, this is the issue this country is dealing with both in terms of how hard it is to get health care in this country and how expensive it is. There are two ways of solving it. One says the Government is going to run it and the bureaucrats are going to control it and we are going to control the costs by rationing the care. The other way says we are going to let vibrant markets create transparent information and competition that lowers the cost and increases the quality for everybody. On the way, we are not going to be inefficient in the way we spend money, spending $3,950 for $1,500 worth of product. That is what we typically do up here. There is no reason we should do that again.

"9. No Member, officer, or employee of the Senate shall knowingly use his official position to introduce, request, or otherwise aid the progress or passage of congressionally directed spending items, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits a principal purpose of which is to further only his pecuniary interest, only the pecuniary interest of his immediate family, or only the pecuniary interest of a limited class of persons or enterprises, when he or his immediate family, or enterprises controlled by them, are members of the affected class.

"10. Any Senator may move to waive application of paragraph 1, 2, or 3 with respect to a measure by an affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members, duly chosen and sworn. A motion to waive under this paragraph with respect to a measure shall be debatable for not to exceed 1 hour equally divided between the Majority Leader and the Minority Leader or their designees. With respect to points of order raised under paragraphs 1, 2, or 3, only one appeal from a ruling of the Chair shall be in order, and debate on such an appeal from a ruling of the Chair on such point of order shall be limited to one hour.

AMENDMENT NO. 2590 TO AMENDMENT NO. 2589

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I send a second-degree amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the amendment.

The Senator from Nevada [Mr. REID] proposes an amendment numbered 2590 to amendment No. 2589.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate continue consideration of H.R. 976.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. President, the majority leader asked unanimous consent to bring the ethics bill to the floor. He filled the tree, limiting amendments. I wish to spend a minute talking about that.

I honestly believe we are never going to have the problems fixed in Washington until we have absolute and complete transparency on earmarks. Senator DEMINT and I have both, numerous times, asked for unanimous consent that what we voted on 96 to 0 in the Senate be the order of the day when it comes to transparency on earmarks. That was rejected. We had a Democratic conference, and what we actually did—and I am not saying this partisanly at all; this is not a partisan issue—but what we did is gutted the transparency portion of the earmark reform. If you think the problems are going to stop with the ethics bill that is going to be coming up, we have another thought coming.

What the leadership has done, the majority leader along with those in the other body, they have cleaned the outside of the cup to what looks like is a good deal for the American public, but when you look over the edge of the cup, what you see is filth, what you see is a lack of integrity, what you see is a planned method to skirt transparency. The only thing Americans should believe is the only way they are going to know everything is on the up and up in this body is with 100 percent transparency. Anything less than that will not get you the accountability, will not solve the ethical problems that are out there. We need to be about that.

I am going to work hard to talk about that more. I think it is uncompromising what we are seeing done at this time to pull the wool over the eyes of the American people when it comes to earmarks. That is not a partisan issue. I am against earmarks, especially if they are not 100 percent transparent. But if you look at every ethical lapse that has happened in this body, it always goes back to earmarks. When they are transparent, and fully transparent to where the American people can see it, you are going to start getting good Government again. Until then, you are not.

I yield the floor.

Ms. KLOBUCHAR. Thank you, Mr. President.

I am here today to talk about the State Children's Health Insurance Program. I, first, do wish to say I am very pleased we are advancing an ethics bill in the Senate. I am very pleased with the work the majority leader has done on this bill. As a freshman class, we came in with some energy, and we came in with a commitment that we cannot do business as usual in Washington.

This ethics bill, as many outside groups have stated, is the most sweeping ethics reform we have seen since Watergate. It is about banning gifts and free meals. It is about not allowing people to take advantage of corporate jets. It is about bringing transparency to the earmark process.

I am very glad this advanced. I did not agree with a few of our Members who tried to block this from going to conference committee. I am glad we found a way procedurally to bring this legislation to the Senate. I am very hopeful it will pass the Senate, as it passed the House today.

Ms. KLOBUCHAR. Mr. President, I am here today to talk about health care. Today, 45 million Americans are living without access to affordable health care. In a nation of such tremendous wealth and opportunity, with such a strong belief in science and research and medical advancement—we certainly have that in our State, the State of Minnesota—one wonders how so many of our fellow citizens can be burdened with the daily worry of what to do should a health disaster strike themselves or a loved one.

Health insurance premiums have skyrocketed into orbits unreachable by an increasing number of middle-class families. We have seen this in our State, where we actually have a fairly high level of people covered. But health care premiums for the middle class are so many times out of reach. We have seen nearly a 100-percent increase in the last few years in our State.

The foundations of employer-based health insurance are buckling under enormous cost pressures. The result is that ever more Americans are squeezed by health care costs and face awful decisions about delaying or forgoing needed medical treatment and care.

I, in fact, woke up this morning trying to decide when my daughter would get her braces because of the health insurance policy we got that makes you wait 2 years to get that kind of care. Well, we are lucky to be able to even have that insurance because so many kids in this country do not have it.

In fact, nearly 9 million of the uninsured in America are children. Kids without access to health care are at an enormous disadvantage as they grow up and start to make their life in this world. Children without health coverage are less likely to get basic preventive care, less likely to see a doctor regularly, and less likely to perform well in school. Children without health coverage are also more likely to show up at the hospital sicker and more likely to develop costly chronic diseases.

Currently covering 6 million children, the Children's Health Insurance Program succeeded in improving their lives by giving them access to the health care services they need. It is a successful program that deserves to reach even more children. This is important because, first of all, it is the decent thing to do for America's children who, through no fault of their own, are growing up in families that cannot otherwise get affordable health insurance. But this is also important because it is something that is good for all of us.

That is because insuring our children is a smart investment. It is a smart investment to make sure America's children get preventive medical care. It is a smart investment to help America's children grow up as healthy as they can be. It is a smart investment to have America's children in school focused on learning rather than distracted by a sickness or an injury that has gone untreated. It is a smart investment to have America's children get medical care through a sensible system of health insurance rather than having them end up in a hospital emergency room as their health care provider of last resort, increasing the bill for the rest of us.

I have seen the direct impact at the local level. For 8 years, I was the county attorney. As county attorney, my office represented the largest safety net hospital in Minnesota. That is the Hennepin County Medical Center in Minneapolis. It is one of the Nation's premier public teaching and research hospitals. It has a nationally recognized level 1 trauma center with the largest emergency room in our State.

The hospital serves patients regardless of their ability to pay. As a result, in 2006, the Hennepin County Medical Center's level of uncompensated care added up to $38 million—almost double what it was in the year 2000. That is because the emergency room was these people's doctor. People say: Well, they do not have insurance. They cannot get a doctor. Well, they have a doctor. It is the emergency room. The taxpayers are paying for it, and it is the most expensive place to get health care. It is the clinic of last resort for the uninsured, whether it is for minor illnesses or for more serious conditions that went untreated or could have been prevented.

Both in the short run and over the long term, expanding health insurance coverage offers a better deal for our Nation's health and for our continued prosperity. The people of my State have recognized this for a long time. Back in 1992, the leaders in my State voted to establish MinnesotaCare to provide children and their families with a new opportunity to secure health coverage.

The initiative was created with bipartisan support in our State legislature, and it was signed into law by Republican Governor Arne Carlson.

Within a decade—and thanks to the Children's Health Insurance Program—MinnesotaCare had grown to cover more than 150,000 Minnesotans and helped to make my State No. 1 in the Nation for the percentage of residents with health coverage.

But we are now losing the high ground we worked so hard to gain, as a growing number of Minnesotans, especially children, go without health coverage. Uncompensated health care costs for Minnesota's urban and rural hospitals have jumped substantially in recent years. Much of this increase in uncompensated care is due to a decline in health care coverage in our State.

For example, between 2001 and 2004, the proportion of Minnesotans who had health coverage through their employers declined from more than 68 percent to less than 63 percent. During the same period, the proportion of Minnesota children covered through their parents' employer also declined from roughly 77 percent to 69 percent.

Not surprisingly, the number of Minnesota children lacking health coverage increased significantly. Today, an estimated 82,000 Minnesota children are without health coverage.

At the time when thousands of Minnesotans are losing coverage from their employers, or they are being priced out of the insurance market by ever-higher premiums, MinnesotaCare's funding has also been scaled back.

In Congress, we have the opportunity to do something about this—starting with the reauthorization of the Children's Health Insurance Program.

Recently, the Senate Finance Committee approved bipartisan legislation to reauthorize the Children's Health Insurance Program. Although I believe it could be even stronger, this compromise legislation authorizes $35 billion over 5 years to expand the Children's Health Insurance Program and extend quality health insurance to an additional 3.2 million children who currently lack coverage.

This legislation provides much needed funding for States to maintain and expand their programs and ensure that States that have suffered Federal funding shortfalls, including Minnesota, will now experience a stable level of Federal dollars.

As a State-Federal partnership, Children's Health Insurance Program has granted States the ability to tailor their programs to meet the needs of their residents. Some States increased eligibility levels for children. Other States allowed pregnant women to be covered under the program.

With MinnesotaCare, my State was an early leader in covering children from working families who had incomes above the Federal poverty level but still could not afford health insurance. In 2001, Minnesota was granted a waiver to extend the coverage to parents with incomes up to twice the Federal poverty line.

I would like to make one point clear. In no way is Minnesota covering parents at the expense of children. When the Children's Health Insurance Program was established in 1997, Minnesota already had one of the highest levels of covering children. So why did Minnesota include low-income working parents? The reason is simple. Ample research shows that when parents have coverage, children also get coverage, and they are more likely to actually receive medical care.

I have to point out the Bush administration agrees—or at least at one time it did. Here is a quote from Health and Human Services Secretary Tommy Thompson in June of 2001, when his Department approved Minnesota's waiver. He said:

> I am thrilled today to extend the promise of health care insurance to parents. We know there is a greater likelihood that kids will stay insured if their parents also have coverage.

Agreeing with Secretary Thompson was Mark McClellan, the Administrator for the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services. Testifying in 2006 before the Finance Committee about the virtues of parent coverage, he said:

> Extending coverage to parents and caregivers may also increase the likelihood that their children remain enrolled in SCHIP.

So as recently as last year, top officials in the Bush administration were on record affirming the strong evidence of the role of parental coverage in the health care and well-being of children. Now the President and his allies have backtracked and would prefer to take coverage away from American families, including 34,000 parents in Minnesota alone.

I will tell my colleagues what seems odd to me. Both the President and the Vice President were recently in hospitals, and they were covered. That is good. But why would they want to deny millions of kids in this country the same right? Why would they want to deny 34,000 parents in Minnesota the same right?

As Congressional Budget Office Director Peter Orszag stated during a Finance Committee markup of this bill:

It doesn't make sense. Our goal must be to secure health care access for more—not fewer—Americans.

The White House is living in the past instead of looking to the future. Leaders at the State level, including many Republican Governors, have already moved well beyond the President's constricted position and are committed to trying to expand health coverage to their residents.

Minnesota's Republican Governor, Gov. Tim Pawlenty, currently the chair of the National Governors Association, recently signed a letter to congressional leadership asking them to reauthorize the Children's Health Insurance Program. I have this letter in front of me and I wish to quote from it:

> The Nation's governors call on Congress and the administration to reauthorize the State Children's Health Insurance Program prior to September 30, 2007.

They talk about how the authorization is critical for the safety net.

Then they go on to say:

> While we have not taken a position on the actual overall funding amount or the sources of revenue used as offsets, we are encouraged by the Senate Finance Committee's efforts to move a bipartisan reauthorization bill that provides increased funding and reflects the general philosophy that State flexibility and options and incentives for States are preferable to mandates.

Not only did Gov. Tim Pawlenty sign this, I know the Governor of the Presiding Officer's home State of Ohio signed it. I also see that Governor Schwarzenegger of California signed this. There are dozens and dozens of signatures of the Nation's Governors.

I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD this letter from the National Governors Association, Gov. Tim Pawlenty, Chair.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Washington, DC, July 24, 2007.

Hon. HARRY REID,
Majority Leader, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.
Hon. MITCH MCCONNELL,
Minority Leader, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.
Hon. NANCY PELOSI,
Speaker, U.S. House of Representatives, Washington, DC.
Hon. JOHN BOEHNER,
Minority Leader, U.S. House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR REID, SENATOR MCCONNELL, SPEAKER PELOSI AND REPRESENTATIVE BOEHNER: The nation's governors call on Congress and the Administration to reauthorize the State Children's Health Insurance Program (SCHIP) prior to September 30, 2007. The authorization for this critical safety net program will soon expire and urgent action is needed to ensure its continued success for the next five years. For many reasons, defaulting to a series of temporary extensions of the program would be untenable for states and the millions of children who rely upon the program.

While we have not taken a position on the actual overall funding amount or the sources of revenue used as offsets, we are encouraged by the Senate Finance Committee's efforts to move a bipartisan reauthorization bill that provides increased funding and reflects the general philosophy that state flexibility and options and incentives for states are preferable to mandates. Our recently enacted policy on SCHIP and a series of letters we have sent since February outline our positions on these issues in more detail.

We look forward to working with all of you to ensure that a sensible bipartisan SCHIP reauthorization can be signed into law in a timely and certain manner.

Sincerely,

Governor Tim Pawlenty; Governor James H. Douglas, Chair, Health and Human Services Committee; Governor Edward G. Rendell; Governor Jon S. Corzine, Vice Chair, Health and Human Services Committee; Governor Janet Napolitano, Arizona; Governor Ruth Ann Minner, Delaware; Governor M. Jodi Rell, Connecticut; Governor Mike Beebe, Arkansas; Governor M. Michael Rounds, South Dakota; Governor John Baldacci, Maine; Governor Martin O'Malley, Maryland; Governor Rod Blagojevich, Illinois; Governor Christine O. Gregoire, Washington; Governor Deval Patrick, Massachusetts; Governor Jennifer M. Granholm, Michigan; Governor Brian Schweitzer, Montana; Governor Kathleen Babineaux Blanco, Louisiana; Governor Bill Ritter, Colorado; Governor Brad Henry, Oklahoma; Governor Benigno Fitial, Northern Mariana Islands; Governor Felix Perez Camacho, Guam; Governor Eliot Spitzer, New York; Governor Jim Doyle, Wisconsin; Governor Chester J. Culver, Iowa; Governor Jon M. Huntsman, Jr., Utah; Governor Kathleen Sebelius, Kansas; Governor Timothy M. Kaine, Virginia; Governor Ted Strickland, Ohio; Governor Don Carcieri, Rhode Island; Governor John Lynch. New Hamsphire; Governor Ernie Fletcher, Kentucky; Governor Sony Perdue, Georgia; Governor Bill Richardson, New Mexico; Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger, California; Governor Dave Heineman, Nebraska; Governor Michael F. Easley, North Carolina; Governor Jim Gibbons, Nevada; Governor Linda Lingle, Hawaii; Governor Theodore Kulongoski, Oregon; Governor Phil Bredesen, Tennessee; Governor Sarah Palin, Alaska; Governor Dave Freudenthal, Wyoming; Governor John Hoeven, North Dakota.

Ms. KLOBUCHAR. Mr. President, here is one more indicator of broad-based support for this insurance. A few days ago, a group of law enforcement leaders in my State came together to express their support for expanding the Children's Health Insurance Program. They included Minneapolis Police Chief Tim Dolan, my former colleague Dakota County Attorney Jim Backstrom, and Hennepin County Sheriff Rich Stanek, who also happens to be a former Republican State legislator. They believe that investing in health insurance for kids and their families is one of the best things we can do to fight crime and ensure safe, prosperous communities.

The time to act is now. In a few months, the Children's Health Insurance Program will expire. If that happens, our children will suffer. The President should reconsider his threat to veto. My Senate colleagues who say they are against this bipartisan compromise legislation should reconsider their opposition.

I thank the Finance Committee for its efforts to bring this bill to the floor and to expand this important and successful initiative. It is not only good for American kids, it is good for our families and for our local communities, and it is good for all of us, because it improves our Nation's health and prosperity.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. CORKER. Mr. President, I rise this evening at this late hour to again talk about the SCHIP bill before us, but even talk a little further about health care for all Americans. I don't think there is anybody in this body who believes that at some point we are not going to extend children's health care coverage. I think everybody in this body realizes what we are doing right now is talking about how, in fact, that is going to be done. Even if the President were to veto this bill, I think all of us realize that again, in some form or fashion, we are going to come back together and we are going to make sure the children of America benefit from the SCHIP program that has been in place now since 1997. I think as we look at the issues we are dealing with on this SCHIP bill, as we look at the many issues we are dealing with involving Medicaid and Medicare, I know of no other moment for us to more fully be able to debate the future of health care in our country in general.

I think all of us know, as the Senator from Minnesota said and many Senators before her have said, there are 45 million Americans today who at some point in time during the year did not have health insurance. In my own State of Tennessee, we have 800,000 people in the State who do not have health insurance. The toll is enormous. I think all of us can tell a story about a friend or a neighbor or somebody we have seen in our cities as we go back into the States who does not have health care coverage and the insecurities they feel. We are having one of the most dynamic growths in markets in U.S. history, and yet so many people in America feel insecure. I am convinced one of the main reasons is because so many people feel insecure about their health care coverage.

I know that throughout the campaign, in the 95 counties of our State that I visited, I met so many Tennesseans who were concerned about the financial health of their family because they did not have health insurance, and about whether their husbands who might have had seizures would be able to get the proper care they might need. So I believe it is a moral obligation for us here in the Senate and for those in the Congress to deal with this issue in a much broader way even than as we are talking about during this SCHIP debate. I also believe as this Presidential race unfolds, almost every Presidential candidate will have to face Americans and talk about how they plan to deal with the fact that Americans today do not have the health insurance coverage they need.

That is why today I rise to join the Senator from North Carolina, Senator BURR, with Senate bill 1886, which is the Every American Insured Health Act. Americans want to control their own destiny. They don't like the fact that an employer might decide what kind of coverage they have, or if they have coverage at all. They don't like the fact that some bureaucrat in Washington may decide that they have coverage or not. Americans like to know they have their destiny in their own hands. There is something about American psyches that is grounded in that particular issue.

So what we propose through the Every American Insured Health Act is that every individual in America—every individual in America—who is not now covered by some existing governmental program would receive a $2,160 tax credit, and every family would receive $5,400. This is very different than many proposals in the past where we talked about a tax deduction. One of the things I think we all know we can talk about which are niceties—things that are decent—are health savings accounts. We can talk about other things that sort of nibble at the edges, if you will, as they relate to health care, but the only thing that allows people to own their own health insurance is the money to pay for it. So we, through what is called a refundable tax credit in this bill, caused that to be the case.

Unlike the other bills that are being discussed today, and unlike so many other health care acts we discussed, this actually is revenue neutral. This is one of those things that allows every American to be covered with health insurance, yet does not pile on a deficit, if you will, for the children of our future to have to deal with. It is absolutely revenue neutral.

Let me tell my colleagues how it works. A lot of people, such as we here in the Senate, receive our health insurance through our employer—the Federal Government. A lot of people receive health insurance through the employer they work for back in our home States. Let me give a little example. For an individual in Tennessee who might make $40,000 and receive a $5,000 health benefit, whereas now that is not taxable, in the future, if this bill were to be enacted, they would have to actually pay tax on that and their tax bill would be about $1,250. Under the provisions of this act, what we would propose is that every individual would receive $2,160, so they could pay their tax bill, and then have money left over to deal with whatever other health issues they might have.

The most important aspect of this, though, is it means that so many Americans today—Tennesseans, Ohioans, Minnesotans—who don't have health insurance, through this proposal would actually have the money, the money timed in a fashion to actually allow them to purchase health insurance. This would mean that virtually everybody in America, through this plan, would have the opportunity to own their own health insurance plan and they themselves would decide who the carrier would be. This would do something that was discussed by Dr. Coburn from Oklahoma. It would do away with what we call cost shifting.

Obviously, the 45 million citizens, as the Senator from Minnesota mentioned, get health care; they just happen to get it at the emergency room. Who pays for that? Well, all of those people who go out and buy private health plans or employers who buy those, actually pay for that, because all of those costs are shifted to the other plans. What the Every American Insured Health Act would do is do away totally with cost shifting, because everybody in America would own their own plan and those plans would be paying for their health coverage.

This obviously includes a few other attributes. It includes reforms for States so that States can set up pools, so that individuals today who don't have access to other pools of insurance at lesser expensive rates, it allows the States to set up pools so that individuals can buy their insurance through those pools. It also incentivizes States to set up high-risk pools. There are obviously many people, by the grace of God, by the genes they are created from, who have health issues that some of us don't have to deal with, so their health care costs are higher, if you will, than other Americans. This would provide incentives for States to set up high-risk pools so that those people could benefit from the opportunity of being grouped with others.

One other attribute and incentive of this is it causes States to actually set up a plan—a plan in their State—that has of the cost 6 percent of the median income of the population of that State, so that you create a basic plan that certainly almost everyone—everyone in their State certainly, by virtue of the plan we are laying out, would obviously be able to afford. This obviously, as I mentioned, would reduce the cost to people around our country who are trying to do the right thing by their employees. It obviously gives people the opportunity—every American—to determine their own destiny as it relates to health care.

I know this bill is not perfect; no bill is. I want to say in closing that the reason I have joined Senator BURR and others to offer this bill is I do believe this country continues and continues and continues to have a debate about the fringes, if you will. We talk about children. We talk about other populations. We offer in many ways what I think is empty rhetoric around the issue of health care. This is a solution. It may not be a perfect solution. But I ask my colleagues to please join the debate about health care in a way that ensures that every American has access to health care.

We are very fortunate in this body. We have health care. All of us know of people who truly are concerned about the next day and the next day and the next day, about how they are going to survive because a loved one in their family has health care issues that are not covered. So I ask my colleagues, please, don't turn away from this plan. Join the debate and let's make sure that this body puts forth an act, a bill, a solution, if you will, to make sure that every American—every American—has the same benefit we here in the Senate have.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. WHITEHOUSE). The Senator from Ohio is recognized.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. President, the Children's Health Insurance Program is a success story. It was created in 1996 during my second term in the House of Representatives under a Republican-controlled Congress and signed into law by President Clinton. It was exactly what voters sent people to Washington to do. It was bipartisan, with a Democratic President working with a Republican Congress, with wide support within Congress from large numbers of both Democrats and Republicans.

Since then, the program has reduced the number of uninsured children in working families by one-third; 6.6 million children are covered nationally. More than 218,000 children are covered in my State of Ohio, from Galion to Gallipolis, from Mansfield to Middletown, from Xenia to Zanesville. These children now get care in their doctors' offices but not, as the President suggests, in the emergency rooms. Their care is delivered when it is needed, not when it is too late. They go to their family physician with an ear infection, and they get an antibiotic that may cost $50 or $75 or $100. The child gets sent home with his or her mother or father, and the child is cured instead of the ear ache getting so bad for a child whose parent has no insurance, and the parent waiting and hoping it gets better. The child goes to the emergency room at the cost of several hundred dollars, and the child may have a permanent hearing loss as a result, with what that does to the child's future in school and to the child's future later in getting a job.

These children under the CHIP program have good, reliable health coverage. The Children's Health Insurance Program, in short, works. It works for our Ohio children, our Ohio parents, and for Ohio communities. But it does not work as well as it could.

Today we have the opportunity to make the Children's Health Insurance Program what it should be. Sadly, we all know millions of American children—far too many children in Dayton and Columbus and Toledo and Cleveland and Akron and Canton and Youngstown and Cincinnati—remain without health insurance, even though the law states they are eligible for it.

Eleven years ago, in 1996, Congress made a promise to America's children. Right now, today, this week, in the Senate and in the House, we have the opportunity to live up to that promise. We can pass this bill to provide health insurance to 3.2 million more children, children who have missed out on our promise—not their fault, ours—so far.

This is a bipartisan effort and bill, just like the original was a decade ago. That is because this legislation is about children, not politics. This bill is about helping children.

Let me tell a story about how the Children's Health Insurance Program has helped one family in Ohio. Seth Novak is a 3-year-old boy who lives in Lebanon, OH, in Warren County, outside Cincinnati, the southwestern part of the State. This is a picture of Seth. His dad is self-employed. He helps churches with their construction projects.

The family buys private health insurance for $444 a month that covers the parents and Seth's two older siblings. But Seth has Down Syndrome and other health problems. In addition, in an attempt to get health insurance for her son, Seth's mom checked with six different insurance companies. She was quoted rates from $1,200 to $1,800 per month for private insurance—just for Seth, not for Mr. and Mrs. Novak or the two older children.

The Novaks are a hard-working family, but they simply cannot afford $14,400 a year for a policy covering only one of their children, not to mention their own insurance, another $444. They cannot afford a policy of $14,000 a year for one of their children, which would cover only part of the cost, frankly, for only some of the care Seth needs.

Just this week, the Novak family learned that Seth's eligibility for Medicaid/SCHIP has been denied effective August 31. That is why we have work to do. Where will Seth go for medical care? What if something happens?

There is hope for Seth, though. In Ohio, Governor Strickland and legislative leadership—again, in Ohio, it is a bipartisan effort—by increasing eligibility for the Children's Health Insurance Program to children up to 300 percent of the Federal poverty level. As Assistant Majority Leader Durbin pointed out about an hour and a half ago, these are not people living in the lap of luxury when you say 300 percent of the poverty level. These are middle-class families with significant health problems, who simply cannot afford, on their middle-class salaries and wages, their health insurance.

In January, the legislature and the Governor, understanding the plight that families like Seth's find themselves in, when the new eligibility for the program goes into effect, the Novaks of Lebanon, OH, will be able to restore his health insurance and still pay their bills and take care of their family.

Ohio's leaders have taken care of Seth and thousands like him. They need Congress and the President this week to do the same.

In 1996, Latonya was a pregnant, full-time student at Kent State University, my wife's alma mater. She didn't have health insurance or the resources to afford medical care. She enrolled in Ohio's Medicaid Program about halfway through her pregnancy. Her son had Medicaid/SCHIP coverage until he was 5 years old. That is when she finished her bachelor's degree and got a job as a nurse with insurance benefits.

The Children's Health Insurance Program was there for Phillip in the first years of his life. The program provided for him in several medical emergencies. At 2 years old, he was bitten by another child at daycare and developed acute cellulitis. He spent 2 days in the hospital. When he was about 4, he cut his arm and had a recurrence of cellulitis. This required two surgeries, both inpatient and outpatient treatment.

As any parent knows, raising children means all too many visits to the hospital. These hospital stays could have devastated this family's finances and so much that went with it, right when Latonya was working so hard to get her nursing degree and to get ahead. Latonya is proud that she no longer needs Medicaid/Children's Health Insurance Program coverage for her son.

As I said, she is now a nurse and has health insurance. The program helped Latonya when she and Phillip needed it. Today she is a productive taxpaying citizen, and he is a healthy boy. The goal now is to let other families experience the same benefit.

President Bush came to Cleveland recently—about 25, 20 miles from my home—and told an audience of Ohioans:

> People have access to health care in America. After all, you just go to an emergency room.

The President doesn't seem to realize that is exactly the problem. We all know emergency care is much more expensive than a scheduled visit to a doctor or a clinic. When people go to emergency rooms and hospitals, they end up with large costs which insurance companies bear and then raise their premiums, or the hospital eats the cost. It is a huge burden on hospitals, especially hospitals in places such as rural Appalachia, in southeast Ohio, and places such as Zanesville and Morgan County and Athens and Gallia County and Lawrence County. It is a burden on hospitals such as Metro in Cleveland, which serves our community so well, or Akron General or the Summa or Lorain's community health center. These hard-working families cannot afford health insurance for children, much less if the child has a serious health issue.

I want to make sure children like Seth Novak and Phillip Grant receive the care they need. This is a picture of Seth playing on a slide. I want him to be strong and healthy so he can continue playing and getting his exercise and enjoying his childhood, with health insurance; or this picture of Phillip with his mother at her graduation. I want him to grow up healthy so he can pursue a bachelor's degree just like his mom did. I want every child in Ohio to thrive and develop to his or her full potential.

Ohio families should be able to take care of their bills without worrying about whether they will get their most basic health care needs met. Every eligible child should be able to benefit from the Children's Health Insurance Program—every eligible child in this country. That requires the additional $35 billion that this bill authorizes. That is about how many weeks in Iraq? We spend $2.5 billion a week in Iraq, and here we are asking for $35 billion over 5 years. That requires that additional $35 billion.

I want our President to see past relying on emergency rooms, thinking that is the best option to provide the basic medical care that our low-income families need, and instead, to provide it through an insurance program so a mother can take her child to a family practitioner and get the kind of preventive care that my friend from Oklahoma, Senator COBURN, talked about. Even though he doesn't agree with this legislation, he talked about getting the care that these children need that only health insurance—not emergency room treatment—will get them.

This bill is about children, not about politics. It needs to pass.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

(Mr. BROWN assumed the Chair.)

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Mr. President, I speak today in support of the Children's Health Insurance Program. I want to first applaud the Finance Committee for its bipartisan 17-to-4 vote to approve this bill. I thank Senators BAUCUS, ROCKEFELLER, GRASSLEY, and HATCH, Majority Leader REID, and also the staff of the Finance Committee for all their hard work through the very difficult negotiations that made it possible to bring this critical measure so strongly to the floor.

I also recognize Rhode Island's role in this piece of legislation, going all the way back to the distinguished Senator John Chafee, one of the early bipartisan sponsors of the bill. Now on the floor today, my senior Senator, JACK REED, has been one of the most powerful and outstanding advocates for this program in this institution. I am proud to join him in supporting this bill and in this fight.

I am proud also to represent a State with one of the lowest rates of uninsured adults and children in the Nation. There is a reason. Rhode Island has worked over the past 15 years to achieve this success, beginning with the RIteCare program in 1993. In 2001, the creation of this Children's Health Insurance Program allowed Rhode Island to further reduce the number of uninsured children in the State. I am proud to have been part of Gov. Bruce Sundlun's team when he started the original RIteCare program in 1993.

As health care costs skyrocket, and the number of people in this country who lack health insurance approaches the staggering number of 50 million, we in Congress have an obligation to strengthen initiatives like RIteCare that make health care more accessible.

For years, the Children's Health Insurance Program has given millions of uninsured American families access to health care for their kids. And pretty much everyone has thought this was a good thing. But now, setting aside reason, and driven by ideology, President Bush has threatened to lift his veto pen for only the fourth time in his Presidency to take that security and peace of mind away from these children and from their worried moms and dads, from families similar to the ones the Senator from Ohio highlighted in his eloquent remarks a moment ago.

The President claims the $35 billion improvement over 5 years is too expensive. The President would prefer only the $5 billion he included in his budget. But that funding level would result in 1 million American children losing their health insurance. We certainly cannot look to President Bush for leadership.

How ironic, after all we have heard from this administration praising the State Children's Health Insurance Program and even taking credit for expanding coverage, for encouraging State flexibility, and for spurring innovation at the State level.

Listen to what they used to say. In the administration's plan outlining the President's second term, their fact sheet boasted:

> The year before President Bush took office, some 3.3 million low-income children were enrolled in SCHIP. By 2003, that number had risen to 5.8 million, a 75 percent increase. Over that same period, by working cooperatively with State Governors, the Department of Health and Human Services increased the number of low-income adults on Medicaid by 6.8 million.

That was then, this is now.

After that, the administration went on to lament the fact that "millions of children who are eligible for SCHIP or Medicaid coverage are not yet enrolled. Billions in Federal dollars available to the States to insure these children remain unspent because these children haven't been signed up."

Then, at the 2004 Republican National Convention, President Bush promised this:

> In a new term, we will lead an aggressive effort to enroll millions of poor children who are eligible but not signed up for the Government's health insurance programs. We will not allow a lack of attention or information to stand between these children and the health care they need.

But now the same Bush administration, the same President, is aggressively planning to deny health insurance to poor children. How does this make any sense?

The President's rationale for this new parsimony was revealed before an audience in Cleveland on July 10. Here is the President's approach to health insurance for America. You just pointed this out, Mr. President:

> I mean, people have access to health care in America; after all, you just go to an emergency room.

Well, that is a thoughtful approach. Once again, we cannot look to our President for any leadership on this issue.

The administration has also expressed its opposition to the cigarette tax that will fund the increases in children's health insurance, calling it—get this—among the most regressive revenue-raising measures one could propose. That is from a letter from Secretary Leavitt to Chairman BAUCUS and Senator GRASSLEY.

The irony department is open late in the Bush administration. In evaluating their crocodile tears about regressive tax measures, consider that this Nation will spend $233 billion in 2008 on the Bush tax cuts, 30 percent of which will go to the top 1 percent of income earners. From 2008 through 2011, the period we are talking about for children's health care, those tax cuts will cost Americans, in lost revenue and interest on the debt, nearly $1 trillion, 22 percent of which will go to people who earn more than $1 million a year.

This chart illustrates just how the cost of tax cuts for the top 1 percent of Americans compares to the cost of expanding health care for children in this country. We are spending vastly more each year on tax cuts for the Nation's highest income earners than we are fighting for in children's health care.

Here it is, $2.1 billion for children's health care in 2008, $70 billion for the richest 1 percent; $5 billion in fiscal year 2009 for children's health care, $72 billion for the richest 1 percent; and in 2010, gosh, we go all the way to $7.9 billion for children's health care with only $82 billion for the richest 1 percent.

The Congressional Budget Office estimates that in just this year alone—just this year alone—we are paying an extra $46 billion in interest, not paying back the debt, just in interest, on the Bush tax cuts—$46 billion just in 1 year. And the whole thing we are arguing about here is $35 billion over 5 years for children's health care. It is truly mind-boggling.

But it doesn't end there. The President has also threatened to veto the bill based on its coverage of adults. This is a policy that the administration has previously, explicitly, repeatedly approved. This is a sudden ideological U-turn of stunning and deeply hypocritical proportions.

As recently as last summer at a Finance Committee hearing on children's health insurance, then CMS Administrator Mark McClellan said the following:

> Extending coverage to parents and caretaker relatives not only serves to cover additional insured individuals, but it may also increase the likelihood that they will take the steps necessary to enroll their children. Extending coverage to parents and caretakers may also increase the likelihood that their children remain enrolled in SCHIP.

That was then, this is now.

This administration has approved waivers to cover parents in New Mexico, Illinois, Oregon, New Jersey, Michigan, and Wisconsin. Fewer than 2 months ago, on May 30 of this year, Leslie Norwalk, who was then Acting Administrator of CMS, was "pleased to inform" Wisconsin that its extension request for what they call BadgerCare—it is equivalent to RIteCare in Rhode Island—had been approved through March 31, 2010. BadgerCare covers roughly 67,000 parents. Again, this waiver was approved by the Bush administration 8 weeks ago, and now he is threatening a veto for care that covers adults.

Here is a copy of the letter that CMS Administrator Mark McClellan sent to my home State of Rhode Island on January 13, 2006. It reads:

> We are pleased to inform you that your amendment to the RIteCare section 1115 demonstration, as modified by the Special Terms and Conditions accompanying this award letter, has been approved.

It also notes:

> Rhode Island's request to renew title XXI, section 1115, demonstration project, dated July 15, 2005, with additional information . . . has also been approved.

Finally, it notes:

> Individuals who, at the time of initial application, are custodial parents or relative caretakers of children who are eligible under the title XIX State plan or the title XXI State plan . . .

Are in the demonstration population and, of course, "we look forward to continuing to work with you and your staff." Signed Mark B. McClellan, M.D., Ph.D., the Administrator of CMS. This was January of 2006. This is the Bush administration. This is them signing off on adults, custodial parents, or relative caretakers of children being in the plan.

Yet now the President is shocked—shocked—that this program may cover some adults. Who didn't send him the memo?

At the end of May, I spoke on the Senate floor about some of the major problems facing health care in this country. I talked about the lack of investment in quality improvements, the lack of a national information technology infrastructure, and a reimbursement system that pays doctors to perform procedures rather than to help patients get well. I took these issues to the Senate floor because the structure of our system is unsound, its underlying mechanism is broken, its signals are misaligned.

But there are a few shining lights in the American health care system, and the Children's Health Insurance Program is among the brightest. This program respects State flexibility, it encourages responsiveness to local needs, it fertilizes structural creativity in the health care arena, it safeguards the vulnerable, it unites families, and it invests in the future of our Nation.

The Children's Health Insurance Program means that children are more likely to receive medical care for common conditions such as asthma or ear infections. It means that children have higher school attendance rates. It means that children have higher academic achievement. It means that children have more contact with medical professionals and receive more preventive care. It means that children stay out of expensive urgent care settings, such as the emergency room.

We choose now in this bill and in this debate between providing our Nation's children with health insurance and not providing our Nation's children with health insurance. It is as simple as that. We choose now whether every individual in this Nation, regardless of age, gender, race, income, or health status deserves the stability and the safety that health insurance provides. We choose for millions of American families how much they have to worry, how much moms and dads have to worry about the health care of their children.

It is my duty as a representative of the people of Rhode Island, and it is our collective duty as representatives of a great Nation to stick up for the most vulnerable members of our society and for programs that protect those who cannot protect themselves. We must certainly not give up in the face of an administration that willingly violates its own principles in order to create an issue on which the President can deliver a veto as a desperate political stunt in the last bleak chapters of his collapsed Presidency—not at the cost of health care for children. That would be truly pathetic.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana is recognized.

Mr. TESTER. Mr. President, I rise in strong support of the reauthorization of the Children's Health Insurance Program. The reauthorization of this highly successful 10-year-old program would provide an additional $35 billion over the next 5 years to make sure that more of America's neediest children have access to one of their most basic needs—health care.

In fact, 6.6 million of our most vulnerable children—that is an increase of 3.2 million children—will be covered by this bill. I applaud the efforts of my senior Senator, MAX BAUCUS, for leading the charge to cover more children.

Reauthorizing the Children's Health Insurance Program is the right thing to do. Because of MAX BAUCUS and the good work of the Finance Committee, almost 12,000 more children in Montana will have coverage this year. Montanans know just how well this program works. As president of the Montana Senate, I worked to increase the number of children eligible for the Children's Health Insurance Program and pushed through full State funding of the Children's Health Insurance Program for Montana's children, expanding the enrollment from 10,900 to 13,900 children annually. As of this July, Montana's Children's Health Insurance Program is providing insurance for 14,304 children per month in the State of Montana.

It just makes sense. Only children who do not have private insurance are eligible. I am going to repeat that because I have heard contrary stuff on the floor. Only children who do not have private insurance are eligible for this program. No one is double-dipping, no one who has insurance can receive this coverage.

With this reauthorization of the Children's Health Insurance Program, we as a country are investing in our most valuable resource—our children. If children have regular checkups and receive the preventive care they need, they are sick less and in school more, and they grow up to be healthy, productive members of our society with less problems in middle age and healthier in their elderly years.

Mr. President, it is tough out there. Millions of children lack health insurance despite their parents' hard work and efforts to keep their heads above water. Many families cannot afford health insurance despite the fact that they have jobs. When it comes time for parents to pay the bills, health insurance comes after rent, food, clothing, utility bills, and gas for their car. Health insurance shouldn't be treated as a luxury, and access to health care shouldn't be a fantasy.

We must be focused on improving the overall quality of health care for low-income children. We know there are more children eligible for benefits than are currently enrolled. In order to find and provide coverage for those children, States should be able to use the information from food stamp programs, free and reduced lunches, and other initiatives in place for low-income families. Up to now, these programs could not share information, so those with the greatest need would have to apply for each program separately.

This Children's Health Insurance Program before us increases funding and outreach and enrollment efforts to find these uninsured kids. This is especially critical in rural States—rural States such as Montana. Rural children are more likely to be poor and less likely to have access to employer-based health plans even though most of their parents are employed. Nearly one-third of the kids in rural America rely upon CHIP and Medicare. The need is clear: Without children's health insurance, they would be uninsured.

There have been a lot of stories shared today on the floor. I want to share another one, of a fellow Montanan. Duran "Junior" Caferro from Helena, MT, is a boxer and has been fighting for 10 years. He is ranked in the 125-pound weight class and will compete in the Olympic trials next month in Houston, TX. Duran is also an enrolled member of the Northern Cheyenne tribe. His father, who works with at-risk youth, does not have health insurance and can't afford coverage for himself or his son. Helena has an urban Indian health clinic but not an Indian Health Service hospital, so Duran doesn't have access to emergency and hospital services with his IHS health benefits.

CHIP has allowed him to have a choice in where he receives medical care, and he recognizes the value of this coverage. When asked about CHIP, he said the following:

> It is important that I have Children's Health Insurance Program because I don't have to be afraid to push myself when I'm training or fighting. It gives me one less thing to worry about.

If Duran wins this tournament in Houston this summer, he will be a member of the U.S. Olympic boxing team. He will turn 19 soon and will age-out of CHIP. He expects to become uninsured because he and his dad are still struggling and can't afford to buy private health insurance.

Some may doubt the cost-effectiveness of this program, but this bill not only helps low-income children, it also helps middle America. Why is that the case? Because the coverage made available to low-income kids lowers the number of emergency room visits of uninsured children. Emergency room doctors no longer serve as primary care physicians for the uninsured, and that lowers the cost of health care for the rest of America—the middle class—who currently cover the cost of the uninsured emergency room visits.

We all know that the middle class is feeling the pinch too. If we can lower health costs for them and provide health care to more of our kids, it is a win-win.

The way to ensure the continued strength of our country for future generations is to improve the future of our most valuable asset—our young people—and this bill which reauthorizes the Children's Health Insurance Program does just that.

Once again, I thank the senior Senator from Montana, MAX BAUCUS, and the Finance Committee for championing this bill. They did some outstanding work. Hopefully, we will continue that work on the floor here tomorrow. We must pass this bill, and I urge my colleagues and the President to support it.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, I rise today to support the reauthorization of the Children's Health Insurance Program—an essential effort to ensure the health of our Nation's children.

For the past 10 years, the Children's Health Insurance Program has helped provide health care for millions of children from working families that do not qualify for Medicaid but can't afford private insurance. These are the children of working families whose companies do not offer health insurance to their employees.

As the cost of health insurance rises and an increasing number of employers are unable or unwilling to provide health insurance to their employees and their families, the number of families who do not have health insurance has continued to rise.

While the number of the uninsured continues to rise, the percentage of low-income children without health insurance has dropped more than one-third since the creation of the Children's Health Insurance Program.

Currently the Children's Health Insurance Program provides coverage for 6.6 million children nationwide. This reauthorization would provide health care coverage for an additional 3.2 million children who are uninsured today. In California, an estimated 250,000 children will be added.

The Children's Health Insurance Program has always enjoyed the bipartisan support of our Congress, our Governors, and our President—which is why I am shocked by the inadequacy of this administration's plan to insure the children of our Nation's working families.

The President is spending $10 billion each month in Iraq but has threatened to veto a bill that will provide 10 million children with access to health care. Under the President's proposal, he is willing to fund the Children's Health Insurance Program with an increase of $1 billion a year—the cost of 3 days in Iraq.

Under the administration's proposal, we end up counting how many children will lose health insurance instead of how many we can enroll. In the first year, the President's plan would eliminate health care insurance for 200,000 children in California alone—and the number of uninsured children would continue to climb.

This shortfall in funding would result in 800,000 children who are currently enrolled to lose their coverage. I ask the President, what does he propose these children do when they are sick?

If we fail to renew this program or if the President vetoes this bill as he has threatened to do, it is the children who will pay the price.

There is not a man or woman in this Chamber who wouldn't do everything within their power to ensure the health of their own children—we should do no less for the children of our Nation.

The Members of this Congress have overwhelmingly expressed a commitment to children's health. Earlier this year, we passed a budget resolution which set aside $50 billion for the Children's Health Insurance Program, reaffirming our commitment to the continued success of this program.

We can still do more and we will, but this bill is a step forward in the right direction.

I would like to thank Senators BAUCUS and ROCKEFELLER, Senators GRASSLEY and HATCH and the members of the Finance Committee who worked so tirelessly to bring this legislation forward in a bipartisan way, and keep the focus of this bill where it should be—on the children.

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. TESTER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. TESTER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that there now be a period of morning business, with Senators permitted to speak therein for up to 10 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

HONORING THE LIFE OF DR. JOHN A. STROSNIDER

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I rise today to honor the life of John A. Strosnider, D.O., a respected Kentuckian who passed away on July 1, 2007, of cancer. Dr. Strosnider was the founding dean of the Pikeville College School of Osteopathic Medicine and also served as president of the American Osteopathic Association, AOA.

Dr. Strosnider accepted the challenge to create the Pikeville College School of Osteopathic Medicine in 1996. The school, located in eastern Kentucky, opened in 1997 with 60 students and has since produced more than 400 physicians. In keeping with the school's mission, many of them have stayed in the region to practice medicine. In fact, according to Pikeville College officials, 55 of the new physicians have opened offices within a 2-hour drive of the city.

Throughout his career, Dr. Strosnider was honored by several organizations for his dedication to the profession. At the time of his death, he was serving as president of the AOA, and, in 2005, he was named Kentucky Osteopathic Medical Association Physician of the Year.

After being named AOA president, Dr. Strosnider said, "I hope to raise students' awareness and remind osteopathic physicians of the history and philosophy of osteopathic medicine. The osteopathic medical profession was built on a primary care philosophy, and we need to get back to those basics so that our patients in these areas have access to the distinctive health care promised by osteopathic medicine."

When Dr. Strosnider was diagnosed with pancreatic cancer earlier this year, he gathered his students and faculty together to inform them of his illness. He told the assembly he wanted to be open with them and remain optimistic. Shortly after his passing, Pikeville College President Hal Smith wrote a letter to colleagues and friends. In it, he wrote, "John's vision and work will continue to impact the lives of thousands of individuals he never knew."

I got to know Dr. Strosnider several years ago. Every year, he would bring a group of his students to Washington, DC, and I had the privilege of meeting with him and his students on several occasions. I was always impressed with how Dr. Strosnider encouraged the future doctors to remain close to home and provide critical health care to the underserved people of eastern Kentucky.

Mr. President, I ask you to join me in remembering this outstanding Kentuckian. He is survived by his wife Jo Ann and three children, John Adam, Alisha, and Paul. He will be missed.

DARFUR

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I rise today to talk about the ongoing genocide in Darfur. As my colleagues know, the United Nations Security Council is currently hammering out the final text of a new resolution related to the expanded United Nations African Union hybrid force to protect civilians who have been victims of genocide in Darfur. This resolution represents the best hope for the international community to finally come together to put an end to the violence in that country.

This new U.N. resolution reportedly calls for a large increase in military and police personnel to be deployed to Darfur. It calls on member states to make commitments to contribute troops to the hybrid force, and for this bolstered hybrid force UNAMID to take command of the region by the end of the year. Importantly, it also calls on the Sudanese Government and all rebel groups to enter into peace negotiations to reach a political settlement which will ultimately end the conflict in Darfur.

If these reports are accurate, then we may be one step closer to ending the violence in Darfur. But in order to actually stop the violence, we must ensure that the hybrid force is large enough to effectively carry out its mission, and deployed quickly to stop the violence immediately. These increased forces are desperately needed to replace the currently under-funded and under- equipped paltry AU force of 7,000 soldiers presently in Darfur.

We simply cannot wait any longer to protect the hundreds of thousands of innocent civilians whose villages have been burned, who have been driven into refugee camps, and who have been raped and murdered.

I welcome the calls of British Prime Minister Gordon Brown and French President Nicholas Sarkozy for the United Nations to quickly adopt this new draft resolution, and I appreciate the leadership they have demonstrated in personally committing to ensure that the peace process moves forward, once the U.N. resolution has passed. Prime Minister Brown recently declared that "this is one of the great humanitarian disasters of our generation. It is incumbent on the whole world to act." I wholeheartedly agree and I urge President Bush to join with Prime Minister Brown and President Sarkozy in personally committing to ending the conflict in Darfur.

Recent reports have also indicated that the text of the resolution relating to implementing multilateral sanctions has been softened due to the objections of some African member states, as well as China.

While I strongly believe that robust targeted sanctions should be implemented against members of rebel groups and the Sudanese Government, that we should curb the Sudanese Government's access to oil revenues, increase penalties on private companies operating in Sudan, and allow for the divestment of funds in Sudan, the sad truth is that what is most needed now from the international community is a legitimate U.N. mandate for a strengthened hybrid peacekeeping force.

But there is no reason why the United States can't move forward to implement unilateral sanctions against Sudan, even if the international community and the Bush administration refuse to do so. As chairman of the Banking Committee I have asked the majority leader to expedite Senate consideration and passage of S.831, The Sudan Divestment Authorization Act of 2007. The majority leader was prepared to do so, but the minority objected. I have also asked that the majority leader to hold H.R. 180, the Darfur Accountability and Divestment Act of 2007, at the desk and attempt to pass this bill prior to the August recess. I am also planning to ask the majority leader to expedite consideration of S. 1563, the Sudan Disclosure and Enforcement Act of 2007. These three bills represent a good step towards applying targeted economic pressure against the Sudanese Government.

The implementation of robust and targeted sanctions is long overdue. In fact, the time to implement the sanctions was 4 years ago, and it should have been among the first components of the administration's Plan A, instead of the last resort of its Plan B—a plan which it has still failed to implement, despite Special Envoy Andrew Natsios's assurances over 7 months ago, back in January of 2007, that action was imminent.

Sudan's U.N. ambassador recently asserted that the text of the new U.N. Security Council resolution is "hostile" and full of "insinuations." He further declared that the language is "ugly" and "awful." Ugly and awful? Ugly and awful is the murder of 450,000 people in Darfur and the displacement of 2.5 million civilians. Ugly and awful is the Sudanese President, Omar al-Bashir, after his recent visit to Darfur, declaring "that most of Darfur is now secure and enjoying real peace. People are living normal lives," he said. Ugly and awful is the United States and the international community waiting one day longer to protect these innocent civilians.

The time for action is now. We must not allow the Sudanese Government to engage in anymore prevarication regarding its acceptance of a hybrid peacekeeping force. And we must ensure that this new U.N. Security Council resolution marks the beginning of the end of genocide in Darfur, by mandating the immediate deployment of a robust multinational peacekeeping force.

DOGFIGHTING

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, on July 26, I introduced critical legislation to stem the rising tide of dogfighting in our country. Dogfighting is one of society's most barbaric and inhumane activities. The dogs are mistreated, starved and conditioned for aggression, and then allowed to literally destroy one another in the ring. As we have read in the recent indictment of Atlanta Falcon's quarterback Michael Vick on dogfighting charges, poor-performing dogs are tortured, maimed, and killed. This illegal and despicable activity has no place in a civilized society.

However, dogfighting has expanded its hold in recent years. The Humane Society of the United States estimates that 40,000 people in the United States are involved in professional dogfighting, and fight purses reach as high as $100,000. As many as 100,000 additional people are involved in "streetfighting," informal dogfighting that often involves young people in gangs.

This legislation would place a Federal ban on all aspects of dogfighting activity from owning to transporting to training dogs for the purpose of fighting, to participating as a spectator at dogfighting ventures. I hope this legislation will end the practice of dogfighting in our country, once and for all.

This Congress's authority to make the lucrative commercial aspects of dogfighting a crime cannot be doubted. Just 2 years ago, the Supreme Court made clear in Gonzales v. Raich that Congress's authority under the commerce clause extends to local activities that are an integral component of interstate criminal activities.

This bill is well within that standard. As demonstrated in the Vick indictment and by the many law enforcement records, animal welfare reports, and economic studies that will be entered into the RECORD on this bill the—dogfighting industry has become nationwide in scope, and Congress is well within its authority to address both the nationwide framework and localized branches that are a critical part of that extensive criminal venture. We are dealing with a criminal industry has developed into a multifaceted, national and international commercial market that depends heavily upon illegal trafficking between States. Dogfighting is an inherently commercial and economic activity that has a substantial effect upon interstate commerce.

Dogfighting is an interconnected, nationwide, lucrative commercial industry. In addition to high-stakes gambling, dogfighters exchange tens if not hundreds of millions of dollars annually on the purchase and sale of fighting dogs. Dog fighters also make top dollar by breeding or selling "stud" privileges for fighting dogs, and can make top dollar by breeding dogs that have proven themselves in the ring by killing multiple other dogs.

This extensive commercial venture also requires trafficking in the specialized equipment necessary to train and house fighting dogs. There are even underground transport services to courier these dogs from one match to the next—assuming they survive. Dog fighters also make a living handling and training fighting dogs for well-funded sponsors—as we saw in the Vick indictment.

It could not be clearer that the overwhelming majority of dog fights—if not every single dog fight—are truly economic endeavors that involve some element of interstate commerce, such as animals, equipment, breeders, or spectators having traveled across State lines. Many dog fights are conducted for the purposes of illegal gambling, and some gambling on the sidelines is almost always present at these fights. Dogfighting also burdens interstate commerce by increasing the risk of injury or disease to both animals and humans, including dog bites, rabies, and heartworms.

What's more, small, localized dogfighting ventures, when viewed in the aggregate, have a substantial impact upon interstate commerce. As the allegations I mentioned earlier against Michael Vick and his codefendants demonstrate, large amounts of money are at stake in dogfighting matches, and winners often take home all or some portion of entry fees paid by other participants. The individual dogs used in fighting can have a commercial value of between hundreds of dollars and tens of thousands of dollars per animal. All of the activities associated with dogfighting, including gambling and other illegal activities, equipment outlays, breeding expenses, and promotion costs are not only inherently commercial in nature but transcend State boundaries.

By way of example, there are dozens of Federal criminal prohibitions on the local creation, possession, and sale of narcotics and narcotic-making equipment. Congress recognized that the illicit drug industry had become nationwide in scope, and chose to exercise its constitutional power to address the localized branches of that extensive criminal venture. Likewise, this bill responds to the proliferation of dog fighting into a nationwide criminal network of local ventures, which Congress is similarly authorized to address. Just look at the Endangered Species Act, which broadly restricts the killing, taking, or breeding of certain wild animals, in order to effectuate Congress's goal of preventing the extinction of imperiled species. The ESA has been upheld as a valid exercise of Congress's authority by every federal appeals court to address the issue, and the Supreme Court has repeatedly declined to upset those judgments.

The effects of dogfighting on interstate commerce are neither indirect, remote, nor attenuated. Regulation of dogfighting is necessary to prevent and eliminate burdens upon interstate commerce. In addition, the regulation of dogfighting is an essential part of a larger regulatory scheme, the Animal Welfare Act, which mandates the humane treatment of animals in our society.

HONORING THE 100TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE MARIN HUMANE SOCIETY

• Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, I ask my colleagues to join me today in honoring the 100th anniversary of a wonderful organization in my home State of California, the Marin Humane Society.

The Marin County Humane Society was founded on December 14, 1907, by Ethel H. Tompkins and a group of concerned citizens who wanted to find a solution to the plight of lost and abused animals. From its first animal shelter in the San Rafael stables in 1912, the organization has expanded its facilities to a four-building complex on a 7-acre campus. Today, the Marin Humane Society, which shortened its name in 1980, serves the community with 95 staff members and 800 volunteers.

Through the dedicated work of the Marin Humane Society, 8,000 animals each year find refuge, rehabilitation, and loving homes. This has included efforts to rescue animals lost and injured in disasters, such as the Oakland firestorm of 1991.

It is particularly noteworthy that in 2005, the organization brought over 2,500 Hurricane Katrina animal victims to bay area shelters and out of harm's way through its rescue effort, "Orphans of the Storm." In partnership with commercial airlines, these pet airlifts were a first for the Nation and protected the lives of thousands of animals. Funded solely from private benefactors and coordinated by the Marin Humane Society, nine flights of lost animals arrived in the bay area in the 2 months following the disaster. Additional flights carried animals to southern California, Oregon, and Washington, where other animal shelters and rescue groups agreed to offer refuge.

When in 1997 the Marin Humane Society staff felt they had made significant progress on controlling the pet overpopulation problem in Marin County, they decided to expand their services to neighboring counties through their Pet Partnership program. Volunteers brought thousands of dogs and cats from congested shelters in other communities to Marin to give them a second chance.

I am so pleased to acknowledge the Marin Humane Society's long and distinguished record of community service. Over the past century, the organization has educated children and adults on the importance of humane treatment of animals; provided comprehensive veterinary care and rehabilitation for neglected and abused animals; provided pet adoption services and dog training programs; and advocated for animal welfare policy on the local, State and Federal level.

I commend the Marin Humane Society staff and volunteers for their compassion and commitment to protecting and caring for our society's lost, neglected, and abused animals. They do a tremendous service to the greater community and are deserving of the highest recognition for their large hearts and generous ways. Please join me in celebrating the 100th Anniversary of the Marin Humane Society.•

HONORING DR. W. RON DEHAVEN

• Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, today I would like to take a moment to honor Dr. W. Ron DeHaven, Administrator of the Department of Agriculture's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, APHIS, and to congratulate him on his retirement from public service. Dr. DeHaven has served the agency for 28 years during which he has contributed greatly to the agency's mission of promoting and protecting U.S. agriculture.

Dr. DeHaven began his APHIS career working in a field office for the veterinary services program in 1979. He later joined the agency's animal care program, rising to the top position in 1996. From 2001 to 2002 he served as the APHIS acting associate administrator, and in 2002, became head of the agency's veterinary services program.

As the Nation's chief veterinarian, he played a leading role as the agency faced the first U.S. detection of bovine spongiform encephalopathy, BSE, in 2003. His handling of this situation—as well as other animal health emergencies—showcased his trademark straightforward leadership style and calm demeanor. These challenges prepared him well for the role of APHIS Administrator, which he assumed in 2004.

As Administrator, he has skillfully guided his agency and communicated with the public, Congress, and USDA's many stakeholders. He worked conscientiously to position APHIS to prevent and respond to such threats as highly pathogenic avian influenza, exotic Newcastle disease, sudden oak death, Asian longhorned beetle and citrus diseases.

Dr. DeHaven's dedication, work ethic, and personal commitment to excellence have served U.S. agriculture well and ensured a healthy and abundant food supply for U.S consumers.•

TRIBUTE TO MICHAEL J. DONOGHUE

• Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I welcome this opportunity to extend my warmest congratulations to Michael J. Donoghue on his retirement from the Worcester Regional Retirement System. I commend him for his impressive service to the people of Worcester for the past 30 years, and I know he will be deeply missed by all those he helped and supported.

Mike's impressive career extends well beyond his time at Worcester Regional Retirement System. He served two terms on the Worcester City Council before being elected Worcester County treasurer in 1978, and his outstanding experience and knowledge of the issues made him a valuable member of many charitable organizations in our city.

Mike also has served on the board of directors of the Worcester Regional Chamber of Commerce and the Massachusetts Biomedical Initiatives, and he had an invaluable role over the years in establishing Worcester as a center for medical research.

All of us in our State owe Mike our gratitude for his skillful efforts on behalf of the less fortunate. Over the years, he has given his skills and impressive leadership to the board of directors for the Visiting Nurses Association Network Foundation, the Worcester Area Mental Health Association, the Worcester Area United Way, and Special Olympics of Massachusetts.

It has been an honor to call Mike a friend, and I am especially grateful for his decades of kindness to the Kennedy family. I have relied often on Mike over the years for his advice and wise counsel, and I commend him for his service and dedication. It is a special privilege to join his wife Maureen, their children and grandchildren in congratulating him for all he has achieved in his many years of outstanding service to our Commonwealth, and I wish him well in the years ahead.•

ANNIVERSARY OF THE TURKISH INVASION OF CYPRUS

• Mr. REED. Mr. President, today, on behalf of the Greek Cypriot population of Rhode Island and Greek Cypriots around the world, I recognize the 33rd anniversary of the Turkish invasion of Cyprus.

At 5:30 a.m. 33 years ago today, heavily armed Turkish troops landed on a narrow northern beachhead in Cyprus 5 days after Greek Cypriot nationalists ousted then-President Archbishop Makarios. The invasion and subsequent occupation was described by Turkey as a "peace operation" to protect the minority Turkish population living in Cyprus from being victimized in the aftermath of the coup.

However, during the next 2 months, over 200,000 Greek Cypriots fled south or were expelled by Turkish forces. The Turkish Cypriots took over 37 percent of the island and then called a ceasefire, leaving the Greek Cypriots, 82 percent of the population, with under two-thirds of Cyprus. In 1983, the Turkish Republic of Northern Cyprus declared itself a country. Currently, Turkey is the only nation that recognizes this self-declaration of statehood.

Despite international efforts over the last 30 years to reunify the island, Cyprus has remained divided with more than 40,000 Turkish troops occupying its northern third. The United Nations Security Council and General Assembly have worked to determine an equally agreeable solution, but talks between the Greek Cypriot south and the Turkish Cypriot north consistently end in a stalemate.

A survey completed in February 2007 by the United Nations Peacekeeping Force in Cyprus found that a majority of both Greek and Turkish Cypriot communities view the United Nations' presence on the island as a positive. Both see any withdrawal scenario involving the U.N. departing before restoration of normal conditions and a settlement being reached as a negative. We must applaud the continued efforts of the United Nations and the focus of Cypriot leaders to reunite a divided Cyprus and remain, ourselves, committed to ushering the settlement process forward. Cypriot, Mediterranean, and United States interests will benefit from a settlement that addresses all legitimate concerns of both sides and promotes the stability of a hostile region.

Sirens wailed across the southern half of Cyprus today, in memory of the day known as "black anniversary" among the Greek Cypriots. Cypriot leaders, on both sides of the divide, must take forward steps to wash away the darkness of this day and replace it with peace and tolerance.•

REMEMBERING GENERAL WAYNE A. DOWNING

• Mr. REED. Mr. President, today, with a heavy heart, I recognize an American patriot and public servant who passed away on July 17, 2007: GEN Wayne A. Downing, U.S. Army, Retired.

Born on May 10, 1940, in Peoria, IL, General Downing graduated from the Spalding Institute in 1958 and was then appointed to the U.S. Military Academy. Following his graduation from West Point in 1962, General Downing served two combat tours in Vietnam as a junior infantry officer.

General Downing served his country for 34 years in a variety of command assignments in infantry, armored, special operations, and joint units, culminating in his appointment as the commander-in-chief of the U.S. Special Operations Command. As a general officer, he commanded the special operations of all services during the 1989 invasion of Panama and commanded a joint special operations task force operating deep behind the Iraqi lines during Operation Desert Storm.

General Downing's reputation was that of a smart, decisive, forceful, and caring leader, known in particular for his unwavering determination to accomplish any mission assigned and provide his soldiers the best possible support. His personal courage and leadership by example inspired fierce loyalty from all the soldiers who worked for him.

Following his retirement from the U.S. Army in 1996, General Downing had repeatedly answered the call of public service. After the terrorist attack on the U.S. base at Khobar Towers in Saudi Arabia, he was appointed by President Clinton to assess the attack and to make recommendations on how to protect Americans and U.S. facilities worldwide from future attacks.

From 1999-2000, General Downing was a member of the congressionally mandated National Commission on Terrorism charged with examining the terrorist threat to the U.S., evaluating America's laws, policies, and practices for preventing and punishing terrorism directed at U.S. citizens, and recommending corrective actions.

In the wake of 9/11, General Downing served for almost a year in the White House as national director and deputy national security advisor for combating terrorism. As the President's principal adviser on matters related to combating terrorism, he was responsible for coordinating the military, diplomatic, intelligence, law enforcement, information, and financial operations of our war on terror, and for developing and executing a strategy that integrated all elements of national power.

Following his assignment at the White House, General Downing returned to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point when he assumed the position of "Distinguished Chair" of the Combating Terrorism Center, CTC. Under his leadership, the center sought to better understand foreign and domestic terrorism threats, to educate future leaders, and to provide political analysis and advice to counter future terrorist activities.

In addition to his duties at the CTC, General Downing was a visiting faculty member at the University of Michigan Business School conducting seminars on leadership and transformation management and was military and terrorism analyst for NBC News.

General Downing's career has epitomized the phrase "lifetime of service to the Nation" and exemplified ideals inherent in duty, honor, and country. He was a true warrior who always spoke the truth, insisted on complete honesty from all he worked with, and was the epitome of honorable behavior. As a combat leader, educator, global strategist, and national security expert, General Downing's contributions to our national defense and security are immeasurable.

Our thoughts and prayers are with his wife Kathryn, his daughters Laura and Elizabeth, and the entire Downing family in this time of sorrow. He will be missed dearly by his many friends, colleagues, and an extremely grateful Nation.●

TRIBUTE TO JULIE SITTASON

● Mr. SHELBY. Mr. President, today I pay tribute to Julie Sittason, who has dedicated over 20 years of her life to caring for others. On August 16, 2007, when Julie steps down as the executive director of Hospice of West Alabama, she will leave behind a legacy of service to others.

Julie and I have been friends for many years. She graduated from my alma mater, the University of Alabama, with an undergraduate degree in sociology and a master's degree in counseling and guidance from the University of Alabama. Soon after, Julie decided to pursue a rewarding career of serving and caring for others.

For 7 years, Julie worked as a counselor at the Alabama State Department of Industrial Relations, providing guidance to the blind, the hearing impaired and recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children. Later, Julie returned to the University of Alabama to work as the program administrator for the West Alabama Comprehensive Services program.

In 1986, Julie was named executive director of Hospice of West Alabama. When she was hired, the Agency only employed three full-time staffers, operating on an annual budget of $86,000. Today, the budget has grown to $5 million a year and Hospice of West Alabama has 70 employees, serving 600 patients a year in Tuscaloosa, Greene, Hale, Bibb and Pickens Counties.

Over the past two decades, Julie has overseen many changes at Hospice of West Alabama. It was under her direction in 1997 when the Agency became the first community-based hospice in the State of Alabama to be officially recognized by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations. In 2004, it was Julie's vision that led to the construction of the $5 million facility that includes the State's first community-based inpatient hospice facility.

While many people think that the service Julie contributes each day through her work at Hospice of West Alabama is enough, she thinks otherwise. As an avid volunteer, Julie continues to serve with organizations such as the March of Dimes, the MS Walkathon and Soup Bowl. She has served as an adviser for Alpha Omicron Pi Sorority, is on the administrative board for First United Methodist Church, and the board of directors for United Cerebral Palsy, Castle Hill Clinic and the Maude Whatley Clinic. Julie has also held several leadership positions in the Alabama Hospice Organization.

Julie is married to Chuck Sittason. She has two daughters, Katherine Cramer, who served with distinction as my first Senate page in 1995, and Meredith Cramer.

As Julie embarks on another phase in her life, she will remain an inspiration to many and will be remembered for her dedication and many contributions to Hospice of West Alabama. I wish her much luck in her future endeavors, and I ask this entire Senate to join me in recognizing and honoring the life and career of my good friend Julie Sittason.●

RECOGNIZING THE 114TH FIGHTER WING

● Mr. THUNE. Mr. President, today I recognize the 114th Fighter Wing of the South Dakota Air National Guard for being awarded the 2007 Outstanding Air National Guard Flying Unit Award.

Since 1956, the 114th Fighter Wing has been an outstanding unit and has played an important role in the South Dakota National Guard. The unit has a proud history of accomplishment and this award is in keeping with that tradition. Over the years, the 114th has received numerous unit citations such as the Air Force Outstanding Unit Award and the Armed Forces Expeditionary Streamer for combat duty as a part of Operation Just Cause in Panama. The 114th Fighter Wing has trained with the Navy, Marines, and the Air Force during Operation Provide Comfort II in Turkey, Commando Sling in Singapore, Operation Southern Watch in Al Jaber, Kuwait, and numerous others. Today, the unit is continuing to uphold its standard of excellence by providing significant contributions in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom and the War on Terror. Their courageous efforts in protecting America should make both South Dakota and the Nation proud.

It gives me great pleasure to represent the men and women who make up the 114th Fighter Wing and congratulate them on their award.●

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS

The following petitions and memorials were laid before the Senate and were referred or ordered to lie on the table as indicated:

POM–173. A resolution adopted by the City Council of the City of Miami Gardens, Florida, urging Congress to appropriate the funds necessary to bring the Herbert Hoover Dike into compliance with current levee protection safety standards; to the Committee on Appropriations.

POM–174. A concurrent resolution adopted by the House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana urging Congress to take such actions as are necessary to create a federal catastrophe fund; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 17

Whereas, the hurricane seasons of 2004 and 2005 were startling reminders of both the human and economic devastation that hurricanes, flooding, and other natural disasters can cause; and

Whereas, creation of a federal catastrophe fund is a comprehensive, integrated approach to help better prepare and protect the Nation from natural catastrophes, such as hurricanes, tornadoes, wildfires, snowstorms, and earthquakes; and

Whereas, the current system of response to catastrophes leaves many people and businesses at risk of being unable to replace what they lost, wastes tax dollars, raises insurance premiums, and leads to shortages of insurance needed to sustain our economy; and

Whereas, creation of a federal catastrophe fund would help stabilize insurance markets following a catastrophe and help steady insurance costs for consumers while making it possible for private insurers to offer more insurance in catastrophe-prone areas; and

Whereas, a portion of the premiums collected by insurance companies could be deposited into such a fund which could be administered by the United States Treasury and grow tax free; and

Whereas, a portion of the interest earnings of the fund could be dedicated to emergency responder efforts and public education and mitigation programs; and

Whereas, the federal catastrophe fund would operate as a "backstop" and could only be accessed when private insurers and state catastrophe funds have paid losses in excess of a defined threshold; and

Whereas, utilizing the capacity of the Federal Government would help smooth out fluctuations consumers currently experience in insurance prices and availability because of exposure to large catastrophic losses and would provide better protection at a lower price; and

Whereas, when there is a gap between the insurance protection consumers buy and the damage caused by a major catastrophe, taxpayers across the country pay much of the difference, as congressional appropriations of billions of dollars for after-the-fact disaster relief in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina demonstrated; and

Whereas, there are a number of legislative instruments pending in the current One Hundred Tenth Congress which address the need for a federal catastrophe fund, including the Homeowners Protection Act of 2007 (H.R. 91) and the Commission on Catastrophic Disaster Risk an Insurance Act of 2007 (H.R. 537 and S. 292). Therefore, be it

Resolved, that the Legislature of Louisiana does hereby memorialize the United States Congress to take such actions as are necessary to create a federal catastrophe fund. Be it further

Resolved, that a copy of this Resolution be transmitted to the presiding officers of the Senate and the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States of America and to each member of the Louisiana congressional delegation.

POM–175. A concurrent resolution adopted by the House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana urging Congress to take such actions as are necessary to either extend the Terrorism Risk Insurance Act to include insurance coverage for natural disasters such as earthquakes and hurricanes or, alternatively, to establish a tax incentive program for insurance companies that provide insurance coverage for such disasters; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 50

Whereas, as a result of the devastation caused by Hurricane Katrina and Hurricane Rita to personal residential property, commercial residential property, and commercial property, Louisiana insureds, especially those located in the greater New Orleans area, are at risk with regard to the availability and affordability of personal residential property, commercial residential property, and commercial property insurance; and

Whereas, Hurricane Katrina and Hurricane Rita have created a real threat to the public health, safety, and welfare of the citizens of Louisiana, as well as to the rebuilding efforts of Louisiana citizens in the post-Katrina and Rita era; and

Whereas, Louisiana, as a state located on the coast of the Gulf of Mexico, will continue to be at risk from the threat of hurricanes, further jeopardizing the availability and affordability of personal residential property, commercial residential property, and commercial property insurance. Therefore, be it

Resolved, that the Legislature of Louisiana does hereby memorialize the United States Congress to take such actions as are necessary to either extend the Terrorism Risk Insurance Act (TRIA) to include insurance coverage for natural disasters such as earthquakes and hurricanes or, alternatively, to establish a tax incentive program for insurance companies that provide insurance coverage for natural disasters such as earthquakes and hurricanes. Be it further

Resolved, that a copy of this Resolution be transmitted to the presiding officers of the Senate and the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States of America and to each member of the Louisiana congressional delegation.

POM–176. A concurrent resolution adopted by the House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana urging Congress to take such actions as are necessary to revise the National Flood Insurance Program to extend coverage for other natural disasters; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 212

Whereas, the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968 established the National Flood Insurance Program as a means of mitigating flood damages by making flood insurance available in communities that adopt and enforce measures to reduce flood losses; and

Whereas, the National Flood Insurance Program is a federal program that allows property owners to purchase insurance protection against losses due to flooding; and

Whereas, Louisiana as well as other states have significant vulnerability to natural disasters, and when coupled with the lack of appropriate insurance coverage, this may result in a catastrophic impact on the economic, human, and physical environment of the United States; and

Whereas, Hurricanes Katrina and Rita caused unprecedented property damage, loss of life, and the upheaval of societal norms in the state of Louisiana; and

Whereas, the availability and affordability of property insurance has become an issue of paramount importance in a post-Katrina environment that has seen a significant drop in property coverages offered in the private market, unprecedented rate increases, and total risk avoidance in hurricane-prone areas; and

Whereas, revising the National Flood Insurance Program to extend multi-peril insurance coverage for damage resulting from earthquakes, volcanos, tsunamis, and hurricanes would reduce the economic consequences of future natural disasters; and

Whereas, the accessibility of multi-peril insurance coverage through a federally offered program may increase participation in the National Flood Insurance Program, thereby reducing rates due to the aggregate risk pooling of natural disasters; and

Whereas, this goal may be accomplished by generating sufficient premium income to provide insurance protection against disasters and to reduce the government's expenditures for future disaster relief; and

Whereas, the incorporation of a multi-peril mitigation program within the National Flood Insurance Program would afford consumers the protection of a residential insurance program with multi-peril protection. Therefore, be it

Resolved, that the Legislature of Louisiana does hereby memorialize the United States Congress to take such actions as are necessary to allow the National Flood Insurance Program to extend coverage for other natural disasters. Be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this Resolution be transmitted to the presiding officers of the Senate and the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States of America and to each member of the Louisiana congressional delegation.

POM–177. A concurrent resolution adopted by the House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana urging Congress to take such actions as are necessary to ensure that all all-terrain vehicles sold in the United States meet mechanical equipment standards of the Consumer, Product Safety Commission and that safety information and training are being provided to all purchasers of all-terrain vehicles; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 274

Whereas, the United States Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) is charged with protecting the public from unreasonable risks of serious injury or death from more than fifteen thousand types of consumer products under the agency's jurisdiction, and the commission is committed to protecting consumers and families from products that pose a fire, electrical, chemical, or mechanical hazard or can injure children; and

Whereas, despite success in general, injuries and deaths resulting from the use of all-terrain vehicles (ATVs), particularly involving children, are on the rise; and

Whereas, a CPSC staff report from 2005 includes the following ATV-related injury and death data:

In 2003, there were an estimated seven hundred forty deaths associated with ATVs.

In 2001, the most recent year for which death data collection is complete, twenty-six percent of the reported deaths were of children under sixteen years old.

The estimated risk of death was 1.1 deaths per ten thousand four-wheeled ATVs in use in 2003.

The estimated number of A TV-related emergency-room-treated injuries for all ages in 2004 was one hundred thirty-six thousand one hundred, an increase of ten thousand six hundred from 2003. This increase was statistically significant.

Children under sixteen years of age accounted for forty-four thousand seven hundred, or thirty-three percent, of the total estimated number of injuries in 2004.

There were about one hundred eighty-eight emergency-room-treated injuries per ten thousand four-wheeled ATVs in use in 2004; and

Whereas, currently ATVs are subject only to voluntary standards and Letters of Undertaking entered into by the CPSC and the major manufacturers; and

Whereas, there are gaps in the current, voluntary system of regulating the industry; primary among them is the fact that the regulations do not apply to "new entrants", that is, those manufacturers who have not agreed to participate in the standards; and

Whereas, despite a recommendation from its own staff that equipment standards and safety measures should be applied to all manufacturers and distributors, the CPSC has failed to adopt final mandatory regulations applicable to ATVs; and

Whereas, in the interest of saving lives and preventing injury, it is appropriate that Congress get involved in this issue: Therefore be it

Resolved, That the Legislature of Louisiana does hereby memorialize the United States Congress to take such actions as are necessary to do all of the following:

(1) Require the Consumer Product Safety Commission to promulgate a consumer product safety standard for all-terrain vehicles. The standard shall be the same as the American National Standard for Four Wheel All-Terrain Vehicles-Equipment, Configuration, and Performance Requirements ANSI/SVIA–1–2001 or its successor standard.

(2) Require each manufacturer or importer of an all-terrain vehicle to which the ATV standard applies to submit an action plan to the commission for its approval. Such plan shall include the offer of free rider training, dissemination of safety information, age recommendations, the monitoring of such sales, and other safety-related measures.

(3) Prohibit a manufacturer or importer of all-terrain vehicles from distributing an all-terrain vehicle in commerce unless the manufacturer or importer has complied with its obligations under its action plan that has been approved by the commission.

(4) Require each all-terrain vehicle to which the ATV standard applies to bear a permanent label certifying that the all-terrain vehicle complies with the consumer product safety standard and is subject to an action plan accepted by the commission; identifies the manufacturer or importer issuing the certification; and contains sufficient information to enable the commission to identify the particular action plan that applies to that all-terrain vehicle; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this Resolution be transmitted to the presiding officers of the Senate and the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States of America and to each member of the Louisiana congressional delegation.

POM–178. A resolution adopted by the General Assembly of the State of New Jersey urging Congress to reinstate its offshore water quality testing program along the New Jersey coastline; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

ASSEMBLY RESOLUTION NO. 270

Whereas, The United States Environmental Protection Agency has conducted a seasonal offshore monitoring program by helicopter for the last 30 years along the New Jersey coastline that searched for and tested the presence of dissolved oxygen and enterococci (i.e., fecal) bacteria in ocean waters; and

Whereas, The existence of certain levels of dissolved oxygen and enterococci bacteria are precursors or indicators of potential fish kills and harmful algal blooms or "brown tide"; and

Whereas, The United States Environmental Protection Agency has announced that it is terminating this offshore water testing program in favor of alternative methods of testing for these environmental indicators; and

Whereas, A massive algal bloom appeared in Raritan and Sandy Hook Bays in late May 2007, turning coastal ocean waters brown from Sandy Hook to Manasquan, thereby re-emphasizing the need for the continuation of the federal ocean water testing program; and

Whereas, The State, counties and municipalities affected by the termination of the federal ocean water testing program do not have the logistical or financial capability to continue or replace this program in time for the 2007 summer shore season; and

Whereas, New Jersey has a coastline of beautiful beaches which is not only one of the State's greatest natural resources but also is vital to the State's economy through the billions of dollars generated from shore-related tourism; and

Whereas, The United States Environmental Protection Agency is continuing the use of its coastal monitoring helicopter to conduct surveillance of floatable objects in the ocean off the coast of New Jersey and therefore could reinstate the ocean water testing program in an expeditious manner without undue financial or logistical hardships; Now, therefore, be it

(1) This House opposes the decision by the United States Environmental Protection Agency to terminate the offshore ocean water quality testing program along the coast of New Jersey and urges that it be reinstated immediately.

(2) Duly authenticated copies of this resolution, signed by the Speaker of the Assembly and attested by the Clerk thereof, shall be transmitted to the President and Vice-President of the United States, the Administrator of the United States Environmental Protection Agency, the Region II Administrator of that agency, the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, the majority and minority leaders of the United States Senate and the United States House of Representatives, each member of the Congress of the United States elected from this State, and the Commissioner of the New Jersey Department of Environmental protection.

POM–179. A concurrent resolution adopted by the Senate of the State of Louisiana urging Congress to vote in favor of H.R. 1229, the Non-Market Economy Trade Remedy Act of 2007; to the Committee on Finance.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 115

Whereas, H.R. 1229, the "Non-Market Economy Trade Remedy Act of 2007," will ensure that the United States countervailing duty law applies to imports from non-market economies; and

Whereas, the purpose of the countervailing duty law is to offset any unfair competitive advantage that foreign manufacturers or exporters have as a result of subsidies; and

Whereas, manufacturing is a vital part of the American economy; and

Whereas, each American manufacturing job results in the creation of approximately four additional jobs; and

Whereas, since 1997, Louisiana has lost over thirty-nine thousand manufacturing jobs due to unfair trade practices; and

Whereas, Louisiana's coastal area is home to some of the Nation's premiere commercial fisheries, accounting for 30 percent of the commercial fisheries production of the lower 48 States; and

Whereas, the Louisiana seafood industry provides an annual economic impact of approximately two billion eight hundred million dollars and over thirty-one thousand jobs; and

Whereas, the Louisiana seafood industry has lost over eleven thousand jobs and millions of dollars due to illegally subsidized seafood imports and dumping from foreign nations; and

Whereas, industries that once were the pride of their communities and employed generations of the same family have been shut down resulting from jobs being shifted to foreign nations where labor is cheap and environmental standards are not enforced; and

Whereas, billions of dollars in wages and millions of jobs are expected to move from the United States to low-cost nations by 2015; and

Whereas, H.R. 1229, the "Non-Market Economy Trade Remedy Act of 2007," is being considered in Congress to correct the long-standing inequity of trade law, and requires the Department of Commerce to take action in countervailing duty cases in support of American businesses: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Legislature of Louisiana memorializes the Congress of the United States to vote in favor of H.R. 1229, the "Non-Market Economy Trade Remedy Act of 2007"; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this Resolution shall be transmitted to the secretary of the United States Senate and the clerk of the United States House of Representatives and to each member of the Louisiana delegation to the United States Congress.

POM–180. A resolution adopted by the Senate of the State of Wisconsin urging Congress to create a system that ensures that trade agreements are developed and implemented using a democratic, inclusive mechanism that enshrines the principles of federalism and state sovereignty; to the Committee on Finance.

SENATE RESOLUTION NO. 8

Whereas, democratic, accountable governance in the States, generally, and the authority granted by the Wisconsin constitution to the legislative branch, specifically, are being undermined by international commercial and trade rules enforced by the World Trade Organization (WTO) and established by the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) and are further threatened by similar provisions in an array of pending trade agreements; and

Whereas, today's "trade" agreements have impacts that extend significantly beyond the bounds of traditional trade matters, such as tariffs and quotas, and instead grant foreign investors and service providers certain rights and privileges regarding acquisition of land and facilities and regarding operations within a State's territory, subject State laws to challenge as "nontariff barriers to trade" in the binding dispute resolution bodies that accompany the pacts, and place limits on the future policy options of State legislatures; and

Whereas, NAFTA and other U.S. free trade agreements grant foreign firms new rights and privileges for operating within a State that exceed those rights and privileges granted to U.S. businesses under State and Federal law; and

Whereas, NAFTA already has generated "regulatory takings" cases against State and local land-use decisions, State environmental and public health policies, adverse State court rulings, and State and local contracts that would not have been possible in U.S. courts; and

Whereas, when States are bound to comply with government procurement provisions contained in trade agreements, common economic development and environmental policies, such as buy-local laws, prevailing wage laws, and policies to prevent offshoring of State jobs, as well as recycled content laws, could be subject to challenge as violating the obligations in the trade agreements; and

Whereas, recent trade agreements curtail State regulatory authority by placing constraints on future policy options; and

Whereas, the WTO general agreement on trade in services (GATS) could undermine State efforts to expand health care coverage and rein in health care costs and places constraints on State and local land-use planning and gambling policy; and

Whereas, new GATS negotiations could impose additional constraints on State regulation of energy, higher education, professional licensing, and other areas; and

Whereas, despite the indisputable fact that international trade agreements have a far-reaching impact on State and local laws, Federal Government trade negotiators have failed to respect States' rights to prior informed consent before binding States to conform State law and authority to trade agreement requirements and have refused even to inform State legislatures of key correspondence; and

Whereas, the current encroachment on State regulatory authority by international commercial and trade agreements has occurred in no small part because U.S. trade policy is being formulated and implemented under the Fast Track Trade Authority procedure; and

Whereas, Fast Track eliminates vital checks and balances established in the U.S. Constitution by broadly delegating to the executive branch Congress's exclusive constitutional authority to set the terms of trade, such that the executive branch is empowered to negotiate broad-ranging trade agreements and to sign them prior to Congress voting on the agreements; and

Whereas, the ability of the executive branch to sign trade agreements prior to Congress's vote of approval means that executive branch negotiators can ignore congressional negotiating objectives or States' demands, and neither Congress nor the States have any means to enforce any decision regarding what provisions must be contained in every U.S. trade agreement or what provisions may not be included in any U.S. trade agreement; and

Whereas, Federal trade negotiators have ignored and disrespected States' demands regarding whether States agree to be bound to certain nontariff trade agreement provisions; and

Whereas, Fast Track also circumvents normal congressional review and amendment committee procedures, limits debate to 20 hours, and forbids any floor amendments to the implementing legislation that is presented to Congress to conform hundreds of U.S. laws to trade agreement obligations and to incorporate the actual trade agreement itself into U.S. Federal law that preempts State law; and

Whereas, Fast Track is not necessary for negotiating trade agreements as demonstrated by the existence of scores of trade agreements, including major pacts, implemented in the past 30 years without use of Fast Track; and

Whereas, Fast Track, which was established in 1974 by President Richard Nixon when trade agreements were limited to traditional matters, such as tariffs and quotas, is now woefully outdated and inappropriate given the diverse range of nontrade issues now included in "trade" agreements that broadly affect State and Federal nontrade regulatory authority; and

Whereas, the current grant of Fast Track expires in June 2007: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, by the Senate, That:

(1) The U.S. Congress be urged to create a replacement for the outdated Fast Track system so that U.S. trade agreements are developed and implemented using a more democratic, inclusive mechanism that enshrines the principles of federalism and State sovereignty.

(2) This new process for developing and implementing trade agreements include an explicit mechanism for ensuring the prior informed consent of State legislatures before States are bound to the nontariff terms of any trade agreement that affects State regulatory authority to ensure that the United States trade representative respects the decisions made by States.

(3) Copies of this resolution be sent to President George W. Bush, Ambassador Susan Schwab, U.S. Trade Representative, the President of the U.S. Senate, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and the Wisconsin Congressional Delegation.

POM–181. A concurrent resolution adopted by the House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana urging Congress to take such actions as are necessary to examine the provisions of the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Reconciliation Act of 1996 to provide prenatal care to immigrants; to the Committee on Finance.

HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 258

Whereas, the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Reconciliation Act of 1996, P.L. 104–193, (PRWORA) significantly changed the eligibility of noncitizens for federal means-tested public benefits, including Medicaid and the State Children's Health Insurance Program; and

Whereas, as a general rule, only "qualified aliens" as defined in §431 of PRWORA maybe eligible for coverage; and

Whereas, some immigrants cannot be eligible for coverage for five years from the date they enter the country as a qualified alien; and

Whereas, the five-year bar only applies to qualified aliens who entered the United States on or after August 22, 1996, unless they meet one of the exceptions in PRWORA; and

Whereas, the five-year bar never applies to immigrants who are applying for treatment of an emergency medical condition only; and

Whereas, under PRWORA all immigrants, both qualified and non-qualified aliens as well as those who are residing in the country in an undocumented status, may be eligible for treatment of an emergency medical condition only, provided that they otherwise meet the eligibility criteria for the state's Medicaid program; and

Whereas, if prenatal care was provided for immigrants who are currently not eligible, there would likely be a great return on the money because once the baby is born in the United States, it becomes a citizen and may possibly receive Medicaid benefits; and

Whereas, it would be beneficial to our citizens if the Federal Government would study the costs of providing prenatal care versus the costs for caring for a preterm baby; and

Whereas, changes in the PRWORA may save the lives of many preterm babies born to immigrants in this country; and

Whereas, this Resolution is executed in memory of baby Jui: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Legislature of Louisiana does hereby memorialize the United States Congress to take such actions as are necessary to examine the provisions of the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Reconciliation Act of 1996 to provide prenatal care to immigrants; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this Resolution be transmitted to the presiding officers of the Senate and the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States of America and to each member of the Louisiana congressional delegation.

POM–182. A communication from the House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana urging Congress to take such actions as are necessary to provide the same tax breaks and federal financial assistance to Louisiana residents affected by Hurricane Rita as those afforded to Louisiana residents affected by Hurricane Katrina; to the Committee on Finance.

HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 223.

Whereas, in August and September 2005, Louisiana was decimated by multiple hurricanes striking the state, resulting in a combination of natural disasters of unprecedented proportions in American history; and

Whereas, these disasters caused a burden no state has ever had to bear, including the loss of life, livelihoods, and homes, destruction and damage to public buildings and public works, and damage to its coastal wetlands and coastline; and

Whereas, the citizens, businesses, communities, schools, and state and local governments of Louisiana have suffered tremendous loss; and

Whereas, the ramifications of these events continue to affect every citizen of the state as we continue to struggle to rebuild our lives, homes, businesses, and communities; and

Whereas, because of the mass devastation and loss of life suffered by the citizens of New Orleans and southeast Louisiana as a result of Hurricane Katrina, congress acted quickly in granting victims and survivors of Hurricane Katrina various tax breaks and federal financial assistance aimed at long-term recovery; and

Whereas, although the devastation realized as a result of Hurricane Rita was not as large-scale as the devastation of Hurricane Katrina, the victims and survivors of Hurricane Rita who lost their homes, businesses, livelihoods, and entire communities are suffering every bit as much as the citizens affected by Hurricane Katrina; and

Whereas, the citizens of southwest Louisiana are in need for congress to act quickly in granting them the same tax breaks and federal financial assistance as was granted to the victims and survivors of Hurricane Katrina in order to sustain long-term recovery: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Legislature of Louisiana does hereby memorialize the United States Congress to take such actions as are necessary to provide the same tax breaks and federal financial assistance to Louisiana residents affected by Hurricane Rita as those afforded to Louisiana residents affected by Hurricane Katrina; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this Resolution be transmitted to the presiding officers of the Senate and the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States of America and to each member of the Louisiana congressional delegation.

POM–183. A resolution adopted by the House of Representatives of the State of Illinois establishing May 2007 as Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis Awareness Month; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 58

Whereas, Amyotrophic lateral sclerosis or ALS is better known as Lou Gehrig's disease; and

Whereas, ALS is a fatal neurodegenerative disease characterized by degeneration of cell bodies of the lower motor neurons in the gray matter of the anterior horns of the spinal cord; and

Whereas, The initial symptom of ALS is weakness of the skeletal muscles, especially those of the extremities; and

Whereas, As ALS progresses the patient experiences difficulty in swallowing, talking, and breathing; and

Whereas, ALS eventually causes muscles to atrophy and the patient becomes a functional quadriplegic; and

Whereas, ALS does not affect a patient's mental capacity, so that the patient remains alert and aware of his or her loss of motor functions and the inevitable outcome of continued deterioration and death; and

Whereas, On average, patients diagnosed with ALS only survive two to five years from the time of diagnosis; and

Whereas, research indicates that military veterans are at a 50% or greater risk of developing ALS than those who have not served in the military; and

Whereas, ALS has no known cause, means of prevention, or cure; and

Whereas, Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis Awareness Month increases the public's awareness of ALS patients' circumstances and acknowledges the terrible impact this disease has not only on the patient but on his or her family and the community and recognizes the research being done to eradicate this horrible disease: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, by the House of Representatives of the Ninety-Fifth General Assembly of the State of Illinois, The Senate concurring herein, that we proclaim the month of May 2007 as Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis Awareness Month in the State of Illinois; and be it further

Resolved, That we memorialize the President and Congress of the United States to enact legislation to provide additional funding for research in order to find a treatment and eventually a cure for amyotrophic lateral sclerosis; and be it further

Resolved, That suitable copies of this resolution be presented to the President of the United States and each member of the Illinois congressional delegation.

POM–184. A resolution adopted by the House of Representatives of the State of Illinois urging Congress to address certain concerns relative to the reauthorization of the No Child Left Behind Act; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

HOUSE RESOLUTION NO. 396

Whereas, The federal No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 (NCLB) requires reauthorization in 2007; Now therefore, be it

Resolved, by the House of Representatives of the Ninety-Fifth General Assembly of the State of Illinois, That we urge the United States Congress to address the following concerns when considering the reauthorization of NCLB:

(1) allow states the flexibility to use growth model assessment models to enhance existing measures of student progress;

(2) provide flexibility in program implementation with respect to varying student and teacher needs related to diversity of geography, wealth, and background;

(3) revise assessment guidelines for special needs students so that such students are more fairly assessed considering their specific individualized education programs and, therefore, better served;

(4) resolve other contradictions between NCLB and the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA);

(5) address issues arising from students who are counted in multiple groups when determining adequate yearly progress;

(6) allow schools to offer, and provide full funding for, important supplemental education services before schools are forced to offer choice;

(7) provide greater flexibility when determining the sizes of groups regarding assessment subgroups;

(8) school improvement grants must be funded so that the sanctions placed on schools will result in improved student achievement and the reversal of negative trends;

(9) seek greater consistency in state certification criteria and the federal "highly qualified" designation;

(10) the highly qualified teacher provisions of NCLB require clarification, greater flexibility regarding alignment with state certification, and appropriate, specific, technical assistance in order to ensure compliance; and

(11) resident school districts of special needs students attending private schools must pay for IDEA services delivered at a private school; and be it further

Resolved, That suitable copies of this resolution be delivered to President of the United States George W. Bush, United States Secretary of Education Margaret Spellings, and each member of the Illinois congressional delegation.

POM–185. A resolution adopted by the Senate of the State of Michigan urging Congress to enact the Education Begins at Home Act; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

SENATE RESOLUTION NO. 61

Whereas, each year, an estimated 2.7 million children in America are abused or neglected, including 900,000 cases that are actually investigated and verified by overburdened state child protection systems. Nationally, more than 1,400 children die from abuse or neglect each year. Over half of them were previously unknown to child protective services. In Michigan during 2005, 147,628 families were investigated for suspected child maltreatment. In those families investigated, 28,154 children were confirmed to be victims of child abuse and neglect. Of all confirmed cases of abuse and neglect, more than a third involved children three years old or younger. Another 19,265 children were in out-of-home placement as the result of child abuse and neglect and delinquency; and

Whereas, children who survive abuse or neglect likely carry the emotional scars for life, while studies also show that being abused or neglected multiplies the risk that a child will grow up to be violent. The best available research indicates that, based on confirmed cases of child abuse and neglect in just one year, of these children, there will be an additional 35,000 adult violent criminals and more than 250 murderers who would never have become violent criminals if not for the abuse or neglect they endured as children. Fortunately, evidence-based in-home parent coaching programs can prevent child abuse and neglect and reduce later crime and violence. In general, these programs provide voluntary coaching to parents of children up to five years old in home settings for some period of time; and

Whereas, a number of programs exist to help parents. The Nurse Family Partnership randomly assigned interested at-risk pregnant women to receive in-home visits by nurses starting before the birth of the first child and continuing until the child was two years old. The program cut abuse and neglect among at-risk children in half according to research published in a leading medical journal. In addition, children of mothers who received this coaching had 59 percent fewer arrests by age 15 than the children of mothers who were not coached. Yet this program reaches only a tiny fraction of eligible parents. Other major home-visiting programs include Parents as Teachers, Healthy Families America, Early Head Start, Home Instruction for Parents of Preschool Youngsters, and the Parent-Child Home Program. However, hundreds of thousands of at-risk mothers across the country receive no in-home parent coaching. The impacts of child abuse and neglect cost Americans $94 billion a year. In 2005, the direct cost of child abuse and neglect in Michigan was an estimated $531,744,598. Prevention efforts such as Michigan's 0–3 Secondary Prevention Initiative, which reflects the use of a variety of program models, saved an estimated $41,268,095 in direct costs associated with child abuse and neglect; and

Whereas, in the 109th Congress, Senator Bond and Representatives Davis and Platts, together with many of their colleagues, cosponsored the bipartisan Education Begins at Home Act in the Senate and House (S. 503/H.R. 3628) to provide grants to help states establish or expand voluntary in-home parent-coaching programs for families with young children. The Education Begins at Home Act would have authorized $400 million over three years in grants from the United States Department of Health and Human Services for voluntary in-home parent-coaching programs. The Education Begins at Home Act would also have authorized $100 million over three years in grants for voluntary in-home parent-coaching programs for English language learners and military families. These programs would strengthen Early Head Start, which includes center-based and in-home parent coaching components. Each of the major home-visiting programs operates in Michigan, and the Education Begins at Home Act would allow program flexibility so that states would not be tied to one particular model. These voluntary programs would help new parents learn skills to promote healthy child development and be better parents; Now: therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate, That we memorialize the United States Congress to reintroduce an expanded Education Begins at Home Act. We encourage sponsors of the new bill to include separate funding authorization levels for each of the next five years, to target funding first toward jurisdictions with the greatest need, and to ensure that funding priority be given to evidence-based approaches that deliver effective results in improving outcomes for children and families; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be transmitted to the President of the United States Senate, the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, and the members of the Michigan congressional delegation.

POM–186. A concurrent resolution adopted by the Senate of the State of Louisiana urging Congress to take a proactive role in assisting the communities of New Orleans East in protecting their health and safety and in promoting economic development; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 134

Whereas, the health, safety, welfare, and economic recovery of the residents and businesses of New Orleans East are dependent upon the continued assistance and encouragement from our federal partners; and

Whereas, the Legislature of Louisiana created the New Orleans Regional Business Park as a special municipal district for the primary purpose of engaging industrial, manufacturing, processing, assembling, distribution, and wholesale businesses; and

Whereas, as of early May 2006, approximately forty companies out of one hundred four pre-Katrina were back in business and the future of the others is largely uncertain; and

Whereas, New Orleans East has become the illegal burial grounds for homes and businesses washed out by hurricanes Katrina and Rita; and

Whereas, illegal dumping makes it extremely hard to attract businesses to New Orleans East and to the business park; and

Whereas, in the business park alone there are twenty-three known illegal dumping sites and thirteen illegal automobile dumping sites; and

Whereas, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency awarded the business park $400.000 in grants to catalogue contamination, but none of the federal funds will be used for cleanup; and

Whereas, the Louisiana Department of Environmental Quality Enforcement Division, Surveillance Division and Criminal Investigations Section of the Legal Affairs Division have inspected over one hundred seventy-five sites and found potential environmental violations on one hundred fifty of these sites in the Almonaster/Gentilly area alone; and

Whereas, on one of these sites, sixty-five thousand cubic yards of debris or approximately an eleven foot tall mound of debris was found to have been illegally dumped on this one site in New Orleans East; and

Whereas, the illegal piles of debris do not have protective barriers to keep whatever poisons are in the piles contained and from leaking out into the wetlands surrounding this area; and

Whereas, numerous federal agencies have roles and responsibilities in the health, safety, and economic development after hurricanes Katrina and Rita which range from debris removal, oversight of regulations, and recovery funding; and

Whereas, the removal of all dump sites within the New Orleans Regional Business Park will improve the health, safety, and economic development: Now Therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Legislature of Louisiana memorializes the Congress of the United States to urge and request the respective executive branch departments to take a proactive role in assisting the communities of New Orleans East in protecting their health and safety and in promoting economic development: and be it further

Resolved, That the Legislature of Louisiana does hereby request the Congress ofthe United States and the appropriate federal agencies, in coordination with appropriate Louisiana state agencies, to immediately take the following actions: (a) cease funding any waste disposal activities within the New Orleans Regional Business Park, except for the city of New Orleans' landfill known as the Gentilly Landfill which is legally permitted and should continue working with all state and federal agencies; (b) develop and implement procedures for expeditious environmental sampling, analysis, and reporting; (c) resolve the blurring of debris management responsibilities between the Federal Emergency Management Agency and Environmental Protection Agency, and state environmental and public health agencies; (d) review and enhance the Environmental Protection Agency's oversight role of illegal and improper debris disposal; and (e) provide guidance and mechanisms for the development of public/private partnerships in restoring and redeveloping the New Orleans Regional Business Park and the New Orleans East community; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this Resolution shall be transmitted to the secretary of the United States Senate and the clerk of the United States House of Representatives and to each member of the Louisiana delegation to the United States Congress.

POM–187. A concurrent resolution adopted by the Senate of the State of New Hampshire urging Congress to fully fund the federal government's share of special education services under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Whereas, since its enactment in 1975, the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) has helped millions of children with special needs to receive a quality education and to develop to their full capacities; and

Whereas, IDEA has moved children with disabilities out of institutions and into public school classrooms with their peers; and

Whereas, IDEA has helped break down stereotypes and ignorance about people with disabilities, improving the quality of life and economic opportunity for millions of Americans; and

Whereas, when the federal government enacted IDEA, it promised to fund up to 40 percent of the average per pupil expenditure in public elementary and secondary schools in the United States; and

Whereas, the federal government currently funds, on average, less than 17 percent of the average per pupil expenditure in public elementary and secondary schools in the United States; and

Whereas, local school districts and state government end up bearing the largest share of the cost of special education services; and

Whereas, the federal government's failure to adequately fulfill its responsibility to special needs children undermines public support for special education and creates hardship for disabled children and their families; and

Whereas, the general court is currently challenged with the responsibility of defining and funding an adequate education for all children in this state; and

Whereas, these legislative efforts are significantly burdened and constrained by the costs incurred by the federal government's failure to meet its full financial promise under IDEA: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate, the House of Representatives concurring, That the New Hampshire general court urges the President and the Congress, prior to spending any surplus in the federal budget, to fund 40 percent of the average per pupil expenditure in public elementary and secondary schools in the United States as promised under IDEA to ensure that all children, regardless of disability, receive a quality education and are treated with the dignity and respect they deserve; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be forwarded by the senate clerk to the President of the United States, the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, the President of the United States Senate, and the members of the New Hampshire congressional delegation.

POM–188. A concurrent resolution adopted by the House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana urging Congress to take such actions as are necessary to forgive student loans of college graduates who move to Louisiana to support activities to rebuild and revitalize communities damaged by Hurricane Katrina or Rita; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 15

Whereas, there are currently student loan forgiveness programs administered by the United States Department of Education for Stafford Loan recipients who serve as teachers serving low-income students and some childcare providers serving in low-income areas; and

Whereas, there are currently student loan forgiveness programs administered by the United States Department of Education for Perkins Loan recipients who serve as teachers serving low-income students, Head Start staff, special education teachers or providers, members of the armed forces in an area of hostilities, Vista or Peace Corps volunteers, full-time law enforcement and corrections officers, full-time teachers in shortage areas, full-time nurses and medical technicians, and service providers to high-risk children and families in low-income communities; and

Whereas, the United States Military and federal agencies may pay all or a portion of an individual's student loans based on years of service; and

Whereas, these loan forgiveness and repayment programs, by decreasing the financial demands on recent college graduates, provide incentive for individuals to work in professions and for pay that would otherwise not be economically feasible; and

Whereas, the needs and demands for assistance in the areas damaged by Hurricanes Katrina and Rita to children and families exceed the services provided by education to low-income schools, the federal government, Vista, law enforcement, or the medical community: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Legislature of Louisiana does hereby memorialize the United States Congress to take such actions as are necessary to expand the student loan forgiveness programs currently provided by the United States Department of Education to provide for loan forgiveness of Stafford Loan and Perkins Loan recipients for college graduates who relocate to Louisiana to support efforts to rebuild and revitalize communities damaged by Hurricane Katrina or Rita; and be it further

Resolved, That such efforts shall include but not be limited to partial or total forgiveness of loans for individuals employed by public and nonprofit agencies and providing services to communities damaged by Hurricane Katrina or Rita; and be it futher

Resolved, That a copy of this Resolution be transmitted to the presiding officers of the Senate and the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States of America and to each member of the Louisiana congressional delegation.

POM–189. A resolution adopted by the House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana urging Congress to fulfill the commitment to the citizens of Louisiana to fully fund recovery from damages resulting from Hurricanes Katrina and Rita; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

HOUSE RESOLUTION NO. 68

Whereas, in August and September 2005, the state of Louisiana experienced two of the most damaging natural disasters to occur in the United States with Hurricanes Katrina and Rita; and

Whereas, as a result of these devastating events, the President's Office of Gulf Coast Rebuilding estimated that over one hundred twenty-seven thousand owner-occupied homes received major or severe damage based on the criteria used by the Federal Emergency Management Agency; and

Whereas, in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina, President George W. Bush made a commitment to the people of Louisiana, in a nationally covered statement, that the federal government would do what was necessary to provide for the recovery of the state and its citizens; and

Whereas, the state of Louisiana has always proposed that The Road Home Program pay for owner-occupied uninsured or underinsured wind damage as well as flood damage within the parameters of the program; and

Whereas, in Action Plan Amendment No.1 proposed by the Louisiana Recovery Authority, captioned Action Plan Amendment for Disaster Recovery Funds for The Road Home Housing Program, which, according to news releases, was approved by the United States Department of Housing and Urban Affairs in May 2006, it was clearly stated in the program proposed to provide "the full proposed assistance to all of the Louisiana homeowners who suffered major or severe damage" and stated, "It is the State's policy that participants in the Homeowner Assistance Program deserve a fair and independent estimate or projection of damages from the storm, regardless of the cause of the damage"; and

Whereas, according to federal sources, 43,298 homeowners experienced no major flooding but major or severe wind damage; and

Whereas, since the adoption of the Action Plan Amendment No.1, the state has experienced increased costs in the program, resulting in a current three billion dollar shortfall, duly from a combination of factors, including an increase in the number of eligible claimants from the original estimates by approximately eleven thousand, more homes severely damaged than originally estimated, increased costs per eligible claimant than originally estimated, lower than anticipated homeowner property insurance claim benefits received from private insurers, and higher than estimated costs of repair and construction: Therefore, be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives of the Legislature of Louisiana memorializes the Congress of the United States and urges and requests the federal administration to fulfill the commitment to the citizens of Louisiana to fully fund recovery from damages resulting from Hurricanes Katrina and Rita; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this Resolution be transmitted to the secretary of the United States Senate and the clerk of the United States House of Representatives, to each member of the Louisiana delegation to the United States Congress, and to the president of the United States.

POM–190. A concurrent resolution adopted by the House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana urging Congress to take such actions as are necessary to grant an extension to Louisiana with regard to the deadlines for implementing the provisions of the Adam Walsh Child Protection and Safety Act of 2006; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 251

Whereas, the United States Congress enacted the Adam Walsh Child Protection and Safety Act of 2006 to provide for a comprehensive national system for the registration of sex offenders and child predators; and

Whereas, the Act provides for a set of minimum standards governing the sex offender registration and notification programs in each state to provide for a more effective method of tracking offenders nationwide; and

Whereas, the federal legislation made significant changes in the manner in which sex offenders and child predators register with law enforcement agencies, including but not limited to requiring offenders to provide additional information to law enforcement at the time of registration, increasing the length of time in which an offender must maintain registration, and requiring offenders to register in the jurisdiction of residence, employment, or enrollment; and

Whereas, Section 126 of the Adam Walsh Child Protection and Safety Act of 2006 authorizes bonus payments for states or other jurisdictions that substantially implement the federal provisions not later than two years after the enactment date; and

Whereas, although the federal legislation created incentive grant programs for those states who implement the new requirements within the first two years after the enactment of the Adam Walsh Act, the United States Department of Justice only recently issued the proposed National Guidelines for Sex Offender Registration and Notification, which were intended to provide further guidance to states in implementing the provisions of the Adam Walsh Act; and

Whereas, the proposed National Guidelines for Sex Offender Registration and Notification were issued in May of this year, over a month after the 2007 Regular Session of the Louisiana Legislature began; and

Whereas, these guidelines, although issued in May, will not become finalized prior to the end of the 2007 Regular Session and are subject to change until that time; and

Whereas, legislation was introduced in the Louisiana Legislature by Representative Cazayoux (House Bill No. 970) to amend Louisiana's sex offender registration and notification provisions to comply with the provisions of the federal Adam Walsh Child Protection and Safety Act of 2007; and

Whereas, once the National Guidelines for Sex Offender Registration and Notification are finalized, it will be necessary to review and analyze Louisiana's laws on sex offender registration and notification to determine if additional changes are necessary: Therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Legislature of Louisiana does hereby memorialize the United States Congress to take such actions as are necessary to grant an extension to Louisiana with regard to the deadlines for implementing the provisions of the Adam Walsh Child Protection and Safety Act of 2006, and federal guidelines adopted pursuant thereto, regarding Louisiana's eligibility to receive incentive grants created by the Adam Walsh Act; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this Resolution be transmitted to the presiding officers of the Senate and the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States of America and to each member of the Louisiana congressional delegation.

POM-191. A concurrent resolution adopted by the House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana urging Congress to take such actions as are necessary to ensure the passage of the Online Pharmacy Consumer Protection Act of 2007; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 106

Whereas, a great number of rogue online pharmacy web sites offer controlled substances for sale based simply on the results of a cursory online questionnaire and without the need for a valid prescription; and

Whereas, Senators Dianne Feinstein of California and Jeff Sessions of Alabama have introduced Senate Bill No. 980 in the first session of the One Hundred Tenth Congress, the Online Pharmacy Consumer Protection Act of 2007, to combat abuse by rogue online pharmacy web sites; and

Whereas, the Act requires a valid prescription and physician-patient relationship in order for a controlled substance to be dispensed through an online pharmacy; and

Whereas, the Act requires an online pharmacy to file a registration statement with the attorney general as well as report controlled substances dispensed under such registration; and

Whereas, the Act mandates that an online pharmacy comply with state law licensure requirements for both the state from which it delivers a controlled substance and the state to which it delivers a controlled substance; and

Whereas, the Act requires that the web site of an online pharmacy prominently display identifying information about the business, a list of states in which the pharmacy is licensed, all applicable licenses and certifications, and identifying information about the practitioners who provide medical consultations through the web site; and

Whereas, the Act provides criminal penalties for any individual or entity who unlawfully dispenses controlled substances online, gives state attorneys general the right to file a civil action against an individual or entity who violates the Act if the violation has affected residents of the state, and allows the federal government to seize any tangible or intangible property which has been used illegally by an online pharmacy. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Legislature of Louisiana does hereby memorialize the United States Congress to take such actions as are necessary to ensure the passage of the Online Pharmacy Consumer Protection Act of 2007. Be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this Resolution be transmitted to the presiding officers of the Senate and the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States of America and to each member of the Louisiana congressional delegation.

POM-192. A resolution adopted by the Senate of the State of Texas urging Congress to support legislation for veterans' health care budget reform to allow assured funding; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

SENATE RESOLUTION NO. 594

Whereas, Military veterans who have served their country honorably and who were promised and have earned health care and benefits from the federal government through the Department of Veterans Affairs are now in need of these benefits; and

Whereas, Federal discretionary funding is controlled by the executive branch and the United States Congress through the budget and appropriations process; and

Whereas, Direct funding provides the Department of Veterans Affairs with a reliable, predictable, and consistent source of funding to provide timely, efficient, and high-quality health care for our veterans; and

Whereas, Currently almost 90 percent of federal health care spending is direct rather than discretionary, and only the funding for health care for active duty military, Native Americans, and veterans is subject to the discretion of the United States Congress; and

Whereas, Discretionary funding for health care lags behind both medical inflation and the increased demand for services; for example, the enrollment for veterans' health care increased 134 percent between fiscal years 1996 and 2004 yet funding increased only 34 percent during the same period when adjusted to 1996 dollars; and

Whereas, The Department of Veterans Affairs is the largest integrated health care system in the United States and has four critical health care missions: to provide health care to veterans, to educate and train health care personnel, to conduct medical research, and to serve as a backup to the United States Department of Defense and support communities in times of crisis; and

Whereas, The Department of Veterans Affairs operates 157 hospitals, with at least one in each of the contiguous states, Puerto Rico, and the District of Columbia; and

Whereas, The Department of Veterans Affairs operates more than 850 ambulatory care and community-based outpatient clinics, 132 nursing homes, 42 residential rehabilitation treatment programs, and 88 home care programs; and

Whereas, The Department of Veterans Affairs provides a wide range of specialized services to meet the unique needs of veterans, including spinal cord injury and dysfunction care and rehabilitation, blind rehabilitation, traumatic brain injury care, post-traumatic stress disorder treatment, amputee care and prosthetics programs, mental health and substance abuse programs, and long-term care programs; and

Whereas, The Department of Veterans Affairs health care system is severely underfunded, and had funding for the department's medical programs been allowed to grow proportionately as the system sought to admit newly eligible veterans following the eligibility reform legislation in 1996, the current veterans' health care budget would be approximately $10 billion more; and

Whereas, In a spirit of bipartisan accommodation, members of the United States Congress should collectively resolve the problem of discretionary funding and jointly fashion an acceptable formula for funding the medical programs of the Department of Veterans Affairs; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate of the State of Texas, 80th Legislature, hereby express its profound gratitude the for sacrifices made by veterans, including those who suffer from medical or mental health problems resulting from injuries that occurred while serving in the United States Armed Forces at home or abroad; and, be it further

Resolved, That the Senate hereby respectfully urge the Congress of the United States to support legislation for veterans' health care budget reform to allow assured funding; and, be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate forward official copies of this Resolution to the Secretary of Veterans Affairs, to the President of the United States, to the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President of the Senate of the United States Congress, and to all the members of the Texas delegation to the Congress with the request that this Resolution be officially entered in the Congressional Record as a memorial to the Congress of the United States of America.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Ms. KLOBUCHAR (for herself, Mr. ALEXANDER, and Mr. LIEBERMAN):

S. 1905. A bill to provide for a rotating schedule for regional selection of delegates to a national Presidential nominating convention, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Rules and Administration.

Mr. ALEXANDER. Mr. President, today I joined Senators KLOBUCHAR and LIEBERMAN in introducing the Regional Presidential Primary and Caucus Act. Our legislation would establish a rotating schedule of regional presidential primaries and caucuses.

We introduced this legislation because we agree that the Presidential nomination system is broken. The American dream that "any boy or girl can grow up to be President" has become a nightmare.

Crowded schedules and government restraints on contributions close primaries to worthy competitors. States racing to schedule early contests have made the nomination process too long and expensive. As a result, media and money make decisions voters should make.

The National Football League schedules 16 contests over 5 months to determine its champions. The Presidential nominating process uses the equivalent of two preseason contests in Iowa and New Hampshire to narrow the field to two or three and sometimes pick the winner.

If professional football were Presidential politics, SportsCenter would pick the Super Bowl teams after two preseason games.

The problem is not Iowa and New Hampshire. The problem is what comes after Iowa and New Hampshire. At least 18 States will choose delegates in a 1-day traffic jam on February 5 next year.

The legislation we introduced today requires States to spread out the primaries and caucuses into a series of regional contests over four months. Beginning in 2012, States could only schedule primaries and caucuses during the first weeks of March, April, May, and June of Presidential years.

The traditional warm up contests in Iowa and New Hampshire would still come first, but they would return to their proper role as "off-Broadway" opportunities for lesser known candidates to become well-enough known to compete on the 4-month-long big stage.

In addition, at the appropriate time I will offer an amendment to this legislation that would allow Presidential candidates to raise up to $20 million in individual contribution amounts of up to $10,000, indexed for inflation. The current limit of $2,300 makes it too hard for many worthy but unknown candidates to raise enough early money to be taken seriously—leaving the field to the rich—who constitutionally can spend their own funds—and famous.

Together, these two reforms—spreading out the primaries and allowing a "start-up" fund for candidates—will increase the pool of good candidates willing to run for the White House and give more Americans the opportunity to hear their ideas and to cast a meaningful vote.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have the following documents printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD: a David Broder column, "No Way to Choose a President," that ran in the May 10, 2007 issue of The Washington Post; Remarks that I delivered on the floor of the Senate on February 2, 2004 titled "Two Super Bowls"; and a lecture I delivered at the Heritage Foundation on May 23, 1996 titled "Off With the Limits: What I Learned About Money and Politics When I Ran for President."

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

No Way To Choose A President

(By David S. Broder)

The true insanity of the altered presidential primary schedule does not become apparent until you actually lay out the proposed dates on a 2008 calendar.

The mad rush of states to advance their nominating contests in hopes of gaining more influence has produced something so contrary to the national interest that it cries out for action.

The process is not over. Just last week, Florida jumped the line by moving its primary up to Jan. 29, a week ahead of the Feb. 5 date when—unbelievably—22 states may hold delegate selection contests, either primaries or caucuses.

Florida's move crowds the traditional lead-off primary in New Hampshire, which had been set for Jan. 22. And New Hampshire is unhappy about the competition from two caucuses planned even earlier in January, in Iowa and Nevada. So its secretary of state, William M. Gardner, who has unilateral authority to set the New Hampshire voting date, is threatening to jump the rivals, even if it means voting before New Year's Day.

This way lies madness.

Instead of there being a steady progression of contests, challenging and whittling the field of contenders in the wide-open races to select a successor to George W. Bush, it is going to be a herky-jerky, feast-or-famine exercise that looks more like Russian roulette than anything that tests who can best fill the most powerful secular office on Earth.

As things stand, the earliest contests in Iowa, Nevada, New Hampshire, South Carolina and Florida will be followed by that indigestible glut of races on Feb. 5.

On that day, voters in the mega-states of California, Illinois, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania and Texas will all be called upon to judge the fields of contenders. And so will voters of 17 smaller states, ranging from Alabama to Oregon and from Delaware to Utah.

Most of those voters will never have had an opportunity to get even a glance at the candidates. All they will know is what the ads tell them—and what the media can supply, when reporters are exhausting themselves dashing after the race from state to state.

Assuming everyone is not burned out, the survivors of this ordeal will find things slowing to a crawl—and then screeching to a halt.

Maryland and Virginia hold primaries on Feb. 12, and Wisconsin a week later. Then there's a two-week gap, with only the Hawaii and Idaho caucuses, until Massachusetts, Minnesota, Ohio and Vermont vote on March 4.

At that point, presidential politics effectively stops for more than two months. Between March 4 and the May 6 contests in Indiana and North Carolina, the only scheduled events are a primary in Mississippi and the Maine Republican caucuses.

This crazy calendar sets up one of two scenarios—both scary. If one candidate in each party wraps up the nomination by gaining momentum in the January contests and amassing delegates on Feb. 5, we will be looking at the longest, most-dragged-out general election ever. The conventions are late in 2008; the Democrats' the last week in August, the Republicans' the first week in September. The time from February to Labor Day will be boring beyond belief.

But if nothing is decided by the night of Feb. 5, the chance of a quirky result from the oddity of the political geography of the remaining states will be greatly increased. Democrats will have to compete in Indiana and North Carolina, where they rarely win in November. Republicans will be judged in Massachusetts and Vermont, where their party membership is minuscule.

None of this helps the country get the best-qualified candidates, and none of it helps either party put forward its best candidate.

The situation screams for repair. In my view, the parties would be well advised to make the necessary fixes themselves, rather than wait for Congress to devise remedial legislation.

The mandate for the next pair of national party chairmen should be to agree on a sensible national agenda for the primaries—either a rotating regional system that gives all states a turn at being early or a plan that allows a random mix of states to vote, but only on dates fixed in advance by the parties, and separated at intervals that allow voters to consider seriously their choices.

It would be close to criminal to allow a repeat of this coming year's folly in 2012.

Two Super Bowls

Mr. ALEXANDER. Mr. President, I rise to propose that we turn the Presidential nominating process over to the National Football League, except for Super Bowl half-time shows. Then maybe we can have a second Super Bowl, where anything is possible and everyone can participate.

Take the example of our colleague Senator Kerry's team—I am sure the Senator from Vermont will be quick to point out it is the team of many Senators from New England—the New England Patriots. Last night, they became the Super Bowl champions.

On September 12, in the season's first game, the Buffalo Bills trounced the Patriots 31 to 0. If this had been the first-in-the-Nation Presidential nominating caucus, the Patriots would have been toast. You know the pundits' rule: Only three tickets out of Iowa. The Patriots certainly didn't look like one of the three best professional football teams. Then, the Washington Redskins defeated the Patriots, as unlikely as it would have been for Dennis Kucinich to upend Senator Kerry in New Hampshire. But in the National Football League, upsets don't end the season. The Patriots played 14 more games. They won them all. Yesterday, they beat the Carolina Panthers in the Super Bowl for their 15th consecutive win.

The National Football League schedules 20 weeks of contests over 5 months to determine its champion. The Presidential nominating process, on the other hand, uses the equivalent of two preseason games in Iowa and New Hampshire to narrow the field to two or three—and sometimes they effectively I pick the winner.

The NFL wasn't always so wise. In the 1930s, league owners rearranged schedules after the first few games so that teams that were doing well could play one another. This was good for the Chicago Bears, for example, but not for the league. Fans in other cities quit going to the games—just as voters in most States have quit voting in Presidential primaries.

Bears owner George Halas and others created today's competitive system in which almost any one of 32 teams can hope to make the playoffs. Green Bay can make it because the league makes sure that even smalltown teams have enough revenue. Prime-time television opportunities are rotated. Each Monday, senior officials in the league's New York office grade every call and no call to second-guess even the instant replays.

Professional football has become America's game because it symbolizes the most important aspect of the American character: If you work hard and play by the rules, anything is possible. As a result, 8 of 10 of the most watched network television shows have been Super Bowls; 98 of the 100 best watched cable television games have been NFL games.

Every September, the NFL fields 32 teams, almost all with a shot at the playoffs. Every 4 years, the Presidential nominating process does well to attract a half dozen credible candidates for the biggest job in the world. All but half are effectively eliminated after two contests. If professional football were Presidential politics, Sportscenter would pick the Super Bowl teams after 3 or 4 preseason games.

These two steps would fix the Presidential nominating process:

No. 1, spread out the primaries. Twenty-eight primaries are crammed into 5 weeks after New Hampshire. Congress should assume the role of Paul Tagliabue. Create a window between February and May during which primaries may be held every 2 weeks. Iowa and New Hampshire could still come first, but they would become off-Broadway warmups and not the whole show.

The second step that would fix the process would be to allow more money—to raise their first $10 million, let candidates collect individual "start-up contributions" of up to $10,000. Today's $2,000 limit makes it impossible for most potential candidates to imagine how to raise, say, $40 million. During 1995, when I was a candidate and the individual limit on contributions was $1,000, I fattened 250 fundraisers in that 1 year to collect $10 million. The combination of the new $2,000 limit, the increased coverage of new cable channels, and the growth of the Internet have made it easier to raise money.

Still all but Senator Kerry was short of cash after New Hampshire. Put it this way: The Packers would never make it to the playoffs under the revenue rules of Presidential primaries.

Mr. President, 45,000 Iowans voted for John Kerry in the first caucus. About 83,000 New Hampshirites voted for him in the first primary. More Americans actually attended last night's Super Bowl game in Houston, TX, than voted in either Iowa or New Hampshire. Ninety million others watched the Super Bowl game on television.

Perhaps we should learn something from America's game about how to pick a President. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. ALEXANDER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Off With the Limits: What I Learned About Money and Politics When I Ran for President

(By Lamar Alexander)

On March 3, one day after the disastrous—for me—South Carolina primary and three days before I withdrew from the presidential race, I attended Sunday services at the Peachtree Presbyterian Church in Atlanta. The Rev. Frank Harrington preached about how Joshua, after a great victory at the Battle of Jericho, had been surprised and humiliated in the battle of A'i—so humiliated that Joshua renamed A'i the "Valley of Calamity." He wanted his warriors always to remember the lessons of what had happened there.

Walking out after the service, I asked Rev. Harrington, "Was the point that I should rename South Carolina the 'Valley of Calamity?'"

"No," he said, "the point is, you must learn lessons from your defeat—and then pick yourself up and go on."

The voters, in their wisdom, have given me a defeat, and now several weeks to reflect upon its lessons. The Heritage Foundation has invited me today to talk about one of those lessons: the influence of money on the race for the presidency. While my wounds are fresh, here is my view: The so-called campaign reformers are selling the American people a real bill of goods on this one. They are saying that limits on what individuals can give to presidential campaigns and on what candidates can spend will reduce the influence of money and create a better democracy.

In fact, such limits do precisely the reverse. We now have 22 years of experience with them. Limits have increased the influence of money and are dangerous to democracy. It is the law of unintended consequences operating in all of its glory. Instead of adding more limits, we should take the limits off and rely on full disclosure to discourage corruption.

The limits on giving and spending for a presidential campaign were well-intentioned, placed into federal law after Watergate. Corporations can't give at all; political action committees may give up to $5,000; and individuals may give up to $1,000 during the primaries (the government pays for the general election). In addition, there are limits on what a candidate may spend in each state primary and a ceiling on spending for the entire primary. The Federal Election Commission enforces all of this.

The limits were designed to make things better for you, the average voter, so let's look at what they have done. As a result of these limits:

You are more likely to see a comet than meet a presidential candidate, unless you have $1,000—or live in Iowa or New Hampshire;

You have fewer choices of candidates;

The primary campaigns start before you care and end before you have a chance to vote;

You are less likely to hear the candidates' messages;

Your nominee is more likely to be someone already holding office, rather than an insurgent;

More of your choices are among candidates who are rich enough to spend their own money; and

Washington, DC., has more to say about who the nominee is and you have less. In short, the federal limits on giving and spending during elections are turning presidential races into playgrounds for the rich, the already famous, and the Washington-based, and are helping to deprive most Americans of the opportunity to cast a meaningful vote.

When we create a system for picking Presidents, I believe our objectives should be these:

We should want the largest number of good candidates.

We should want a good opportunity to hear what they have to say.

All of us, if possible, want the opportunity to cast a meaningful vote. If this is also your set of objectives, then here is my remedy: Off with the limits. Off with the limits on individual contributions. Off with the spending limits. Require maximum disclosure. Open up the system. Let the candidates speak. Let us vote.

Three Disclaimers—Before you think it, let me say it:

First, I am not here to wallow in gloom. In fact, I come away from the campaign more optimistic, not less. I would do it again in a minute. I believe even more that there is very little wrong with our country that more jobs, better schools, and stronger families won't fix.

Second, I believe I can make these remarks in the spirit of a gracious loser. That is made easier because our process produced a nominee whom I respect, who is my friend, and who I will be proud to call my President. Under any process, Bob Dole was our party's most likely nominee this year. (I will confess that my determination to be a gracious loser is tested about once a week when I remember what another defeated Tennessean, Davy Crockett, once said. Congressman Crockett strode to the courthouse steps, faced the voters who had just turned him out of office, and said what every defeated candidate has always wanted to say to such voters: "I'm going to Texas and you can go to hell")

Finally, I am not here to complain because Steve Forbes spent $33 million of his own wealth on his presidential campaign. I believe the First Amendment to our Constitution gives Mr. Forbes the right to spend his money to advance his views. The Rockefellers and Perots and Forbeses and du Ponts all have made valuable contributions to our public life. I hope they continue to do so. What I object to, as I will discuss, is letting them spend all they want and then putting limits on the rest of us. What I am arguing—that it is wrong to put limits on giving and spending—runs smack in the face of what we have been hearing ever since Watergate. So let me take my points one by one. What I have to contribute is a view from the inside. I will stick to my impressions and stories from the road and let scholars here at Heritage and elsewhere compile the statistics and perform the analysis.

Because of the limits, you're more likely to see a comet than meet a presidential candidate, unless you have $1,000—or live in Iowa and New Hampshire.

Of course, not everybody wants to meet a presidential candidate. Walking across New Hampshire, I met a woman taking a work break outside a shoe factory in Manchester. I stuck out my hand and said, "I'm Lamar Alexander. I'd like to be your next President." She looked at me, and at my red and black shirt, and said with disgust, "That's all we need. Another President!" Congressman Mo Udall used to tell about walking into a barber shop. "I'm Mo Udall, running for President," he said. "Yeah, I know," the barber replied. "We were just laughing about that yesterday."

But if you are one of those persons who would actually like to meet and size up someone who might be your President, get your wallet ready because the $1,000 limit on giving forces candidates to spend most of their time with people who can give $1,000. As with many federal laws, these limits have done just exactly the opposite of what they were intended to do. Limits have increased the influence of money on the candidates.

For example, to raise $10 million in 1995 for the Alexander for President campaign, I traveled to 250 fund-raising events. Now, think about this. This is about one event per campaign day. This took 70 percent of all my time. As a result, I became unusually well acquainted with a great many good Americans capable of giving $1,000 (who probably represent a cross section of about one percent of all the people in the country). Wouldn't I have been a better candidate, and the country better off had I been elected, if I had spent more time traveling around America and visiting allies abroad? (I actually did this during 1994, driving 8,800 miles across America and spending two months overseas. This was when I was not spending most of my time meeting nice people who could give me $1,000.)

Because of the limits, you have fewer choices for President.

This is because, in the real world, a $1,000 limit on gifts makes fund-raising so difficult that it discourages most candidates. I will now wave my own red flag: It is important not to get carried away with this argument. The difficulty of raising money is sometimes just an excuse. There are other more compelling reasons not to run for President.

For example, I recall in November of 1995, when Colin Powell was on the cover of the news magazines and his approval rating in the polls was, literally, higher than the Pope's—and I was struggling to secure a paragraph in the Keokuk, Iowa, daily—I was driving to the airport after a New York fund-raiser with a former associate of General Powell's. The unavoidable question arose, "Will Colin run?" The former associate answered, "I don't know. But I can tell you two things about General Powell. One is, he makes rational decisions. Two is, he doesn't like uncertainty." I knew from that moment that, if that were true, there was no chance whatsoever Colin would be a candidate. Running for President is not a rational decision. It is instinctive. It is a passion with a purpose. And it is most surely a symphony in uncertainty. That is why I am so surprised that so many have such a hard time taking Colin Powell at his word, that he simply doesn't want to do it. Most people don't. They don't want the job, or they are afraid they can't win, or more and more they are unwilling to expose themselves and their families to the scrutiny that comes with the candidacy.

Having said all of that, it is still true that the prospect of trying to raise $20 million from contributions of $1,000 or less makes the race much less attractive and often impossible for many good candidates. In 1995, Bill Bennett told me he didn't know how to raise that kind of money. Jack Kemp said he knew how but didn't want to. Dan Quayle and Dick Cheney discovered it would have been very hard even for a former Vice President and a former Defense Secretary; they both decided not to become candidates.

You might have wondered this year, where have all the governors gone? I don't think I have ever met a governor who didn't think he or she would make an excellent President. Seventeen of our Presidents have been governors. There are today 32 Republican governors. One might argue (and I will confess that I tried out this argument a few hundred times during 1995) that the natural presidential partner for our strong Republican congressional leaders would have been the best of our Republican governors.

But at the end of 1995, not one sitting Republican governor was in the race. Carroll Campbell, Tommy Thompson, and Bill Weld, perhaps others, had considered it and drawn back, privately saying, "I can't raise the money." Even the governor of California, Pete Wilson, who by my calculation is governor of 5 percent of all the money in the world, could not raise enough money. So, for Republicans, 1995 turned out to be the year of the "money primary."

This is how it worked. There were, in the end, only four of us who could find a way to raise enough money to run for President. We all had certain advantages. For example, a contribution to Bob Dole was also a contribution to the respected Senate majority leader. Phil Gramm had worked relentlessly for six years as chairman of the Senate Republican Campaign Committee to build a list of 83,000 names and a $5 million campaign kitty, which he then transferred to his presidential account—a perfectly legal loophole, but one which was unavailable to the governors or others not holding office. Pat Buchanan was able to depend on direct mail for smaller contributions because it was his second race, he had been on network television for 15 years, and he took, shall we say, especially noisy positions.

The Alexander campaign had some advantages, too: exceptional national leadership and strong support at home. Six of the last seven Republican national finance chairs chaired our fund-raising. We began with a $2 million dinner in Nashville on March 6, 1995, and raised $5.2 million in 21 events during the next six weeks. At the end of 1995, the three zip codes in America which had contributed the most to presidential campaigns were all in Nashville. By the time I withdrew, we had raised nearly $13 million from 26,000 contributors, 8,800 of whom had given $1,000. (We received another $4 million from federal matching funds.)

But after the initial $5.2 million spurt, it became much harder for us. I was traveling to 20 events per month to raise $500,000. This created logistical adventures of Desert Storm proportions. On one day, I flew from Nashville to Colorado Springs to Denver for fundraisers and then on to Phoenix to be ready for an early morning breakfast. To collect $20,000 during the crucial week before the Iowa caucus, I "dropped by" Knoxville, Tennessee, on the way from New Hampshire to Iowa. To raise another $30,000, I flew from Sioux City, Iowa, to San Juan, Puerto Rico, one Sunday in December. By the last four days of the New Hampshire primary, we were running on empty except for the money set aside for debts, audit, and winding down.

Then, when I placed a strong third in the Iowa caucus on February 12, the money dam broke. Beginning three days after Iowa, five days before the New Hampshire primary, contributions started rolling in to our Nashville headquarters at the rate of $1,000,000 a day without events. This continued for every day except Sunday, until I withdrew on March 6. Our once-a-week telephone conference calls sometimes included more than 200 volunteer fund-raisers. But it came too late, for New Hampshire ads had to be purchased the Friday before the primary on Tuesday. I failed (by 7,000 votes) to overtake Senator Dole. The Republican nomination was decided in the first primary.

Partly because of the limits, the campaign starts before you care and ends before you have a chance to vote.

Not only did the campaign end early; it started ridiculously early because, it seemed at the time, starting early was the only way to raise the necessary amount of money. In early 1995, Senator Gramm of Texas, flush with his 83,000 names and $5 million kitty, declared that it would take $20 million to run for President, that he could raise it and that he doubted many others could, and then sponsored a $4 million kick-off dinner in Dallas and announced, "Ready cash is a candidate's best friend."

None of the rest of us were about to be left behind. I held my $2 million dinner in Nashville. Senator Dole jumped in, as did others. Off we went, pounding the streets in 1995 trying to raise money for a race in 1996. It was like trying to stir up a conversation about football in the middle of the NBA playoffs. For me, by mid-summer 1995, it was going something like this interview:

From Washington, D.C., "Inside Politics," Wolf Blitzer (already bored with the long "money primary"): "Governor Alexander, why do the polls show Senator Dole ahead of you 54 to 4 in Iowa?"

From Vermont, in my red and black shirt, Me (already tired of being asked the same question for the 50th time): "Wolf, that's the dumbest question I've ever heard. The reason Senator Dole is ahead of me is that everyone knows him and nobody knows me."

Now, add to the cost of creating such a long campaign the usual costs of fund-raising. A rule of thumb is that it costs 30 cents to raise a dollar. That meant that of the $10 million we raised in 1995, about $3.5 million went for fund-raising. Then there is the cost of complying with federal regulations. Another $1 million of the $10 million we raised during 1995 went for that. We set aside still another $500,000 for the campaign audit, which usually takes years. I think you can see where I am heading.

Add the costs of the long campaign to the usual costs of fund-raising and complying with federal rules and, by the time the 1995 money primary was over and the real primary in 1996 was here, the handful of us still standing (except for Mr. Forbes) were running out of money. The Alexander campaign spent $10 million during 1995, everything we raised, which left us about $3 million in the bank (counting federal matching funds) at the beginning of 1996. And, by comparison, we were running a bare-bones effort. Senator Gramm had spent $28 million when he dropped out just before the first primary in midFebruary. Senator Dole had spent more than $30 million by March 1 and, with 39 primaries yet to go, was coming uncomfortably close to the federally imposed primary spending ceiling. Steve Forbes spent $33 million before he dropped out. I'm not sure whether my friend Pat has dropped out yet or not!

The reason why the Republican nomination was decided in the first primary is not only because limits on giving and spending forced the campaigns to start early. It is also because so many states moved their primaries to an earlier date in an attempt to give their citizens the same privilege Iowa and New Hampshire citizens have: the opportunity to cast a meaningful vote to pick the first President of the new century. This bunching of primaries created a wild roller coaster ride through 38 states in the 25 days after New Hampshire. Ironically, this made New Hampshire even more important. Here was the law of unintended consequences mischievously at work once again. The money primary became so long and expensive that we all arrived financially exhausted at the real starting line: New Hampshire, which turned out to be the finish line as well. About the time the voters had returned from the refrigerator to settle in and watch the presidential campaign unfold and perhaps even to vote in it the campaign had ended.

Because of the limits, you are less likely to hear the candidates' message.

This is because limits on giving and spending prevent most candidates from raising enough money to get across their messages, especially if the candidate is relatively unknown at the beginning. Let me offer an example. Yesterday's Newsweek contains a column by Meg Greenfield which says this: "The doomed Presidential campaign of Lamar Alexander should tell the Republicans something. It was the quintessential antigovernment pitch—complete with an implicit—and often explicit—denial and disavowal of Alexander's career as a government guy. He bombed."

Well, now, this is the stuff of a pretty good debate. Of course, I disagree with Ms. Greenfield. I think my campaign nearly succeeded because I understand that the next President must lead us to expect less from Washington and ask more of ourselves, including our local governmental institutions. Ms. Greenfield's and President Clinton's solution is more from Washington. So let the debate begin.

Ms. Greenfield has her page in Newsweek. She is also editorial director for the Washington Post. President Clinton has the best forum of all. Their "more from Washington" side of the argument will get plenty of exposure. But what about my "more from us" argument? I made my case in Iowa during 80 visits and walked 100 miles across New Hampshire. I found that in those small meetings I could be persuasive. I also found that nothing much happened in the public opinion polls until I was on television. "Free TV"—the network news—was not of much help (although some local stations were very aggressive). To begin with, the national networks didn't arrive until mid-January when the campaign was nearly over.

The Center for Media and Public Affairs watched all the network newscasts in January and February, ten-and-one-half hours of campaign coverage. The Center found that we nine Republican candidates were allotted 79 minutes total. We were allowed to present our views in seven-second sound bites. The journalists covering us received five times as many minutes of coverage on those same newscasts. What the journalists said about us and our campaigns was more negative than what we candidates said about each other. And more than half the journalists' comments were about the horse race, not the issues. The Freedom Forum, in a remarkable survey of the journalists covering the presidential campaign, found that in 1992, 89 percent had voted for Bill Clinton. A candidate cannot rely on "Free TV" to get his message across. That is why, in our media-drenched society, where things are not important unless they are on TV, a candidate must have money for television to get a message across, and the limits on giving and spending make it difficult for candidates to do that.

This is not just one candidate's lament. Limits on giving and spending are an affront to the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. The whole idea of the framers of the Bill of Rights was to keep the government from attempting to limit political debate and criticism: "Congress shall make no law abridging the freedom of speech." In Buckley v. Valeo, the Supreme Court acknowledged this and struck down most congressional limits of this sort, but left standing the current provisions because of its worry about "corruption." I believe the better antidote to corruption is disclosure. To correct something bad, we have created something worse.

Because of limits, your nominee is more likely to be an incumbent than an insurgent.

In the real world, insurgents not only need more money than incumbents; they need it early. The New York Times reported that two-thirds of voters in New Hampshire made their minds up during the last week before the primary, after the Iowa caucuses. Among those voters, I won with 31 percent. Among the one-third who voted before Iowa, I received six percent. More money, earlier, might have helped get my message across to those early deciders.

Candidates for President who already hold public office have government-paid staffs of policy advisers, PR people, and political administrators. They have name recognition and franking privileges. They have a fund-raising advantage because of their positions of power. If they are in Washington, they have a huge media advantage because that is where the media are. So putting a limit on what all candidates can raise and spend turns out to be a protection policy for some candidates: the ones who already enjoy the perquisites of public office.

This is not just true in federal races. My home state, Tennessee, has just limited contributions to governors' races to $500. This is an enormous advantage for our incumbent Republican governor, Don Sundquist. And it virtually guarantees that the only effective candidate against Governor Sundquist when he runs for re-election will be someone who is so rich that he can spend his or her own money—which brings us to the most important point.

Because of the limits, more of your choices are likely to be rich candidates willing to spend their own money.

This brings us to the major problem with limits on campaign giving and spending: The limits apply to some candidates but not to others. This is because the U.S. Supreme Court has said that the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution prohibits Congress from preventing anyone from spending his or her own money on our own campaigns. So the limits apply only to people who aren't rich enough to spend money on their own campaign.

This creates an absurd advantage for wealthy candidates and a distorted contest for the voter. The first advantage is the obvious: The wealthy candidate has more money to spend. For example, Mr. Forbes spent $33 million of (mostly) his own money; I spent, with matching funds, about $16 million of other peoples' money.

There are two other less obvious advantages. The candidate with his own money spends no time raising it. On the other hand, the candidate raising it is careening from event to event, repeating speeches, meeting nice people who can give $1,000, wearing himself ragged, and using up 70 percent of his time. By the time you reach the finals the week between Iowa and New Hampshire, you are a candidate for a fitness center, not the presidency.

Finally, there are the state-by-state spending limits, which also help the rich. The federal government has decreed, for example, that a campaign may not spend more than $1 million in Iowa and $618,000 in New Hampshire during the presidential primaries. Mr. Forbes, unaffected by these limits, spent $5 million in Iowa on television. The Alexander campaign spent $930,000. The AP reported that on the third week before the New Hampshire primary, Mr. Forbes bought 700 ads on one Boston television station (which covers southern New Hampshire). That week, Senator Dole bought 200 ads on that station. The Alexander campaign: None. Mr. Forbes must have spent $5 million in Arizona, by my estimates. Local newspapers said it was more than any advertiser had ever spent on local television to introduce a new product. (It must be pointed out that having your own money doesn't automatically mean you win. Mr. Perot is not President. Mr. Forbes came in fourth in both Iowa and New Hampshire. I recall my race for governor in 1978 against a candidate who must have spent $8 million. I spent $2 million, enough to win, although I could never have raised $2 million if there had been limits of $500 or $1,000 per contribution.)

What kind of contest is this, having different rules for different contestants? This is like watching the Magic play the Bulls with one team wearing handcuffs. It is certainly not the game the voters paid to see. Think of it this way: Say the fifth grade teacher organizes a contest for class president with water pistols as the weapon of choice; then some kid arrives with a garden hose. Either take away the new kid's garden hose (Bill Bradley suggests a constitutional amendment to limit what individuals can spend on their own campaigns) or give the rest of the fifth graders the freedom to raise and spend enough money to buy their own garden hoses. And if the New Hampshire primary is most of the ball game in presidential primaries, why should state-by-state spending limits keep candidates from defending themselves, even if they use up all their money?

Because of the limits, Washington has more to say about who the nominee is and you have less.

Talking about Washington these days has gotten to be a sticky business. The rest of the country is tired of Washington, and Washington is tired of hearing about Washington. The rest of the country is becoming more offensive about its feelings, and Washington is becoming more defensive. "Cut their pay and send them home" still makes sense in Sioux City, but they call it nonsense here. One of Washington's most senior journalists told me sadly last year that "This town has grown too big for its britches." I have been coming and going from Washington off and on for 30 years and I believe that is true as well; but to come from outside Washington and say it, and to really believe it, is asking for trouble.

I believe our President must lead us to expect less from Washington and to ask more of ourselves. That is a message less frequently heard in Washington and more difficult to launch from outside Washington. For one thing, this is a media-drenched society, and the message-launchers—the media—are increasingly concentrated here. That will be more true in 2000 and 2004 than it was in 1996. The party fund-raising apparatus is here. The party leadership is here. The think tanks, if you will excuse me, are here. To receive maximum attention to my speech today, I am here. There are all sorts of good people here in Washington, but we of necessity, when we are here, talk mostly with each other.

REFORMING THE PROCESS

Limits on giving and spending make it less likely that a candidate based outside Washington can succeed. Such candidates, by their experience and skills, may be able to help make Washington more like the rest of America, rather than the rest of America more like Washington. I believe Washington will always be a better place if it is constantly refreshed by the strength of the country outside Washington. The way we pick Presidents today makes that more difficult. Limits are not all that is wrong.

The process should be deregulated. We should sunset the existing regulations and start over. Fewer rules and full disclosure should be the byword.

Spread out the primaries. Let Iowa and New Hampshire go first, in February or March, and then arrange all the other primaries on the second Tuesday of the next three months. This would give winners a chance to capitalize on success, voters a chance to digest new faces, and candidates a chance to actually meet voters.

The candidates should be given the opportunity to speak on television more often for themselves. My even mentioning this runs the same risks Dennis Rodman would take if he suggested some rule changes to a convention of NBA officials. So let me begin with some praise. Some print reporters sat through New Hampshire Lincoln Day dinners in the early stages of the money primary, in 1994 and 1995. C–SPAN and CNN labored valiantly and early. In January and February of 1996, the New York Times began printing some long excerpts of the candidates' speeches, and the networks began showing unedited stump speeches. But most of the coverage came late, or was about the horse race, or about candidates who were never going to run. Seventy-nine minutes of network exposure in seven-second sound bites for nine Republican candidates is pathetically little.

There are dangers to early voting. In a growing number of states, voters may vote a month or two before the election day. According to the Edison exit poll of 1996 New Hampshire primary voters, 40 percent of the voters made their minds up during the last three days before the primary. Those who cast their votes a month earlier were voting in quite a different race.

OTHER OPTIONS FOR REFORM

The first option is suggested by Senator Bill Bradley, whose sporting background must make him especially allergic to contests with one rule for some participants and another rule for others. Senator Bradley would try to create a level playing field by putting limits on everyone, in effect making Mr. Forbes live by the same rules I do.

This takes care of Mr. Forbes and me. But the AFL–CIO will still be able to run $35 million worth of TV ads attacking particular Republican candidates. The National Association of Wholesaler-Distributors will still be able to run ads slamming President Clinton's product liability veto. The National Restaurant Association will advertise that President Clinton is wrong about the minimum wage. The National Education Association will say I am wrong about school choice. The national political parties will raise tens of millions in "soft money." The President is the one person in America who is able to advocate the best interests of the country as a whole. Why should we limit the speech only of those who seek to speak for the country as a whole?

Senator Bradley should leave the First Amendment alone. The First Amendment is correct. It stands in the way of preventing ill-advised efforts by the government to limit a candidate's right to speak. And if there cannot be limits on most of us, why should there be limits on any of us?

A second option is public financing which we now have with the presidential general elections. But such taxpayer-funded campaigns still leave Mr. Perot and the AFL–CIO and other committees free to spend millions creating an unlevel playing field. Also, public financing leaves the media with more horsepower than the candidates themselves have. And I cannot fathom how public financing would work in a primary situation. Would the government have funded everyone who showed up at the Republican debates this season? If so, such funding would have produced countless more candidates. I am opposed to public financing. It is incestuous. It is an unnecessary use of taxpayers' money. It invites government regulations. It creates an unlevel playing field by favoring incumbents.

Finally, there are various proposals to require the media to give away TV time. (Such proposals would never work in a primary for the same reasons public financing could not work: How would you choose to whom to give it?) The lack of an opportunity for voters to consider the messages of candidates—especially insurgent candidates—is at the heart of the problem with our presidential process. But I am afraid these well-meaning proposals will drown in their own complexity and the law of unintended consequences will somehow rear its head again. Isn't the best solution for the media simply to cover the races and present the serious candidates on network news and in the newspapers more often on appropriate occasions, speaking for themselves?

FIND THE GOOD AND PRAISE IT

I mentioned at the beginning of my remarks that I came away from the campaign with a good feeling, not a bad feeling. My friend Alex Haley used to say, "Find the good and praise it," and I can easily do that about this process, even with its flaws. During the last year, I walked across New Hampshire, meeting several hundred people a day, spent 80 days in Iowa in maybe 200 meetings that ranged from 20 to 300 people, and had at least 50 meetings in Florida with the delegates to the Presidency III straw poll. During most of these meetings I was little known and unencumbered by the news media, so there was no disruption to the flow of the session.

I remember wishing time after time that anybody who had any sense of cynicism about our presidential selection process could be with me, like a fly on the wall, because they could not be cynical after hearing and seeing and feeling what I saw. The groups with whom I met always listened carefully. Most often, they wanted to talk about our jobs, our schools and our neighborhoods, and our families. In meeting after meeting, I came away certain that this is a nation hungry for a vision contest, not one willing to tolerate a trivial presidential election. I believe there is a great market in the American electorate for a full-fledged discussion about what kind of country we can have in the year 2000 and beyond.

As the song says, it is a long, long time from May 'til September when the presidential race really begins. One way to help fill this time usefully would be to review the way we pick Presidents and make certain that next time, in the new century, we have a process that attracts the largest number of good candidates, that gives them an opportunity to say and us to hear their messages, and gives as many of us as possible a chance to cast a meaningful vote.

One lesson I learned when I ran for President is that step one toward those objectives would be these four words: Off with the limits.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, I rise to state my support for the legislation Senators KLOBUCHAR, ALEXANDER, and I are introducing today to create a regional Presidential primary system effective in 2012.

The goal of this legislation is to transform what has become a tired, arbitrary, and exclusive presidential primary system that simply does not give enough voters the opportunity to weigh the ideas of candidates and choose the one they think would best represent their future.

Given the significance of choosing the most powerful officeholder in the world, our Presidential selection process must be a fair and deliberate one that tests the strength of the ideas and character of all the candidates and exposes them to the maximum number of voters.

Instead, what we have now is a confusing process that, with each passing Presidential election season, becomes more and more compressed, forcing States to move their primaries up earlier in the calendar year in order to give their citizens a chance to participate, and granting disproportionate influence to the early States.

Where 50 States once scattered their primaries throughout the first half of the election year—from January through June—this year, we have a system in which 39 caucuses or primaries will be held in January and February alone, up from 19 in 2004, with enough delegates at stake potentially to decide the nominee. Almost half the States of the Union will be excluded from that process.

There is another insidious effect of this increasingly condensed schedule: The more compressed the primary schedule is the more reliant candidates become on large campaign donations and the people who give them. The fundraising primary this year has already eliminated candidates who simply could not raise sufficient funds quickly enough to be competitive in the first 2 months of the Presidential year.

Our legislation offers a commonsense alternative that would transform the primary season into what it should be: a contest between candidates who take their cases to the broadest possible slice of the electorate.

I was honored to cosponsor proposals to bring reason to the Presidential primary system twice in the past—in 1996 and 1999—with former Senator Slade Gorton. What we are introducing today is very similar in that it calls for a regional, rotating primary system that divides the 50 States into four regions that would take turns holding primaries in the months of March, April, May, and June of the Presidential election year.

Specifically, the bill would asign all States to one of four regions—corresponding roughly to the Northeast, South, Midwest, and Western regions of the country. A lottery would determine which region goes first, and the regions would rotate in subsequent election years. Each State within a region must hold its primary or caucus during the period assigned to that region.

New Hampshire and Iowa would be permitted to continue holding the first primary and caucus, respectively, before any of the regional primaries would take place. I personally would have preferred to omit this provision in the bill. If we are going to change to a regional system, there should be no exceptions, and I am concerned that these two States will continue to have a disproportionate impact on the outcome of the nominating process. But Iowa and New Hampshire hold iconic status in the Presidential primary system and so they remain the first caucus and primary States in this bill.

The new system would take effect for the 2012 Presidential election.

By creating a series of regional primaries, we will make it more likely that all areas of the country have input into the nominee selection process, and that the candidates and their treasuries will not be stretched so thin by primaries all over the country on the same day. By spreading out the primaries over a 4-month period, we would provide the electorate with a better opportunity to evaluate the candidates over time. And with our bill, we hope that voters—not just financial contributors—will have the lion's share of influence over who the parties' nominees will be.

The guiding principle of our democracy is that every citizen has the opportunity to choose his or her leaders. But the sad truth is this principle no longer bears a resemblance to the reality of an increasingly squashed and arbitrary primary system.

We need to change our presidential primary system to make it more reasonable, more inclusive, and better structured so that it properly reflects the significance it holds—not only every 4 years but as a founding principle of our great Nation.

"(1) IN GENERAL.—In order to improve the access of Indians residing on or near a reservation to obtain benefits under the Medicaid and State children's health insurance programs established under titles XIX and XXI, the Secretary shall encourage the State to take steps to provide for enrollment on or near the reservation. Such steps may include outreach efforts such as the outstationing of eligibility workers, entering into agreements with the Indian Health Service, Indian Tribes, Tribal Organizations, and Urban Indian Organizations to provide outreach, education regarding eligibility and benefits, enrollment, and translation services when such services are appropriate.

"(2) CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in paragraph (1) shall be construed as affecting arrangements entered into between States and the Indian Health Service, Indian Tribes, Tribal Organizations, or Urban Indian Organizations for such Service, Tribes, or Organizations to conduct administrative activities under such titles.

"(b) REQUIREMENT TO FACILITATE COOPERATION.—The Secretary, acting through the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services, shall take such steps as are necessary to facilitate cooperation with, and agreements between, States and the Indian Health Service, Indian Tribes, Tribal Organizations, or Urban Indian Organizations with respect to the provision of health care items and services to Indians under the programs established under title XIX or XXI.

"(c) DEFINITION OF INDIAN; INDIAN TRIBE; INDIAN HEALTH PROGRAM; TRIBAL ORGANIZATION; URBAN INDIAN ORGANIZATION.—In this section, the terms 'Indian', 'Indian Tribe', 'Indian Health Program', 'Tribal Organization', and 'Urban Indian Organization' have the meanings given those terms in section 4 of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act.".

SEC. 203. DEMONSTRATION PROGRAM TO PERMIT STATES TO RELY ON FINDINGS BY AN EXPRESS LANE AGENCY TO DETERMINE COMPONENTS OF A CHILD'S ELIGIBILITY FOR MEDICAID OR CHIP.

(a) REQUIREMENT TO CONDUCT DEMONSTRATION PROGRAM.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall establish a 3-year demonstration program under which up to 10 States shall be authorized to rely on a finding made within the preceding 12 months by an Express Lane agency to determine whether a child has met 1 or more of the eligibility requirements, such as income, assets or resources, citizenship status, or other criteria, necessary to determine the child's initial eligibility, eligibility redetermination, or renewal of eligibility, for medical assistance under the State Medicaid plan or child health assistance under the State CHIP plan. A State selected to participate in the demonstration program—

(A) shall not be required to direct a child (or a child's family) to submit information or documentation previously submitted by the child or family to an Express Lane agency that the State relies on for its Medicaid or CHIP eligibility determination; and

(B) may rely on information from an Express Lane agency when evaluating a child's eligibility for medical assistance under the State Medicaid plan or child health assistance under the State CHIP plan without a separate, independent confirmation of the information at the time of enrollment, redetermination, or renewal.

(2) PAYMENTS TO STATES.—From the amount appropriated under paragraph (1) of subsection (f), after the application of paragraph (2) of that subsection, the Secretary shall pay the States selected to participate in the demonstration program such sums as the Secretary shall determine for expenditures made by the State for systems upgrades and implementation of the demonstration program. In no event shall a payment be made to a State from the amount appropriated under subsection (f) for any expenditures incurred for providing medical assistance or child health assistance to a child enrolled in the State Medicaid plan or the State CHIP plan through reliance on a finding made by an Express Lane agency.

(b) REQUIREMENTS; OPTIONS FOR APPLICATION.—

(1) STATE REQUIREMENTS.—A State selected to participate in the demonstration program established under this section may rely on a finding of an Express Lane agency only if the following conditions are met:

(A) REQUIREMENT TO DETERMINE ELIGIBILITY USING REGULAR PROCEDURES IF CHILD IS FIRST FOUND INELIGIBLE.—If reliance on a finding from an Express Lane agency results in a child not being found eligible for the State Medicaid plan or the State CHIP plan, the State would be required to determine eligibility under such plan using its regular procedures.

(B) NOTICE.—The State shall inform the families (especially those whose children are enrolled in the State CHIP plan) that they may qualify for lower premium payments or more comprehensive health coverage under the State Medicaid plan if the family's income were directly evaluated for an eligibility determination by the State Medicaid agency, and that, at the family's option, the family may seek an eligibility determination by the State Medicaid agency.

(C) COMPLIANCE WITH DEPARTMENT OF HOMELAND SECURITY PROCEDURES.—The State may rely on an Express Lane agency finding that a child is a qualified alien as long as the Express Lane agency complies with guidance and regulatory procedures issued by the Secretary of Homeland Security for eligibility determinations of qualified aliens (as defined in subsections (b) and (c) of section 431 of the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Reconciliation Act of 1996 (8 U.S.C. 1641)).

(D) VERIFICATION OF CITIZENSHIP OR NATIONALITY STATUS.—The State shall satisfy the requirements of section 1902(a)(46)(B) or 2105(c)(9) of the Social Security Act, as applicable (and as added by section 301 of this Act) for verifications of citizenship or nationality status.

(E) CODING; APPLICATION TO ENROLLMENT ERROR RATES.—

(i) IN GENERAL.—The State agrees to—

(I) assign such codes as the Secretary shall require to the children who are enrolled in the State Medicaid plan or the State CHIP plan through reliance on a finding made by an Express Lane agency for the duration of the State's participation in the demonstration program;

(II) annually provide the Secretary with a statistically valid sample (that is approved by Secretary) of the children enrolled in such plans through reliance on such a finding by conducting a full Medicaid eligibility review of the children identified for such sample for purposes of determining an eligibility error rate with respect to the enrollment of such children;

(III) submit the error rate determined under subclause (II) to the Secretary;

(IV) if such error rate exceeds 3 percent for either of the first 2 fiscal years in which the State participates in the demonstration program, demonstrate to the satisfaction of the Secretary the specific corrective actions implemented by the State to improve upon such error rate; and

(V) if such error rate exceeds 3 percent for any fiscal year in which the State participates in the demonstration program, a reduction in the amount otherwise payable to the State under section 1903(a) of the Social Security Act (42 Secretary 1396b(a)) for quarters for that fiscal year, equal to the total amount of erroneous excess payments determined for the fiscal year only with respect to the children included in the sample for the fiscal year that are in excess of a 3 percent error rate with respect to such children.

(ii) NO PUNITIVE ACTION BASED ON ERROR RATE.—The Secretary shall not apply the error rate derived from the sample under clause (i) to the entire population of children enrolled in the State Medicaid plan or the State CHIP plan through reliance on a finding made by an Express Lane agency, or to the population of children enrolled in such plans on the basis of the State's regular procedures for determining eligibility, or penalize the State on the basis of such error rate in any manner other than the reduction of payments provided for under clause (i)(V).

(iii) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this section shall be construed as relieving a State that participates in the demonstration program established under this section from being subject to a penalty under section 1903(u) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1396b(u)) for payments made under the State Medicaid plan with respect to ineligible individuals and families that are determined to exceed the error rate permitted under that section (as determined without regard to the error rate determined under clause (i)(II)).

(2) STATE OPTIONS FOR APPLICATION.—A State selected to participate in the demonstration program may elect to apply any of the following:

(A) SATISFACTION OF CHIP SCREEN AND ENROLL REQUIREMENTS.—If the State relies on a finding of an Express Lane agency for purposes of determining eligibility under the State CHIP plan, the State may meet the screen and enroll requirements imposed under subparagraphs (A) and (B) of section 2102(b)(3) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1397bb(b) (3)) by using any of the following:

(i) Establishing a threshold percentage of the poverty line that is 30 percentage points (or such other higher number of percentage points) as the State determines reflects the income methodologies of the program administered by the Express Lane Agency and the State Medicaid plan.

(ii) Providing that a child satisfies all income requirements for eligibility under the State Medicaid plan.

(iii) Providing that a child has a family income that exceeds the Medicaid applicable income level.

(B) PRESUMPTIVE ELIGIBILITY.—The State may provide for presumptive eligibility under the State CHIP plan for a child who, based on an eligibility determination of an income finding from an Express Lane agency, would qualify for child health assistance under the State CHIP plan. During the period of presumptive eligibility, the State may determine the child's eligibility for child health assistance under the State CHIP plan based on telephone contact with family members, access to data available in electronic or paper format, or other means that minimize to the maximum extent feasible the burden on the family.

(C) AUTOMATIC ENROLLMENT.—

(i) IN GENERAL.—The State may initiate and determine eligibility for medical assistance under the State Medicaid plan or for child health assistance under the State CHIP plan without a program application from, or on behalf of, the child based on data obtained from sources other than the child (or the child's family), but a child can only be automatically enrolled in the State Medicaid plan or the State CHIP plan if the child or the family affirmatively consents to being enrolled through affirmation and signature on an Express Lane agency application.

(ii) INFORMATION REQUIREMENT.—A State that elects the option under clause (i) shall have procedures in place to inform the child or the child's family of the services that will be covered under the State Medicaid plan or the State CHIP plan (as applicable), appropriate methods for using such services, premium or other cost sharing charges (if any) that apply, medical support obligations created by the enrollment (if applicable), and the actions the child or the child's family must take to maintain enrollment and renew coverage.

(iii) OPTION TO WAIVE SIGNATURES.—The State may waive any signature requirements for enrollment for a child who consents to, or on whose behalf consent is provided for, enrollment in the State Medicaid plan or the State CHIP plan.

(3) SIGNATURE REQUIREMENTS.—In the case of a State selected to participate in the demonstration program—

(A) no signature under penalty of perjury shall be required on an application form for medical assistance under the State Medicaid plan or child health assistance under the State CHIP plan to attest to any element of the application for which eligibility is based on information received from an Express Lane agency or a source other than an applicant; and

(B) any signature requirement for determination of an application for medical assistance under the State Medicaid plan or child health assistance under the State CHIP plan may be satisfied through an electronic signature.

(4) RULES OF CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to—

(A) relieve a State of the obligation under section 1902(a)(5) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1396a(a)(5)) to determine eligibility for medical assistance under the State Medicaid plan; or

(B) prohibit any State options otherwise permitted under Federal law (without regard to this paragraph or the demonstration program established under this section) that are intended to increase the enrollment of eligible children for medical assistance under the State Medicaid plan or child health assistance under the State CHIP plan, including options related to outreach, enrollment, applications, or the determination or redetermination of eligibility.

(c) LIMITED WAIVER OF OTHER APPLICABLE REQUIREMENTS.—

(1) SOCIAL SECURITY ACT.—The Secretary shall waive only such requirements of the Social Security Act as the Secretary determines are necessary to carry out the demonstration program established under this section.

(2) AUTHORIZATION FOR PARTICIPATING STATES TO RECEIVE CERTAIN DATA DIRECTLY RELEVANT TO DETERMINING ELIGIBILITY AND CORRECT AMOUNT OF ASSISTANCE.—For provisions relating to the authority of States participating in the demonstration program to receive certain data directly, see section 204(c).

(d) EVALUATION AND REPORT.—

(1) EVALUATION.—The Secretary shall conduct, by grant, contract, or interagency agreement, a comprehensive, independent evaluation of the demonstration program established under this section. Such evaluation shall include an analysis of the effectiveness of the program, and shall include—

(A) obtaining a statistically valid sample of the children who were enrolled in the State Medicaid plan or the State CHIP plan through reliance on a finding made by an Express Lane agency and determining the percentage of children who were erroneously enrolled in such plans;

(B) determining whether enrolling children in such plans through reliance on a finding made by an Express Lane agency improves the ability of a State to identify and enroll low-income, uninsured children who are eligible but not enrolled in such plans;

(C) evaluating the administrative costs or savings related to identifying and enrolling children in such plans through reliance on such findings, and the extent to which such costs differ from the costs that the State otherwise would have incurred to identify and enroll low-income, uninsured children who are eligible but not enrolled in such plans; and

(D) any recommendations for legislative or administrative changes that would improve the effectiveness of enrolling children in such plans through reliance on such findings.

(2) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—Not later than September 30, 2012, the Secretary shall submit a report to Congress on the results of the evaluation of the demonstration program established under this section.

TITLE IV—REDUCING BARRIERS TO PROVIDING PREMIUM ASSISTANCE

Subtitle A—Additional State Option for Providing Premium Assistance

SEC. 401. ADDITIONAL STATE OPTION FOR PROVIDING PREMIUM ASSISTANCE.

"(10) STATE OPTION TO OFFER PREMIUM ASSISTANCE.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to the succeeding provisions of this paragraph, a State may elect to offer a premium assistance subsidy (as defined in subparagraph (C)) for qualified employer-sponsored coverage (as defined in subparagraph (B)) to all targeted low-income children who are eligible for child health assistance under the plan and have access to such coverage in accordance with the requirements of this paragraph.

"(B) QUALIFIED EMPLOYER-SPONSORED COVERAGE.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—Subject to clauses (ii) and (iii), in this paragraph, the term 'qualified employer-sponsored coverage' means a group health plan or health insurance coverage offered through an employer—

"(I) that qualifies as creditable coverage as a group health plan under section 2701(c)(1) of the Public Health Service Act;

"(II) for which the employer contribution toward any premium for such coverage is at least 40 percent; and

"(III) to all individuals in a manner that would be considered a nondiscriminatory eligibility classification for purposes of paragraph (3)(A)(ii) of section 105(h) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (but determined without regard to clause (i) of subparagraph (B) of such paragraph).

"(ii) EXCEPTION.—Such term does not include coverage consisting of—

"(I) benefits provided under a health flexible spending arrangement (as defined in section 106(c)(2) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986); or

"(II) a high deductible health plan (as defined in section 223(c)(2) of such Code) purchased in conjunction with a health savings account (as defined under section 223(d) of such Code).

"(iii) COST-EFFECTIVENESS ALTERNATIVE TO REQUIRED EMPLOYER CONTRIBUTION.—A group health plan or health insurance coverage offered through an employer that would be considered qualified employer-sponsored coverage but for the application of clause (i)(II) may be deemed to satisfy the requirement of such clause if either of the following applies:

"(I) APPLICATION OF CHILD-BASED OR FAMILY-BASED TEST.—The State establishes to the satisfaction of the Secretary that the cost of such coverage is less than the expenditures that the State would have made to enroll the child or the family (as applicable) in the State child health plan.

"(II) AGGREGATE PROGRAM OPERATIONAL COSTS DO NOT EXCEED THE COST OF PROVIDING COVERAGE UNDER THE STATE CHILD HEALTH PLAN.—If subclause (I) does not apply, the State establishes to the satisfaction of the Secretary that the aggregate amount of expenditures by the State for the purchase of all such coverage for targeted low-income children under the State child health plan (including administrative expenditures) does not exceed the aggregate amount of expenditures that the State would have made for providing coverage under the State child health plan for all such children.

"(C) PREMIUM ASSISTANCE SUBSIDY.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—In this paragraph, the term 'premium assistance subsidy' means, with respect to a targeted low-income child, the amount equal to the difference between the employee contribution required for enrollment only of the employee under qualified employer-sponsored coverage and the employee contribution required for enrollment of the employee and the child in such coverage, less any applicable premium cost-sharing applied under the State child health plan (subject to the limitations imposed under section 2103(e), including the requirement to count the total amount of the employee contribution required for enrollment of the employee and the child in such coverage toward the annual aggregate cost-sharing limit applied under paragraph (3)(B) of such section).

"(ii) STATE PAYMENT OPTION.—A State may provide a premium assistance subsidy either as reimbursement to an employee for out-of-pocket expenditures or, subject to clause (iii), directly to the employee's employer.

"(iii) EMPLOYER OPT-OUT.—An employer may notify a State that it elects to opt-out of being directly paid a premium assistance subsidy on behalf of an employee. In the event of such a notification, an employer shall withhold the total amount of the employee contribution required for enrollment of the employee and the child in the qualified employer-sponsored coverage and the State shall pay the premium assistance subsidy directly to the employee.

"(iv) TREATMENT AS CHILD HEALTH ASSISTANCE.—Expenditures for the provision of premium assistance subsidies shall be considered child health assistance described in paragraph (1)(C) of subsection (a) for purposes of making payments under that subsection.

"(D) APPLICATION OF SECONDARY PAYOR RULES.—The State shall be a secondary payor for any items or services provided under the qualified employer-sponsored coverage for which the State provides child health assistance under the State child health plan.

"(E) REQUIREMENT TO PROVIDE SUPPLEMENTAL COVERAGE FOR BENEFITS AND COST-SHARING PROTECTION PROVIDED UNDER THE STATE CHILD HEALTH PLAN.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding section 2110(b)(1)(C), the State shall provide for each targeted low-income child enrolled in qualified employer-sponsored coverage, supplemental coverage consisting of—

"(I) items or services that are not covered, or are only partially covered, under the qualified employer-sponsored coverage; and

"(II) cost-sharing protection consistent with section 2103(e).

"(ii) RECORD KEEPING REQUIREMENTS.—For purposes of carrying out clause (i), a State may elect to directly pay out-of-pocket expenditures for cost-sharing imposed under the qualified employer-sponsored coverage and collect or not collect all or any portion of such expenditures from the parent of the child.

"(F) APPLICATION OF WAITING PERIOD IMPOSED UNDER THE STATE.—Any waiting period imposed under the State child health plan prior to the provision of child health assistance to a targeted low-income child under the State plan shall apply to the same extent to the provision of a premium assistance subsidy for the child under this paragraph.

"(G) OPT-OUT PERMITTED FOR ANY MONTH.—A State shall establish a process for permitting the parent of a targeted low-income child receiving a premium assistance subsidy to disenroll the child from the qualified employer-sponsored coverage and enroll the child in, and receive child health assistance under, the State child health plan, effective on the first day of any month for which the child is eligible for such assistance and in a manner that ensures continuity of coverage for the child.

"(H) APPLICATION TO PARENTS.—If a State provides child health assistance or health benefits coverage to parents of a targeted low-income child in accordance with section 2111(b), the State may elect to offer a premium assistance subsidy to a parent of a targeted low-income child who is eligible for such a subsidy under this paragraph in the same manner as the State offers such a subsidy for the enrollment of the child in qualified employer-sponsored coverage, except that—

"(i) the amount of the premium assistance subsidy shall be increased to take into account the cost of the enrollment of the parent in the qualified employer-sponsored coverage or, at the option of the State if the State determines it cost-effective, the cost of the enrollment of the child's family in such coverage; and

"(ii) any reference in this paragraph to a child is deemed to include a reference to the parent or, if applicable under clause (i), the family of the child.

"(I) ADDITIONAL STATE OPTION FOR PROVIDING PREMIUM ASSISTANCE.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—A State may establish an employer-family premium assistance purchasing pool for employers with less than 250 employees who have at least 1 employee who is a pregnant woman eligible for assistance under the State child health plan (including through the application of an option described in section 2112(f)) or a member of a family with at least 1 targeted low-income child and to provide a premium assistance subsidy under this paragraph for enrollment in coverage made available through such pool.

"(ii) ACCESS TO CHOICE OF COVERAGE.—A State that elects the option under clause (i) shall identify and offer access to not less than 2 private health plans that are health benefits coverage that is equivalent to the benefits coverage in a benchmark benefit package described in section 2103(b) or benchmark-equivalent coverage that meets the requirements of section 2103(a)(2) for employees described in clause (i).

"(J) NO EFFECT ON PREVIOUSLY APPROVED PREMIUM ASSISTANCE PROGRAMS.—Nothing in this paragraph shall be construed as limiting the authority of a State to offer premium assistance under section 1906, a waiver described in paragraph (2)(B) or (3), a waiver approved under section 1115, or other authority in effect prior to the date of enactment of the Children's Health Insurance Program Reauthorization Act of 2007.

"(K) NOTICE OF AVAILABILITY.—If a State elects to provide premium assistance subsidies in accordance with this paragraph, the State shall—

"(i) include on any application or enrollment form for child health assistance a notice of the availability of premium assistance subsidies for the enrollment of targeted low-income children in qualified employer-sponsored coverage;

"(ii) provide, as part of the application and enrollment process under the State child health plan, information describing the availability of such subsidies and how to elect to obtain such a subsidy; and

"(iii) establish such other procedures as the State determines necessary to ensure that parents are fully informed of the choices for receiving child health assistance under the State child health plan or through the receipt of premium assistance subsidies.

"(L) APPLICATION TO QUALIFIED EMPLOYER-SPONSORED BENCHMARK COVERAGE.—If a group health plan or health insurance coverage offered through an employer is certified by an actuary as health benefits coverage that is equivalent to the benefits coverage in a benchmark benefit package described in section 2103(b) or benchmark-equivalent coverage that meets the requirements of section 2103(a)(2), the State may provide premium assistance subsidies for enrollment of targeted low-income children in such group health plan or health insurance coverage in the same manner as such subsidies are provided under this paragraph for enrollment in qualified employer-sponsored coverage, but without regard to the requirement to provide supplemental coverage for benefits and cost-sharing protection provided under the State child health plan under subparagraph (E).".

"(d) A State may elect to offer a premium assistance subsidy (as defined in section 2105(c)(10)(C)) for qualified employer-sponsored coverage (as defined in section 2105(c)(10)(B)) to a child who is eligible for medical assistance under the State plan under this title, to the parent of such a child, and to a pregnant woman, in the same manner as such a subsidy for such coverage may be offered under a State child health plan under title XXI in accordance with section 2105(c)(10) (except that subparagraph (E)(i)(II) of such section shall be applied by substituting '1916 or, if applicable, 1916A' for '2103(e)').".

(c) GAO STUDY AND REPORT.—Not later than January 1, 2009, the Comptroller General of the United States shall study cost and coverage issues relating to any State premium assistance programs for which Federal matching payments are made under title XIX or XXI of the Social Security Act, including under waiver authority, and shall submit a report to the appropriate committees of Congress on the results of such study.

"(1) Federal health services to maintain and improve the health of the Indians are consonant with and required by the Federal Government's historical and unique legal relationship with, and resulting responsibility to, the American Indian people.

"(2) A major national goal of the United States is to provide the resources, processes, and structure that will enable Indian Tribes and tribal members to obtain the quantity and quality of health care services and opportunities that will eradicate the health disparities between Indians and the general population of the United States.

"(3) A major national goal of the United States is to provide the quantity and quality of health services which will permit the health status of Indians to be raised to the highest possible level and to encourage the maximum participation of Indians in the planning and management of those services.

"(4) Federal health services to Indians have resulted in a reduction in the prevalence and incidence of preventable illnesses among, and unnecessary and premature deaths of, Indians.

"(2) to raise the health status of Indians and Urban Indians to at least the levels set forth in the goals contained within the Healthy People 2010 or successor objectives;

"(3) to ensure maximum Indian participation in the direction of health care services so as to render the persons administering such services and the services themselves more responsive to the needs and desires of Indian communities;

"(4) to increase the proportion of all degrees in the health professions and allied and associated health professions awarded to Indians so that the proportion of Indian health professionals in each Service Area is raised to at least the level of that of the general population;

"(5) to require that all actions under this Act shall be carried out with active and meaningful consultation with Indian Tribes and Tribal Organizations, and conference with Urban Indian Organizations, to implement this Act and the national policy of Indian self-determination;

"(6) to ensure that the United States and Indian Tribes work in a government-to-government relationship to ensure quality health care for all tribal members; and

"(2) Indian people suffer an inordinately high incidence of disease, injury, and illness directly attributable to the absence or inadequacy of sanitation facilities.

"(3) The long-term cost to the United States of treating and curing such disease, injury, and illness is substantially greater than the short-term cost of providing sanitation facilities and other preventive health measures.

"(5) It is in the interest of the United States, and it is the policy of the United States, that all Indian communities and Indian homes, new and existing, be provided with sanitation facilities.

"(b) FACILITIES AND SERVICES.—In furtherance of the findings made in subsection (a), Congress reaffirms the primary responsibility and authority of the Service to provide the necessary sanitation facilities and services as provided in section 7 of the Act of August 5, 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2004a). Under such authority, the Secretary, acting through the Service, is authorized to provide the following:

"(1) Financial and technical assistance to Indian Tribes, Tribal Organizations, and Indian communities in the establishment, training, and equipping of utility organizations to operate and maintain sanitation facilities, including the provision of existing plans, standard details, and specifications available in the Department, to be used at the option of the Indian Tribe, Tribal Organization, or Indian community.

"(2) Ongoing technical assistance and training to Indian Tribes, Tribal Organizations, and Indian communities in the management of utility organizations which operate and maintain sanitation facilities.

"(3) Priority funding for operation and maintenance assistance for, and emergency repairs to, sanitation facilities operated by an Indian Tribe, Tribal Organization or Indian community when necessary to avoid an imminent health threat or to protect the investment in sanitation facilities and the investment in the health benefits gained through the provision of sanitation facilities.

"(c) FUNDING.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law—

"(1) the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized to transfer funds appropriated under the Native American Housing Assistance and Self-Determination Act of 1996 (25 U.S.C. 4101 et seq.) to the Secretary of Health and Human Services;

"(2) the Secretary of Health and Human Services is authorized to accept and use such funds for the purpose of providing sanitation facilities and services for Indians under section 7 of the Act of August 5, 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2004a);

"(3) unless specifically authorized when funds are appropriated, the Secretary shall not use funds appropriated under section 7 of the Act of August 5, 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2004a), to provide sanitation facilities to new homes constructed using funds provided by the Department of Housing and Urban Development;

"(4) the Secretary of Health and Human Services is authorized to accept from any source, including Federal and State agencies, funds for the purpose of providing sanitation facilities and services and place these funds into contracts or compacts under the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act (25 U.S.C. 450 et seq.);

"(5) except as otherwise prohibited by this section, the Secretary may use funds appropriated under the authority of section 7 of the Act of August 5, 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2004a), to fund up to 100 percent of the amount of an Indian Tribe's loan obtained under any Federal program for new projects to construct eligible sanitation facilities to serve Indian homes;

"(6) except as otherwise prohibited by this section, the Secretary may use funds appropriated under the authority of section 7 of the Act of August 5, 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2004a) to meet matching or cost participation requirements under other Federal and non-Federal programs for new projects to construct eligible sanitation facilities;

"(7) all Federal agencies are authorized to transfer to the Secretary funds identified, granted, loaned, or appropriated whereby the Department's applicable policies, rules, and regulations shall apply in the implementation of such projects;

"(8) the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall enter into interagency agreements with Federal and State agencies for the purpose of providing financial assistance for sanitation facilities and services under this Act;

"(9) the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall, by regulation, establish standards applicable to the planning, design, and construction of sanitation facilities funded under this Act; and

"(10) the Secretary of Health and Human Services is authorized to accept payments for goods and services furnished by the Service from appropriate public authorities, nonprofit organizations or agencies, or Indian Tribes, as contributions by that authority, organization, agency, or tribe to agreements made under section 7 of the Act of August 5, 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2004a), and such payments shall be credited to the same or subsequent appropriation account as funds appropriated under the authority of section 7 of the Act of August 5, 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2004a).

"(d) CERTAIN CAPABILITIES NOT PREREQUISITE.—The financial and technical capability of an Indian Tribe, Tribal Organization, or Indian community to safely operate, manage, and maintain a sanitation facility shall not be a prerequisite to the provision or construction of sanitation facilities by the Secretary.

"(e) FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE.—The Secretary is authorized to provide financial assistance to Indian Tribes, Tribal Organizations, and Indian communities for operation, management, and maintenance of their sanitation facilities.

"(f) OPERATION, MANAGEMENT, AND MAINTENANCE OF FACILITIES.—The Indian Tribe has the primary responsibility to establish, collect, and use reasonable user fees, or otherwise set aside funding, for the purpose of operating, managing, and maintaining sanitation facilities. If a sanitation facility serving a community that is operated by an Indian Tribe or Tribal Organization is threatened with imminent failure and such operator lacks capacity to maintain the integrity or the health benefits of the sanitation facility, then the Secretary is authorized to assist the Indian Tribe, Tribal Organization, or Indian community in the resolution of the problem on a short-term basis through cooperation with the emergency coordinator or by providing operation, management, and maintenance service.

"(g) ISDEAA PROGRAM FUNDED ON EQUAL BASIS.—Tribal Health Programs shall be eligible (on an equal basis with programs that are administered directly by the Service) for—

"(1) any funds appropriated pursuant to this section; and

"(2) any funds appropriated for the purpose of providing sanitation facilities.

"(3) SANITATION DEFICIENCY LEVELS.—For purposes of this subsection, the sanitation deficiency levels for an individual, Indian Tribe, or Indian community sanitation facility to serve Indian homes are determined as follows:

"(iii) the lack of equipment or training by an Indian Tribe, Tribal Organization, or an Indian community to properly operate and maintain the sanitation facilities.

"(C) A level III deficiency exists if a sanitation facility serving an individual, Indian Tribe or Indian community meets 1 or more of the following conditions—

"(i) water or sewer service in the home is provided by a haul system with holding tanks and interior plumbing;

"(ii) major significant interruptions to water supply or sewage disposal occur frequently, requiring major capital improvements to correct the deficiencies; or

"(iii) there is no access to or no approved or permitted solid waste facility available.

"(D) A level IV deficiency exists—

"(i) if a sanitation facility for an individual home, an Indian Tribe, or an Indian community exists but—

"(I) lacks—

"(aa) a safe water supply system; or

"(II) contains no piped water or sewer facilities; or

"(III) has become inoperable due to a major component failure; or

Such preference may be accorded by the Secretary unless the Secretary finds, pursuant to regulations, that the project or function to be contracted for will not be satisfactory or such project or function cannot be properly completed or maintained under the proposed contract. The Secretary, in arriving at such a finding, shall consider whether the Indian or Indian firm will be deficient with respect to—

"(1) ownership and control by Indians;

"(B) is subject to prevailing wage rates for similar construction or renovation in the locality as determined by the Indian Tribes or Tribal Organizations to be served by the construction or renovation.

"(2) EXCEPTION.—This subsection shall not apply to construction or renovation carried out by an Indian Tribe or Tribal Organization with its own employees.

"SEC. 304. EXPENDITURE OF NON-SERVICE FUNDS FOR RENOVATION.

"(a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, if the requirements of subsection (c) are met, the Secretary, acting through the Service, is authorized to accept any major expansion, renovation, or modernization by any Indian Tribe or Tribal Organization of any Service facility or of any other Indian health facility operated pursuant to a contract or compact under the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act (25 U.S.C. 450 et seq.), including—

"(d) BREACH OF AGREEMENT.—An Indian Tribe or Tribal Organization that has entered into a written agreement with the Secretary under this section, and that breaches or terminates without cause such agreement, shall be liable to the United States for the amount that has been paid to the Indian Tribe or Tribal Organization, or paid to a third party on the Indian Tribe's or Tribal Organization's behalf, under the agreement. The Secretary has the right to recover tangible property (including supplies) and equipment, less depreciation, and any funds expended for operations and maintenance under this section. "(3) Equitable funding.—Any quarters whose rental rates are established by a Tribal Health Program pursuant to this subsection shall remain eligible for quarters improvement and repair funds to the same extent as all federally-owned quarters used to house personnel in Services-supported programs.

"(2) Retrocession of authority.—If a Tribal Health Program which has made an election under paragraph (1) requests retrocession of its authority to directly collect rents from Federal employees occupying federally-owned quarters, such retrocession shall become effective on the earlier of—

"(1) ENROLLEE OPTION TO SELECT AN INDIAN HEALTH CARE PROVIDER AS PRIMARY CARE PROVIDER.—In the case of a non-Indian Medicaid managed care entity that—

"(A) has an Indian enrolled with the entity; and

"(B) has an Indian health care provider that is participating as a primary care provider within the network of the entity, insofar as the Indian is otherwise eligible to receive services from such Indian health care provider and the Indian health care provider has the capacity to provide primary care services to such Indian, the contract with the entity under section 1903(m) or under section 1905(t)(3) shall require, as a condition of receiving payment under such contract, that the Indian shall be allowed to choose such Indian health care provider as the Indian's primary care provider under the entity.

"(2) ASSURANCE OF PAYMENT TO INDIAN HEALTH CARE PROVIDERS FOR PROVISION OF COVERED SERVICES.—Each contract with a managed care entity under section 1903(m) or under section 1905(t)(3) shall require any such entity that has a significant percentage of Indian enrollees (as determined by the Secretary), as a condition of receiving payment under such contract to satisfy the following requirements:

"(A) DEMONSTRATION OF PARTICIPATING INDIAN HEALTH CARE PROVIDERS OR APPLICATION OF ALTERNATIVE PAYMENT ARRANGEMENTS.—Subject to subparagraph (E), to—

"(i) demonstrate that the number of Indian health care providers that are participating providers with respect to such entity are sufficient to ensure timely access to covered Medicaid managed care services for those enrollees who are eligible to receive services from such providers; or

"(ii) agree to pay Indian health care providers who are not participating providers with the entity for covered Medicaid managed care services provided to those enrollees who are eligible to receive services from such providers at a rate equal to the rate negotiated between such entity and the provider involved or, if such a rate has not been negotiated, at a rate that is not less than the level and amount of payment which the entity would make for the services if the services were furnished by a participating provider which is not an Indian health care provider.

"(B) PROMPT PAYMENT.—To agree to make prompt payment (in accordance with rules applicable to managed care entities) to Indian health care providers that are participating providers with respect to such entity or, in the case of an entity to which subparagraph (A)(ii) or (E) applies, that the entity is required to pay in accordance with that subparagraph.

"(C) SATISFACTION OF CLAIM REQUIREMENT.—To deem any requirement for the submission of a claim or other documentation for services covered under subparagraph (A) by the enrollee to be satisfied through the submission of a claim or other documentation by an Indian health care provider that is consistent with section 403(h) of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act.

"(D) COMPLIANCE WITH GENERALLY APPLICABLE REQUIREMENTS.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—Subject to clause (ii), as a condition of payment under subparagraph (A), an Indian health care provider shall comply with the generally applicable requirements of this title, the State plan, and such entity with respect to covered Medicaid managed care services provided by the Indian health care provider to the same extent that non-Indian providers participating with the entity must comply with such requirements.

"(ii) LIMITATIONS ON COMPLIANCE WITH MANAGED CARE ENTITY GENERALLY APPLICABLE REQUIREMENTS.—An Indian health care provider—

"(I) shall not be required to comply with a generally applicable requirement of a managed care entity described in clause (i) as a condition of payment under subparagraph (A) if such compliance would conflict with any other statutory or regulatory requirements applicable to the Indian health care provider; and

"(II) shall only need to comply with those generally applicable requirements of a managed care entity described in clause (i) as a condition of payment under subparagraph (A) that are necessary for the entity's compliance with the State plan, such as those related to care management, quality assurance, and utilization management.

"(II) CONTINUED APPLICATION OF STATE REQUIREMENT TO MAKE SUPPLEMENTAL PAYMENT.—Nothing in subclause (I) or subparagraph (A) or (B) shall be construed as waiving the application of section 1902(bb)(5) regarding the State plan requirement to make any supplemental payment due under such section to a Federally-qualified health center for services furnished by such center to an enrollee of a managed care entity (regardless of whether the Federally-qualified health center is or is not a participating provider with the entity).

"(ii) CONTINUED APPLICATION OF ENCOUNTER RATE FOR SERVICES PROVIDED BY CERTAIN INDIAN HEALTH CARE PROVIDERS.—If the amount paid by a managed care entity to an Indian health care provider that is not a Federally-qualified health center and that has elected to receive payment under this title as an Indian Health Service provider under the July 11, 1996, Memorandum of Agreement between the Health Care Financing Administration (now the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services) and the Indian Health Service for services provided by such provider to an Indian enrollee with the managed care entity is less than the encounter rate that applies to the provision of such services under such memorandum, the State plan shall provide for payment to the Indian health care provider of the difference between the applicable encounter rate under such memorandum and the amount paid by the managed care entity to the provider for such services.

"(F) CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this paragraph shall be construed as waiving the application of section 1902(a)(30)(A) (relating to application of standards to assure that payments are consistent with efficiency, economy, and quality of care).

"(3) OFFERING OF MANAGED CARE THROUGH INDIAN MEDICAID MANAGED CARE ENTITIES.—If—

"(A) a State elects to provide services through Medicaid managed care entities under its Medicaid managed care program; and

"(B) an Indian health care provider that is funded in whole or in part by the Indian Health Service, or a consortium composed of 1 or more Tribes, Tribal Organizations, or Urban Indian Organizations, and which also may include the Indian Health Service, has established an Indian Medicaid managed care entity in the State that meets generally applicable standards required of such an entity under such Medicaid managed care program, the State shall offer to enter into an agreement with the entity to serve as a Medicaid managed care entity with respect to eligible Indians served by such entity under such program.

"(4) SPECIAL RULES FOR INDIAN MANAGED CARE ENTITIES.—The following are special rules regarding the application of a Medicaid managed care program to Indian Medicaid managed care entities:

"(A) ENROLLMENT.—

"(i) LIMITATION TO INDIANS.—An Indian Medicaid managed care entity may restrict enrollment under such program to Indians and to members of specific Tribes in the same manner as Indian Health Programs may restrict the delivery of services to such Indians and tribal members.

"(ii) NO LESS CHOICE OF PLANS.—Under such program the State may not limit the choice of an Indian among Medicaid managed care entities only to Indian Medicaid managed care entities or to be more restrictive than the choice of managed care entities offered to individuals who are not Indians.

"(iii) DEFAULT ENROLLMENT.—

"(I) IN GENERAL.—If such program of a State requires the enrollment of Indians in a Medicaid managed care entity in order to receive benefits, the State, taking into consideration the criteria specified in subsection (a)(4)(D)(ii)(I), shall provide for the enrollment of Indians described in subclause (II) who are not otherwise enrolled with such an entity in an Indian Medicaid managed care entity described in such clause.

"(II) INDIAN DESCRIBED.—An Indian described in this subclause, with respect to an Indian Medicaid managed care entity, is an Indian who, based upon the service area and capacity of the entity, is eligible to be enrolled with the entity consistent with subparagraph (A).

"(iv) EXCEPTION TO STATE LOCK-IN.—A request by an Indian who is enrolled under such program with a non-Indian Medicaid managed care entity to change enrollment with that entity to enrollment with an Indian Medicaid managed care entity shall be considered cause for granting such request under procedures specified by the Secretary.

"(B) FLEXIBILITY IN APPLICATION OF SOLVENCY.—In applying section 1903(m)(1) to an Indian Medicaid managed care entity—

"(i) any reference to a 'State' in subparagraph (A)(ii) of that section shall be deemed to be a reference to the 'Secretary'; and

"(ii) the entity shall be deemed to be a public entity described in subparagraph (C)(ii) of that section.

"(C) EXCEPTIONS TO ADVANCE DIRECTIVES.—The Secretary may modify or waive the requirements of section 1902(w) (relating to provision of written materials on advance directives) insofar as the Secretary finds that the requirements otherwise imposed are not an appropriate or effective way of communicating the information to Indians.

"(D) FLEXIBILITY IN INFORMATION AND MARKETING.—

"(i) MATERIALS.—The Secretary may modify requirements under subsection (a)(5) to ensure that information described in that subsection is provided to enrollees and potential enrollees of Indian Medicaid managed care entities in a culturally appropriate and understandable manner that clearly communicates to such enrollees and potential enrollees their rights, protections, and benefits.

"(ii) DISTRIBUTION OF MARKETING MATERIALS.—The provisions of subsection (d)(2)(B) requiring the distribution of marketing materials to an entire service area shall be deemed satisfied in the case of an Indian Medicaid managed care entity that distributes appropriate materials only to those Indians who are potentially eligible to enroll with the entity in the service area.

"(5) MALPRACTICE INSURANCE.—Insofar as, under a Medicaid managed care program, a health care provider is required to have medical malpractice insurance coverage as a condition of contracting as a provider with a Medicaid managed care entity, an Indian health care provider that is—

Those efforts may include, but are not limited to, the following initiatives:

"(2) The establishment of a high risk solution, such as a high risk pool, reinsurance mechanism, or other State-designed high risk solution.

"(b) MORE INDIVIDUALS COVERED.—A State shall demonstrate to the Secretary that an initiative under subsection (a) is reasonably designed to operate in a manner so as to result, in combination with the qualified health insurance tax credit, in a reduction in the number of eligible individuals (as defined in section 2213) in the State who do not have health insurance coverage, as measured by the Secretary based upon information obtained in the Current Population Survey.

"(3) PLAN PARTICIPATION.—No State may restrict or otherwise limit the ability of health insurance plans to participate in and offer health insurance products through an exchange, so long as the providers of these plans are duly licensed under State insurance laws applicable to all health insurance providers in the State and comply with the requirements under this subtitle.

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subparagraph (B), a State through an exchange shall meet the requirement under paragraph (1)(A) in a year by using its funds to supplement the premiums of the lowest cost plan participating in the exchange (as determined by a methodology to be specified by the Secretary), so that the average premium for individuals enrolling in the plan will not exceed 6 percent of the State's median income.

"(B) EXCEPTION.—A State is not required under subparagraph (A) to provide any supplemental payments if there is at least one plan available in all areas of the State with average premiums that are below 6 percent of the State's median income.

"(C) NO USE OF PRICE FIXING.—The implementation of this paragraph shall comply with subsection (a)(5).

"(D) APPLICATION.—

A State may use the program under section 1938 in developing such a pathway.

"(e) METHODS TO REDUCE ADVERSE SELECTION.—Health insurance plans participating in the exchange in a State shall have a mechanism to reduce adverse selection in the enrollment of eligible individuals. This mechanism shall be uniform for all such plans and may include waiting periods and premium surcharges for late enrollees (or individuals who otherwise do not have periods of creditable coverage before enrolling through the exchange) and other devices reasonably designed to reduce adverse selection in the enrollment of eligible individuals consistent with the requirements of subpart 1 of part B of title XXVII of the Public Health Service Act (relating to portability, access, and renewability requirements for health insurance coverage in the individual market).

"(f) REINSURANCE OR OTHER RISK REDISTRIBUTION MECHANISM.—Health insurance plans participating in the exchange in a State may have a uniform mechanism that protects entities offering qualified exchange-based health insurance coverage to manage risk. Such a mechanism may include reinsurance, a high risk pool, or other mechanism approved by the Secretary.

"(g) DISSEMINATION OF COVERAGE INFORMATION.—Health insurance plans participating in the exchange in a State shall ensure that there is wide dissemination of information about health insurance coverage options, including the plans offered and premiums and benefits for such plans, to eligible individuals and to employers that provide financial assistance in purchasing such coverage.

"(h) INFORMATION COORDINATION.—Health insurance plans participating in the exchange in a State shall report to the Secretary of the Treasury such information as is required under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to carry out the qualified health insurance tax credit.

TITLE ____—HEALTH CARE CHOICE

This title may be cited as "Health Care Choice Act of 2007".

SEC. _02. SPECIFICATION OF CONSTITUTIONAL AUTHORITY FOR ENACTMENT OF LAW.

This title is enacted pursuant to the power granted Congress under article I, section 8, clause 3, of the United States Constitution.

SEC. _03. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) The application of numerous and significant variations in State law impacts the ability of insurers to offer, and individuals to obtain, affordable individual health insurance coverage, thereby impeding commerce in individual health insurance coverage.

(2) Individual health insurance coverage is increasingly offered through the Internet, other electronic means, and by mail, all of which are inherently part of interstate commerce.

(3) In response to these issues, it is appropriate to encourage increased efficiency in the offering of individual health insurance coverage through a collaborative approach by the States in regulating this coverage.

(4) The establishment of risk-retention groups has provided a successful model for the sale of insurance across State lines, as the acts establishing those groups allow insurance to be sold in multiple States but regulated by a single State.

SEC. _04. COOPERATIVE GOVERNING OF INDIVIDUAL HEALTH INSURANCE COVERAGE.

"(C) Failing to adopt and implement reasonable standards for the prompt investigation and settlement of claims arising under policies.

"(D) Failing to effectuate prompt, fair, and equitable settlement of claims submitted in which liability has become reasonably clear.

"(F) Failing to affirm or deny coverage of claims within a reasonable period of time after having completed an investigation related to those claims.

"(F) to participate, on a nondiscriminatory basis, in any insurance insolvency guaranty association or similar association to which a health insurance issuer in the State is required to belong;

"(G) to comply with any State law regarding fraud and abuse (as defined in section 2795(10)), except that if the State seeks an injunction regarding the conduct described in this subparagraph, such injunction must be obtained from a court of competent jurisdiction; or

"(2) require any individual health insurance coverage issued by the issuer to be countersigned by an insurance agent or broker residing in that Secondary State; or

Whereas the term "fetal alcohol spectrum disorders" includes a broader range of conditions and therefore has replaced the term "fetal alcohol syndrome" as the umbrella term describing the range of effects that can occur in an individual whose mother drank alcohol during pregnancy;

Whereas fetal alcohol spectrum disorders are the leading cause of cognitive disability in western civilization, including the United States, and are 100 percent preventable;

Whereas fetal alcohol spectrum disorders are a major cause of numerous social disorders, including learning disabilities, school failure, juvenile delinquency, homelessness, unemployment, mental illness, and crime;

Whereas the incidence rate of fetal alcohol syndrome is estimated at 1 out of 500 live births and the incidence rate of fetal alcohol spectrum disorders is estimated at 1 out of every 100 live births;

Whereas, although the economic costs of fetal alcohol spectrum disorders are difficult to estimate, the cost of fetal alcohol syndrome alone in the United States was $5,400,000,000 in 2003 and it is estimated that each individual with fetal alcohol syndrome will cost taxpayers of the United States between $1,500,000 and $3,000,000 in his or her lifetime;

Whereas, in February 1999, a small group of parents of children who suffer from fetal alcohol spectrum disorders came together with the hope that in 1 magic moment the world could be made aware of the devastating consequences of alcohol consumption during pregnancy;

Whereas the first International Fetal Alcohol Syndrome Awareness Day was observed on September 9, 1999;

Whereas Bonnie Buxton of Toronto, Canada, the co-founder of the first International Fetal Alcohol Syndrome Awareness Day, asked "What if . . . a world full of FAS/E [Fetal Alcohol Syndrome/Effect] parents all got together on the ninth hour of the ninth day of the ninth month of the year and asked the world to remember that during the 9 months of pregnancy a woman should not consume alcohol . . . would the rest of the world listen?"; and

RECOGNIZING THE HEROIC EFFORTS OF FIREFIGHTERS

Mr. TESTER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the Senate now proceed to the consideration of S. Res. 286, submitted earlier today.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the resolution by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 286) recognizing the heroic efforts of firefighters to contain numerous wildfires throughout the Western United States.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I rise today to honor of the thousands of firefighters who, in recent weeks, have literally put themselves in the line of fire to protect our communities and rural economies from countless wildfires throughout the western United States.

For the second year in a row, western States have been plagued by continuous wildfires that far exceed those of average years. While July and August are typically considered the peak months for western wildfires, this year's fire season has been exacerbated by continued drought, record-high temperatures, widespread dry lightning storms, and high winds. As of July 23, more than 55,000 wildfires had been reported this year, burning over 4 million acres. That represents an increase of more than 8,000 fires and 1 million acres over the 10-year average.

My home State of Utah alone has reported nearly 700 separate wildfires that have burned nearly 700,000 acres. This includes the fire at the Milford Flats Complex, which burned more than 360,000 acres, easily making it Utah's largest wildfire on record and one of the largest of this year's fire season. Idaho is the only State that has been hit harder than Utah this fire season, reporting more than 700 fires that have burned more than 800,000 acres.

Utah and Idaho have not been alone in this recent spike of wildfire activity. The Milford Flats fire was ignited during a 3-day period that lasted from July 6th through July 8th, at time period in which more than 1,200 wildfires were ignited in the West as dry lighting storms swept across California, Nevada, Utah, and Southern Idaho. Despite these drastic conditions, Federal, State and local fire crews have been relentless in their efforts to control these wildfires, literally putting themselves between these infernos and our homes, our, communities, and our resources.

I also want to express my heartfelt sympathies towards the hundreds of communities and thousands of families affected by this year's fires. Our thoughts and prayers are with them as they begin the difficult task of cleaning up and returning their lives to normal.

At any given time, as many as 15,000 fire personnel are assigned to large, uncontained wildfires throughout the West. This year, and every year, these brave men and women overcome extremely volatile weather conditions and terrain to contain nearly 98 percent of all wildfires during their initial attack. That is why I am introducing a Senate Resolution recognizing the heroic efforts of firefighters to contain these dangerous fires in the West. Senators BENNETT, ENSIGN, WYDEN, DOMENICI, KYL, BARASSO, SALAZAR, CRAIG, and CANTWELL have joined me in cosponsoring this resolution. Clearly, this Senate Resolution already has strong bipartisan support, and I urge my remaining colleagues to lend their support.

Mr. TESTER. I ask unanimous consent the resolution be agreed to, the preamble be agreed to, and the motion to reconsider be laid on the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 286) was agreed to.

S. RES. 286

Whereas the annual peak of the Western wildfire season occurs during July and August;

Whereas the 2007 Western wildfire season has been characterized by continued drought, record-setting temperatures, extreme fuel conditions, and widespread dry lightning storms;

Whereas firefighters have had to contend with extreme fire behavior and rapid rates of fire spread;

Whereas, as of July 23, 2007, more than 55,000 wildfires have burned more than 4,000,000 acres of land, which is more than 8,000 fires and 1,000,000 acres higher than the average reported fire rate over the last 10 years;

Whereas, from July 6 through July 8, 2007, more than 1,200 fires were ignited in the Western United States, most of which were caused by dry lightning storms that swept across California, Nevada, Idaho, and Utah;

Whereas, as of July 23, 2007—

(1) the State of Idaho has reported more than 760 fires that have burned more than 800,000 acres;

(2) the State of Utah has reported more than 670 fires that have burned more than 660,000 acres;

(3) the State of Nevada has reported more than 560 fires that have burned more than 510,000 acres;

(4) the State of Oregon has reported more than 1,200 fires that have burned nearly 212,000 acres;

(5) the State of California has reported more than 4,600 fires that have burned more than 117,000 acres;

(6) the State of Arizona has reported more than 1,600 fires that have burned more than 88,000 acres;

(7) the State of Washington has reported more than 680 fires that have burned more than 64,000 acres;

(8) the State of New Mexico has reported more than 870 fires that have burned nearly 35,000 acres;

(9) the State of Montana has reported more than 960 fires that have burned more than 19,000 acres;

(10) the State of Wyoming has reported more than 200 fires that have burned more than 18,000 acres; and

(11) the State of Colorado has reported more than 740 fires that have burned more than 7,400 acres;

Whereas, at any given time during the Western wildfire season, as many as 14,000 firefighters are assigned to large, uncontained fires throughout the Western United States; and

Whereas, despite tremendously volatile weather and terrain conditions, Federal, State, and local firefighting units have contained between 95 and 98 percent of all wildfires during initial attack: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) recognizes the heroic efforts of firefighters to contain wildfires and protect lives, homes, and rural economies throughout the Western United States; and

(2) encourages the people and government officials of the United States to express their appreciation to the brave men and women serving in the firefighting services.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 278) regarding the announcement of the Russian Federation of its suspension of implementation of the Conventional Armed Forces in Europe Treaty.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. TESTER. I ask unanimous consent that the resolution be agreed to, the preamble agreed to, the motions to reconsider be laid upon the table en bloc, and that any statements relating thereto be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 278) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

S. RES. 278

Whereas the Treaty on Conventional Armed Forces in Europe, signed at Paris November 19, 1990 ("the CFE Treaty"), was agreed upon and signed by 22 States Parties in order to establish predictability, transparency, and stability in the balance of conventional military forces and equipment in an area of Europe stretching from the Atlantic Ocean to the Ural Mountains;

Whereas there are now 30 States Parties to the CFE Treaty, including Armenia, Azerbaijan, Belarus, Belgium, Bulgaria, Canada, Czech Republic, Denmark, France, Georgia, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Iceland, Italy, Kazakhstan, Luxembourg, Moldova, Netherlands, Norway, Poland, Portugal, Romania, the Russian Federation, Slovakia, Spain, Turkey, Ukraine, the United Kingdom, and the United States;

Whereas the CFE Treaty is recognized as one of the most successful arms control treaties of the modern era and has served as a cornerstone of European security as the continent emerged from the shadows of the Cold War;

Whereas the CFE Treaty facilitated the destruction or conversion of over 52,000 battle tanks, armored combat vehicles, artillery pieces, combat aircraft, and attack helicopters;

Whereas the CFE Treaty continues to enable an unprecedented level of transparency into military equipment holdings and troop deployments in Europe, including over 4,000 on-site inspections of military units and installations implemented since the entry into force of the Treaty;

Whereas, on November 19, 1999, at the Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe Summit in Istanbul, Turkey, the parties to the CFE Treaty signed an Adaptation Agreement to reflect the dissolution of the Warsaw Pact, the expansion of membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization ("NATO"), and other changes in the European geopolitical environment;

Whereas, at the time of the signing of the Adaptation Agreement, the Russian Federation made a series of pledges, known as the Istanbul Commitments, to withdraw its remaining military forces and equipment from the territory of Georgia and Moldova or otherwise negotiate consensual agreements on their continued presence;

Whereas while the Government of the Russian Federation has taken initial steps towards fulfilling the Istanbul Commitments, it continues to maintain troops and associated equipment in both Georgia and Moldova without the express sovereign consent of the governments of either of those countries, and the United States and other parties to the CFE Treaty have therefore refrained from taking steps to ratify the Adaptation Agreement;

Whereas, on April 26, 2007, President of the Russian Federation, Vladimir Putin, in a speech to the Federation Council of the Russian Federation, announced his intention to initiate an unspecified "moratorium" on Russian compliance with the CFE Treaty, citing the refusal of NATO Members to ratify the Adaptation Agreement, concerns over the proposed United States missile defense deployment in Poland and the Czech Republic, and new basing arrangements between the United States Government and the Governments of Bulgaria and Romania as unacceptable encroachments on the security of the Russian Federation;

Whereas the Government of the Russian Federation subsequently requested, as is its right under the CFE Treaty, an Extraordinary Conference to discuss its outstanding concerns, which was held from June 12 to June 15, 2007, in Vienna, Austria;

Whereas, on July 14, 2007, President Putin issued a formal decree announcing the intention of the Russian Federation to suspend compliance with the CFE Treaty after providing 150 days advance notice to the other CFE Treaty signatories;

Whereas President Putin justified his decision on "extraordinary circumstances" that "affect the security of the Russian Federation and require immediate measures";

Whereas the CFE Treaty provides a formal mechanism for withdrawal of a State Party from the Treaty following 150 days of notice, but does not contain any provision for suspension; and

Whereas the Department of State, in responding to the announcement by the Government of the Russian Federation to suspend compliance with the CFE Treaty, declared, "The United States is disappointed by the Russian announcement of its intention to suspend implementation of the Conventional Armed Forces in Europe (CFE) Treaty. The United States remains committed to CFE's full implementation. We also remain committed to the ratification and entry into force of the Adapted CFE Treaty. We look forward to continuing to engage with Russia and the other States Parties to the Treaty to create the conditions necessary for ratification by all 30 CFE States.": Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That—

(1) it is the sense of the Senate that the decision of the Government of the Russian Federation to suspend implementation of the Treaty on Conventional Armed Forces in Europe, signed at Paris November 19, 1990 ("the CFE Treaty"), is a regrettable step that will unnecessarily heighten tensions in Europe;

(2) the Senate recognizes the enduring value of the CFE Treaty as a cornerstone of European security and affirms its support for the basic principles of transparency, accountability, host country consent for the stationing of foreign military forces, and the rule of law embodied in the CFE Treaty and the 1999 Adaptation Agreement thereto;

(3) the Senate strongly urges the Government of the Russian Federation to reconsider its suspension of CFE implementation and engage with the other parties to the CFE Treaty to resolve outstanding problems and establish an agreed approach leading to the eventual implementation of the Adaption Agreement to the CFE Treaty;

(4) the Senate calls on the Russian Federation to fulfill its Istanbul Commitments of 1999 and move speedily to withdraw all remaining forces and military equipment from Georgia and Moldova;

(5) the Senate encourages all parties to the CFE Treaty to engage the Russian Federation in seeking innovative and constructive mechanisms to fully implement the Istanbul Commitments, consistent with the principles and objectives of the Organization of Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE) and making full use of OSCE mechanisms;

(6) the Senate calls on all States Parties to ensure that the resolution of the current disputes surrounding the CFE Treaty be considered a priority at the highest political levels, recognizing that the CFE Treaty is important both as an arms control treaty and as an essential building block for stable relations between the Russian Federation and neighboring countries in Europe; and

(7) the Senate encourages officials of the Government of the Russian Federation to refrain from belligerent statements that only further polarize relations and jeopardize security in Europe.

75TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE MILITARY ORDER OF THE PURPLE HEART

Mr. TESTER. I ask unanimous consent that the Armed Services Committee be discharged from further consideration of S. Con. Res. 26 and the Senate proceed to its consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The clerk will report the concurrent resolution by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 26) recognizing the 75th anniversary of the Military Order of the Purple Heart and commending recipients of the Purple Heart for their courageous demonstrations of gallantry and heroism on behalf of the United States.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. TESTER. I ask unanimous consent that the concurrent resolution be agreed to, the preamble be agreed to, the motions to reconsider be laid upon the table en bloc, and that any statements relating thereto be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 26) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

S. CON. RES. 26

Whereas the Purple Heart is a combat decoration awarded to members of the Armed Forces who are wounded by an instrument of war wielded by the enemy;

Whereas the Purple Heart is awarded posthumously to the next of kin in the name of members of the Armed Forces who are killed in action or die of wounds received in action;

Whereas the Purple Heart was originally conceived as the Badge of Military Merit by General George Washington on August 7, 1782;

Whereas 2007 marks the 225th anniversary of the Badge of Military Merit, the predecessor of the Purple Heart;

Whereas the practice of awarding the Purple Heart was revived in 1932, the 200th anniversary of George Washington's birth, out of respect for his memory and military achievements;

Whereas more than 1,535,000 Purple Hearts have been awarded to members of the Armed Forces who fought in defense of freedom and democracy in World War I, World War II, the Korean War, the Vietnam War, Operation Desert Storm, Operation Enduring Freedom, Operation Iraqi Freedom, and other expeditionary conflicts;

Whereas approximately 550,000 recipients of the Purple Heart are alive today;

Whereas the organization known as the Military Order of the Purple Heart was formed on October 19, 1932, for the protection and mutual interest of members of the Armed Forces who have received the Purple Heart; and

Whereas the Military Order of the Purple Heart is composed exclusively of recipients of the Purple Heart and is the only veterans' service organization comprised strictly of combat veterans: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That Congress—

(1) congratulates the Military Order of the Purple Heart on its 75th anniversary as a national organization whose goals are to preserve and sustain the honor of the Armed Forces;

(2) commends all recipients of the Purple Heart for their courageous demonstrations of gallantry and heroism on behalf of the United States; and

(3) encourages the people of the United States to take time to learn about the Purple Heart and the honor, courage, and bravery it symbolizes.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES—Tuesday, July 31, 2007

The House met at 9 a.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. McNERNEY).

DESIGNATION OF SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

WASHINGTON, DC,
July 31, 2007.

I hereby appoint the Honorable JERRY McNERNEY to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

NANCY PELOSI,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

MORNING-HOUR DEBATE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 4, 2007, the Chair will now recognize Members from lists submitted by the majority and minority leaders for morning-hour debate. The Chair will alternate recognition between the parties, with each party limited to not to exceed 25 minutes, and each Member, except the majority leader, the minority leader, or the minority whip, limited to not to exceed 5 minutes, but in no event shall debate extend beyond 9:50 a.m.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. MURPHY) for 4 minutes.

REGARDING COMPREHENSIVE ETHICS REFORM

Mr. MURPHY of Connecticut. Mr. Speaker, many members of the freshman class were elected in part because people were tired of the culture of corruption that they saw here in Washington and the total lack of accountability for those that broke the law and betrayed the American trust. People out in America look at Washington and they just don't understand how Members of Congress over the past several years could be carted off to Federal prisons while their own body, the Congress of the United States, sat by and did virtually nothing to hold these people accountable for their actions.

Today, Congress will pass landmark lobbying reform legislation. Fund-raising will become more transparent, sunlight will be shed on lobbyist influence, the K Street Project will end, and the revolving door for Members of Congress will shut a little bit tighter. But as Congress reduces the influence of people outside the body of Congress, we also need to recommit ourselves to cleaning up our own House by reforming the House ethics process. We will all celebrate our victory today. It will be a critical step to changing how things work in Washington. But we can't stop here. We need to make our ethics process work again by establishing a new citizen ethics panel independent of Congress with the power to initiate and vet ethics enforcement actions. We need this reform not because Members of Congress are corrupt but because they are the victims of simple human nature. It isn't natural to turn against your colleagues, your coworkers and your confidants to file complaints against each other under our current ethics process. Inaction within our current system isn't corruption, it's just human instinct. That's why responsible ethics reform will allow an independent panel to initiate these complaints, guaranteeing that friendships and work relationships don't get in the way of enforcing our ethics rules.

Mr. Speaker, soon after I was elected last November, I went to speak at an elementary school in my hometown of Cheshire. At the end of my talk, a fifth grader stood up and asked me a question. He said, Mr. MURPHY, you sound good now, but how do I know that you're not going to go down to Washington and become like everybody else?

I laughed a little bit when he asked me that question, but it's frankly a good one. And the danger for all of us is that the longer that someone spends here, the more ownership you take over the very system that you once ran against. And even though you may know that the system is broken, sometimes it just seems far too long a bridge to cross in order to fix it. But it has to be fixed. And it may just fall upon the newest Members of this body to do the mending. Because it's not just happenstance that some of the strongest voices for this reform are the freshman class, those who have spent the least amount of time working under this dome. Maybe because we just spent the last 2 years spending 18 hours a day living and breathing the frustrations of people outside the Beltway, even those that aren't old enough to vote, that we see with clear eyes what I think everyone inside the Beltway knows in their heart—that our current ethics process doesn't work and it feeds the perception that politicians spend far too much time and too much effort watching their own backs.

Listen, I know reform isn't easy, especially when it comes to setting up the rules by which we enforce our own code of conduct. This is delicate stuff. And I understand the fear that some Members have of handing over our ethics process to some outside independent body. But we need to rise above these fears, not only because we owe it to ourselves to remove the built-in conflicts of interest that put Members between a rock and a hard place but because the people out there in the Fifth District of Connecticut and every other district in America won't believe in their Congress again until they know that we can police ourselves.

Reform isn't easy. Not the landmark lobbying bill that we will pass today or the needed ethics reforms still to come. But, Mr. Speaker, nothing worthwhile ever is.

ETHICS REFORM

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 4, 2007, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. SPACE) is recognized during morning-hour debate for 5 minutes.

Mr. SPACE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to ask support for the Honest Leadership and Open Government Act of 2007. I hail from Ohio's 18th Congressional District, a district of proud, hardworking people who understand the virtues of personal responsibility, a district whose constituency was betrayed in years past by a Member of this body who crossed a line. My predecessor is now in prison and he has been imprisoned for having, once again, betrayed his constituents and sold his vote. He became mired in and then consumed by a scandal involving lobbyists. This legislation helps further break the link that exists between lobbyists, legislators and the wealthy clients that lobbyists represent. It represents yet another positive step forward. It's not the end. It represents more of the beginning of a process whereby bribery will become deinstitutionalized from this body. It represents a process whereby we can make decisions in this body on an informed, rational basis designed specifically to benefit the good people who put us here.

Early on in this Congress, we banned trips and gifts and meals from lobbyists, a good first step. Now we are bringing transparency to the system. But it can't stop here. My colleague from Connecticut raises the prospect of an independent organization to review potential breaches of law, something that I associate myself with, but we need yet to go beyond even that with aggressive and comprehensive campaign finance reform. I support this measure because I think it represents a good first step along that process, but again I urge my colleagues to give serious consideration to taking it yet farther, and that is again with the deinstitutionalization of bribery through comprehensive campaign finance reform.

IRAQ

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 4, 2007, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. SESTAK) is recognized during morning-hour debate for 2 minutes.

Mr. SESTAK. I am here to speak about Iraq. Americans are tired of this war, but at the same time they want to secure the best of the situation for the perception of security not just in that region but globally.

I watch the Republicans and our concern as Democrats is that they believe that our military might provide a solution in Iraq. I look at my party and my concern is that we need to stop the impure opposition and to begin to help craft, to help author an implementable, comprehensive Middle East/Persian Gulf security plan. But to do that, we obviously need a union with our Republican brethren.

I honestly believe that when people talk about taking care of our troops, the belief is not that we use them in war when necessary but where and how we use them. There are the elements right now to begin to come together in a union to craft a comprehensive end to this tragic misadventure that can meet the goals of both sides.

First, we have an army that is strained and by next April we will be at the point of almost irreparable harm for some years to come. Second, we know that in order to redeploy that army out of Iraq, it will take time. When the Soviet Union left Afghanistan with 120,000 troops, it took them 9 months and because of the ill preparation, 500 died on the way. We have 160,000 troops, 100,000 contractors. We must work well to get them to redeploy safely. They can only take in Kuwait two to two and a half brigades at a time. Forty combat equivalent brigades are in Iraq. The math comes out to a minimum of 18 to 24 months.

Third, because of that time line we can use the last arrow in our arsenal we have not used, diplomacy. The road out of Iraq is through Tehran, Iran. If we have the ability as we slowly redeploy to bring together Iran to work for stability, we can have a comprehensive solution to this conflict.

VISITING FOOD AND FRIENDS, A D.C.-BASED ANTI-HUNGER ORGANIZATION

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 4, 2007, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MCGOVERN) is recognized during morning-hour debate for 5 minutes.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, last week I had the privilege of spending a morning at Food and Friends, an organization that provides high-nutrient meals and nutrition therapy for people living with life-threatening illnesses, like HIV/AIDS, cancer and diabetes. It's located right here in Washington, DC. Five of my esteemed colleagues joined me on this visit, Representatives JO ANN EMERSON, LOIS CAPPS, JAN SCHAKOWSKY, BARBARA LEE, and ELEANOR HOLMES NORTON. Our visit was enlightening and inspiring.

Food and Friends began in 1988 when Reverend Carla Gorrell began making lunch for her friend who was so sick with AIDS that she was unable to leave the house. Reverend Gorrell recognized what is so basic, and yet so often overlooked. When we treat people with diseases, she recognized that nutritious food is an essential component of any medical regimen. Today, almost 20 years later, Food and Friends remains steadfast in its mission to provide high-nutrient meals, with care and compassion, to the critically ill in Washington, DC, Maryland and Virginia. Since 1988, Food and Friends has delivered more than 10 million meals to nearly 16,000 individuals. The organization that began in a church basement now operates in a multifaceted facility with over 50 staff members and, most impressively, 1,500 dedicated volunteers.

While my colleagues and I were at Food and Friends, we learned a tremendous amount about the significance of nutritious food for those suffering from critical illnesses. Laura Otolski, one of the three full-time dieticians on staff, educated us about the importance of individually treating each client's nutritional needs. To this end, the dieticians assess clients and then collaborate with chefs to prepare 14 different meal plans, including pureed meals for individuals who cannot chew solid food and meals for the homeless who may not have access to refrigerators and ovens.

Food and Friends staff members also recognize that to treat an individual, you must also provide food for his or her children and caretakers. For example, if a mother is too sick to cook and a volunteer only delivers a meal for her, she will give it to her children and go without food. Therefore, Food and Friends delivers meals for the whole family, including a specially designed children's meal plan. For those who live beyond Food and Friends' delivery area, they are eligible for the Groceries to Go service that provides two bags of nonperishable groceries as well as perishable frozen meals prepared by Food and Friends kitchen staff. In addition to providing food, Food and Friends offers cooking classes, nutritional counseling and even a photography workshop for clients to express themselves through art. Through its diverse programs, Food and Friends nourishes the body as well as the mind and soul.

Without a doubt, the highlight of our visit was hearing from two Food and Friends clients, Ajani Johnson and Crystal Wood. They described the hopelessness they felt when first learning about their illnesses. How quickly he felt sick. How far her cancer had spread. But then they told us about the gift of food that changed the course of their lives. The food—and the friendship of staff and volunteers that accompanied it—renewed their physical strength and belief in their ability to fight the disease. They became passionate when talking about the power of food to improve their quality of life while battling deadly illnesses. They also wanted us to know that they're not just clients of Food and Friends, they are also volunteers of the organization. They want others to experience the nourishment and compassion that was freely offered to them.

Mr. Speaker, Food and Friends is not alone in serving meals to the sick in this country. It is part of a national and international network of 120 agencies collectively serving 10 million meals to individuals each year. The Association of Nutrition Services Agencies is currently working with the Congressional Hunger Center on a Food as Medicine initiative. The purpose of the Food as Medicine campaign is to educate local and national leaders, academics and citizens about the value of nutrition services for those fighting disease.

We have the information we need to make great strides in recognizing the therapeutic effects of nutrition for those living with life-threatening illnesses, and I urge my colleagues to work together to ensure that all critically ill Americans have access to food and nutrition therapy as part of their treatment plans. These services improve the efficacy of medications and the quality of life of those suffering and their families. It is a simple but crucial step in improving the quality of health care in this country.

ACCOUNTABILITY IN CONGRESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 4, 2007, the gentlewoman from Kansas (Mrs. BOYDA) is recognized during morning-hour debate for 3 minutes.

Mrs. BOYDA of Kansas. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of accountability in Congress. This year, taxpayers will pay the retirement benefits for Dan Rostenkowski, Duke

Cunningham and Bob Ney. What do these men have in common? All are retired Members of the U.S. House of Representatives. All are convicted criminals. Each abused his office by committing fraud, bribery or conspiracy, and each was found guilty in Federal court.

Despite their convictions, these three representatives and over a dozen other former lawmakers remain eligible to draw taxpayer-funded pensions for their service. The exact amount of the payments vary, of course, but the average is about $47,000 per year. That's more than the average American makes. Let me tell you, it's certainly more than the average Kansan makes. Certainly a lot more than the average person in the Second District of Kansas makes.

Mr. Speaker, when the new majority was sworn into the House of Representatives, we had a clear mandate from Americans—End the scandals. Clean up Congress. We've already taken meaningful first steps toward reform. In our first days, we passed an ethics package that banned Members from accepting gifts from lobbyists. We blocked representatives from flying on corporate jets. And we prevented Congressmen from pressuring businesspeople to fire or hire for political reasons.

That last one to me is especially important. Before this Congress, our Congressmen were out there actually influencing people and saying, if you don't agree with my politics, we're asking you to hire or fire businesspeople. It was so wrong.

But our work is not done and it never will be done as long as convicted criminals can draw a congressional pension. Congress can and should revoke the pensions of convicted lawmakers. But for decades now, even as payments have totaled millions of dollars, this body has quietly ignored the problem. But no longer. Today, the bill we will consider this afternoon incorporates legislation that I authored to strip the pensions of these crooked lawmakers. The final bill also sets limits on the so-called revolving door of lawmakers who are turning into lobbyists, and it imposes financial disclosure requirements on the lobbying industry. Sunlight is the best disinfectant and we need a whole lot more transparency still.

Taken together, these changes represent the most significant ethics overhaul to pass the Congress in decades. I urge my colleagues to support this legislation. By enacting these sweeping reforms, Congress can begin to recover from the long years of scandal and corruption. Congress can begin to earn back Americans' trust.

ETHICS REFORM

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 4, 2007, the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. HILL) is recognized during morning-hour debate for 5 minutes.

Mr. HILL. Mr. Speaker, when I was campaigning last year for this seat in Congress, we talked about a lot of issues. We talked about Iraq. We talked about global warming. But we also talked about a very important issue on ethics. Ethics in Congress. It is disappointing to me that people in Indiana and around the country don't have a lot of respect for Members of Congress. I think our approval rating right now is at 23 percent. And one of the reasons why the approval rate is at 23 percent is because we're not doing a very good job in Congress in investigating the wrongdoings of a few Members.

And I want to emphasize it's just a few Members. Because most Members in this August body are honorable people. But there are a few that are spoiling the basket. We need to do a better job of policing the Congress of the United States. And so one of the things that I have done and one of the campaign promises that I want to keep that I made during the campaign last year is making sure that we clean up our act in Congress. One of the ways that we do that is changing the way we govern ourselves here in Congress. Right now in Congress, the Ethics Committee has a hard time with investigating Members of Congress because they are our colleagues. It's kind of like investigating members of your own family. It's hard to do. It's just natural that Members of Congress are reluctant to investigate the wrongdoings of their own Members. And so I think we need a change. We need to have an independent body of members who are investigating the minor wrongdoings of Members of Congress. And so I propose and have introduced legislation that would set up a new committee of Congress, of former Members of Congress who know this institution, who respect this institution, who will do the investigations that need to be done about a few Members of Congress who are misbehaving.

This new body would have subpoena powers. They would have all the powers that the present Ethics Committee has to them now, but they would be independent. And that's what we need. We need an independent committee that would investigate the wrongdoings of a few Members of Congress. We need to make this bipartisan. We need to restore the respect and honor of this Congress. A 23 percent approval rating is not acceptable and we need to do a better job. I believe that having former Members of Congress on a committee to investigate the wrongdoings of a few, and I emphasize a few Members of Congress, is the way to go. We need to make progress on this. We need to do this. We're going into the August recess. I hope that when we come back after the August recess that we will actually implement and pass into law an independent body of former Members of Congress to investigate those people who are doing what they should not be doing and that we can get about the business of restoring the integrity of Congress. I think it's very important.

I've been in politics for 20 years. It's an honor for me to serve in this body, and to think that only 23 percent of the people have faith and confidence in the Congress is not acceptable. I believe that setting up an independent committee of former Members of Congress can help at least restore some of the integrity that we have lost in Congress.

RECESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 12(a) of rule I, the Chair declares the House in recess until 10 a.m. today.

Accordingly (at 9 o'clock and 25 minutes a.m.), the House stood in recess until 10 a.m.

AFTER RECESS

The recess having expired, the House was called to order at 10 a.m.

PRAYER

Our Father and our God, Creator and everlasting Redeemer, we come asking Your Holy presence to be with us today. We are filled with great joy that You allowed us to gather here this morning. We thank You for being our protector of lasting nights lying down and the guidance of this morning's sunrise.

Father, we ask Your Holy Spirit to bless the work of this day and bless the governing body of this House to be on one accord in spirit and in truth. So every plan, every proposal, every decision would be orchestrated by Your presence.

Lord, I ask You to be kind and graceful, and place a hedge of love and patience around the families in the homes of these, Your leaders, while they're doing the assigned work of our Nation.

Father, we ask Your peace where there is war, love where there is anger, and joy where there is sorrow. And we place it now in Your hands and trust it to be so.

And we pray this prayer in the name that is above all names, Jesus, our Lord. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day's proceedings and announces to the House her approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

Mr. PENCE. Madam Speaker, pursuant to clause 1, rule I, I demand a vote on agreeing to the Speaker's approval of the Journal.

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. PENCE. Madam Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER. Pursuant to clause 8, rule XX, further proceedings on this question will be postponed.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER. Will the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. GILLIBRAND) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mrs. GILLIBRAND led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

WELCOMING THE REVEREND RICHARD D. TURPIN

(Mrs. GILLIBRAND asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. GILLIBRAND. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the Reverend Richard David Turpin, who has so eloquently provided the blessing to open the House this day.

Reverend Turpin serves as the pastor of the Second Baptist Church in beautiful Catskill, New York, just across the Hudson River from my home in New York's 20th Congressional District. And I welcome his beautiful family, who has joined us in the gallery.

The Reverend is a native of New York's capital region and has been an influential force in the Catskill community since he assumed his current position in the Second Baptist Church in 2000.

As preacher and counselor for the prison ministry at Albany Correctional Facility, chaplain for the Albany Rescue Mission, president of the Hudson River Frontier Missionary Baptist Association Laymen Ministry, and athletic coordinator for the Youth Department of the Empire Missionary Baptist Convention, Reverend Turpin has touched the lives of young and old throughout upstate New York.

I thank him for his service to our district, for his dedication to his faith, and for taking the time to travel with his family from Clifton Park to address the House of Representatives today.

LOBBYING REFORM

(Mr. EMANUEL asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. EMANUEL. Madam Speaker, last year, we promised to break the link between lobbyists and legislators here in Washington and to fundamentally change the culture of corruption that has become accepted practice here. This new law is on the doorstep of becoming law.

Today, we will pass this bill that fixes an institutional problem with an institutional solution. Our bill mandates unprecedented disclosure of lobbying activities and turns the spotlight on special interests who have grown too comfortable with their special access.

Most importantly, our legislation levels the playing field between the special interests and the voters. When the gavel comes down on the Speaker's podium, it is intended to open the people's House, not the auction house.

The American people, and not paid lobbyists on behalf of the special interests, should have access to their government 365 days a year. Election day should not just be a formality.

Now the Senate must do its work and pass this legislation. Americans have waited long enough for this Congress to pass real lobbying reform. It is time to turn this bill into law and give the American people a government as good as its people.

100 YEARS OF SCOUTING

(Mr. WILSON of South Carolina asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WILSON of South Carolina. Mr. Speaker, today marks the 100th year of the Boy Scouts. On August 1, 1907, Robert Baden-Powell, along with 20 young men, opened a camp at Brownsea Island, England. Since that day, Scouting has been responsible for inspiring more than 300 million individuals from over 216 countries and territories. The role and mission behind Scouting is to create an education program that promotes common ideals such as loyalty and honor.

Scouting has achieved success with dedicated adult volunteers who encourage young people to be constructive citizens. As the grateful father of four Eagle Scouts, encouraged by my wife, Roxanne, I have seen firsthand the positive influence of Scouting.

Four years ago today, I participated in my second backpacking trek at Philmont Scout Ranch in New Mexico. I wish the Boy Scouts a happy 100th birthday and congratulate them on their 21st World Scout Jamboree.

In conclusion, God bless our troops, and we will never forget September the 11th.

SEC. 2029. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON CRITERIA FOR OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE OF HARBOR DREDGING PROJECTS.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Insufficient maintenance dredging results in inefficient water transportation and harmful economic consequences.

(2) The estimated dredging backlog at commercial harbors in the Great Lakes alone is 16,000,000 cubic yards.

(3) Approximately two-thirds of all shipping in the United States either starts or finishes at small harbors.

(4) Small harbors often have a greater proportional impact on local economies than do larger harbors.

(5) Performance metrics can be valuable tools in the budget process for water resources projects.

(6) The use of a single performance metric for water resources projects can result in a budget biased against small and rural communities.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that the operations and maintenance budget of the Corps of Engineers should reflect the use of all available economic data, rather than a single performance metric.

(B) solicit and consider public and expert comments.

(5) PUBLICATION.—The Secretary shall—

(A) submit to the Committee on Environment and Public Works of the Senate and the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure of the House of Representatives copies of—

(i) the revisions to the principles and guidelines for use by the Secretary; and

(ii) an explanation of the intent of each revision, how each revision is consistent with this section, and the probable impact of each revision on water resources projects carried out by the Secretary; and

(B) make the revisions to the principles and guidelines for use by the Secretary available to the public, including on the Internet.

(6) EFFECT.—Subject to the requirements of this subsection, the principles and guidelines as revised under this subsection shall apply to water resources projects carried out by the Secretary instead of the principles and guidelines for such projects in effect on the day before date of enactment of this Act.

(7) APPLICABILITY.—After the date of issuance of the revisions to the principles and guidelines, the revisions shall apply—

(A) to all water resources projects carried out by the Secretary, other than projects for which the Secretary has commenced a feasibility study before the date of such issuance;

SEC. 2032. WATER RESOURCE PRIORITIES REPORT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 2 years after the date of enactment of this Act, the President shall submit to Congress a report describing the vulnerability of the United States to damage from flooding, including—

(1) the risk to human life;

(2) the risk to property; and

(3) the comparative risks faced by different regions of the United States.

(b) INCLUSIONS.—The report under subsection (a) shall include—

(1) an assessment of the extent to which programs in the United States relating to flooding address flood risk reduction priorities;

(2) the extent to which those programs may be encouraging development and economic activity in flood-prone areas;

(3) recommendations for improving those programs with respect to reducing and responding to flood risks; and

The Chief of Engineers shall use such benchmarks as a management tool to make the feasibility study process more efficient in all districts of the Corps of Engineers.

(2) BENCHMARK GOALS.—The Chief of Engineers shall establish, to the extent practicable, under paragraph (1) benchmark goals for completion of feasibility studies for water resources projects generally within 2 years. In the case of feasibility studies that the Chief of Engineers determines may require additional time based on the project type, size, cost, or complexity, the benchmark goal for completion shall be generally within 4 years.

(B) CONSTRAINTS.—The alternatives contained in studies and assessments described in subparagraph (A) shall not be constrained by budgetary or other policy.

(C) REPORTS OF CHIEF OF ENGINEERS.—The reports of the Chief of Engineers shall identify any recommendation that is not the best technical solution to water resource needs and problems and the reason for the deviation.

(2) REPORT COMPLETION.—The completion of a report of the Chief of Engineers for a water resources project—

(A) shall not be delayed while consideration is being given to potential changes in policy or priority for project consideration; and

SEC. 2034. INDEPENDENT PEER REVIEW.

(a) PROJECT STUDIES SUBJECT TO INDEPENDENT PEER REVIEW.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Project studies shall be subject to a peer review by an independent panel of experts as determined under this section.

(2) SCOPE.—The peer review may include a review of the economic and environmental assumptions and projections, project evaluation data, economic analyses, environmental analyses, engineering analyses, formulation of alternative plans, methods for integrating risk and uncertainty, models used in evaluation of economic or environmental impacts of proposed projects, and any biological opinions of the project study.

(3) PROJECT STUDIES SUBJECT TO PEER REVIEW.—

(A) MANDATORY.—A project study shall be subject to peer review under paragraph (1) if—
